Mitchell Clings To Graft Charge As Senators Jeer

Hostile Group Taunts Ex-Roper Aid for Vague Testimony.

Firm on Shipping 'Gift' of $1,720,000

Admits Knowing of No Bribery; Promises More Disclosures.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Ewing Y. Mitchell, ousted Assistant Secretary of Commerce, yesterday apparently made little impression on the Senate Commerce Committee, which listened for two and one-half hours to his recital of "improper favoritism, graft, indications of corruption," and irregularities in the Commerce Department.

Doggedly, in the face of skepticism and taunts from a hostile committee, Mitchell stuck to his charge that "a gift" of $1,720,000 had been made to the International Mercantile Marine in the permanent laying-up of the giant ship Leviathan. He named persons close to President Roosevelt as financially interested in this company.

But, specifically, that was about all Mitchell had for the committee yesterday. He will return to the witness stand today and has indicated that he will elaborate his general charge of inefficiency and dry-rot in the Steamboat Inspection Service, as well as details about the Bureau of Air Commerce.

To Submit Other Charges.

He also will lay before the committee a copy of a memorandum which some weeks ago he submitted to Secretary of Commerce Daniel Calhoun Roper, listing a number of irregularities and incidents of inefficiency and favoritism. Originally he planned to give this out at a press conference late yesterday, but out of courtesy for the Commerce Committee changed his mind.

Mitchell also said that if he could find it in the mass of papers he has just moved from the Commerce Department to his hotel suite, he would supply the committee with a copy of the report of the last inspection made of the ill-fated Morro Castle, which burned at sea. He said the report would indicate how perfunctory such examinations have been.

Leviathan Contract.

The only incident on which Mitchell appeared able or willing to give details was the Leviathan contract. Earlier in the day President Roosevelt, at a press conference, said he had approved this contract, believing it was silly to require the operation of the vessel at a large loss if it were agreed by the operating company to apply the amount of the loss to the construction of a new ship.

It has been Mitchell's contention, supported by the Comptroller General, that the United States Lines was obliged to build another ship in order to keep a mail contract and that there was no consideration whatever for relieving the company of liquidated damages amounting to $1,720,000.

"What was the reason for waiving the $1,720,000?" Mitchell was asked at his press conference.

"Why," he said with a flourish of his hand and raising his voice, "they were friends of mine!"

"You mean those interested in the company were friends of President Roosevelt?"

"Why, yes, of course," he replied. "You can't account for it on any other grounds."

By friends of the President, Mitchell was referring to Vincent Astor and Kermit Roosevelt, financially interested in the International Mercantile Marine, which owns the United States Lines, which in turn owns the Leviathan.

When members of the committee became insistent that he give them the facts about "graft and corruption," Mitchell denied he was charging "corruption." He said by "graft" he meant instances of persons getting things they were not entitled to and that it was clear that "millions of dollars had been

Stirling Draws Swanson's Fire On War Article

Secretary Orders All His Officers Not to Discuss World Issues.

By the Associated Press.

Announcing he had "admonished" Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, jr., for a recent newspaper article, Secretary Swanson yesterday ordered naval officers not to discuss "controversial international questions."

Swanson said he "considered it improper for officers of the Navy to publish controversial comment on international affairs which might be construed as offensive to foreign governments or their nationals."

Stirling commands the Third Naval District and the Brooklyn Navy Yard. His recent article was interpreted by several Congressmen as favoring a general European war against Russia.

Omitted From Record.

"I considered it my duty," Swanson said at a press conference, "to admonish the admiral, not to try to settle foreign affairs, which are under the State Department or the President, under the Constitution."

Swanson said, however, his letter to Sterling would not be entered on the officer's service record. He emphasized he did not wish "to encourage other admirals to do the same thing."

Asked if naval regulations would be amended to require officers to submit articles in advance, Swanson said there "shouldn't be any written" on such controversial questions.

"We've got no right to give them permission," he added.

Silent on Accord Report.

Swanson declined comment on a reported Anglo-German naval agreement, saying it was a "State De-

Choate Raps Liquor Bill; To Quit FACA

Section Giving Control to Treasury Called Fatal Defect.

Criticism Reveals Split With Democrats of House Group.

By the Associated Press.

In a clash with Democratic members of the House Way and Means Committee, Joseph H. Choate, jr., chairman of the Federal Alcohol Administration, last night said he would resign soon and return to private law practice in New York.

Choate appeared before the committee at a night hearing in behalf of legislation to create an agency to control the alcohol industry to replace the FACA which died with the Supreme Court's decision on the old NRA.

Asserting the bill before the committee was not one sponsored by the FACA, but apparently drafted by Democratic members of the committee, Choate said the provision putting the control agency under the Treasury was a "fatal defect."

Undercover Fight Out.

"It will destroy efficiency, it will destroy prestige," Choate said.

"You are more worried about prestige, aren't you? asked Representative Fuller (Democrat., of Arkansas.

Looking straight at the Arkansan, Choate said:

"I'm not worried about prestige for myself because I don't expect to hold this position long. I came here for three months and have been here for two years. Somebody else has got to take it off my shoulders."

Undercover differences between the committee and the FACA, which have been causing the Administration considerable trouble, were brought into the open at the first hearing on the new legislation requested by President Roosevelt.

Single Rule Provided.

The FACA draft was revised by the Democrats to provide that a single commissioner be put in charge of the distilling, brewing and other beverage industries under the Secretary of Treasury. The FACA had urged creation of a separate commission.

In opposing the committee's revision, Choate was asked by Representative Crowther (Republican), New York whether he was for or against the bill.

"It is not the draft we sent up," Choate said, adding, however, that it contained much that was in the original proposal. He said he favored making it an independent institution and that "it ought to be a board."

"If there ever were a case in the world that requires an independent agency, this one does," Choate said.

Backed Lower Taxes.

He added that the committee should leave "responsibility where it absolutely rests" instead of having the Secretary of the Treasury pass on the personnel and regulations issued by the administrator.

Throughout nearly two years of his administration of FACA, Choate said, his only difference with Secretary Morgenthau was on the "volume of taxation." Choate has urged lower taxes as a means of driving out the bootlegger.

He contended, however, that the Secretary "knows nothing whatever about regulation" of the liquor industry or surpressing evils in it. The purpose of the FACA, he said, was to prevent evils that had brought about prohibition.

Representative Vinson (Democrat), Kentucky, speaking in defense of the Administration change, said "some of us felt there ought to be more teamwork" between the Treasury and the liquor regulation agency.

Duce to Bolt League, Make Own Accords

Will Act Similarly to Britain on International Pacts.

Naval Race Is Seen as France Considers Enlarging Fleet.

The Situation Abroad

Premier Mussolini was reported planning to ignore the League of Nations in negotiating future international accords as a result of the Anglo-German action.

France considered enlarging her navy in answer to the Anglo-German naval agreement which, it was charged, wrecked the 1922 Washington pact.

Great Britain will seek to spread Germany's future naval building over the longest possible period.

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

Rome, June 19.—Premier Benito Mussolini intends to act in future similarly to Great Britain on international accords, without bothering to consult the League of Nations, it was learned on high authority tonight.

The Italian government considered Britain's private signing of a naval understanding with Germany the greatest blow to the League's prestige since Japan withdrew from Geneva over the Manchurian seizure.

Britain was heavily censured here for presenting to the world the accomplished fact of a pact with Germany permitting Adolf Hitler nearly to triple the Reich's sea strength, ly to triple the Reich's sea strength, bringing it to 400,000 tons.

Severely Criticised.

Il Duce and his ministers feel England should have consulted with the other interested powers, including France and Italy.

Italy finds no fault with this procedure if it is to be general, but pointed out that her East African policy—rushing troops to her colonies bordering on Abyssinia—was severely criticized by her neighboring states, particularly England, for daring to act alone.

It is claimed here that England in signing the German naval pact acted precisely as Italy intends to act in Abyssinia in any similar cases, in or out of the league.

Decided Unrest Seen.

It was emphasized that the Washington Treaty of 1922 was signed after all the powers had discussed their naval needs and their relations with each other. At that time Germany, under the Treaty of Versailles, had no navy and hence was not invited to the conference. But now, when the Reich is about to rearm, England hastens to complete an agreement with her before any of the others have had time to appraise their various positions.

Mussolini's utterances during his visit to Sardinia clearly indicated he is not afraid of world opinion.

Furthermore, the movements of Japan in North China are construed as an indication of decided unrest in the international field, and each nation with any militant aspirations now is determined to seize whatever it can while the opportunity is ripe.

Japan's strides in eastern Asia, Germany's challenge to Europe in defying the Versailles Treaty and England's separate naval action with Berlin were cited by political authorities as examples of forces, once dormant, now movnig swiftly and in some cases already in full operation.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, June 19.—France tonight was discussing enlarging her navy in answer to the Anglo-German naval agreement which, it was freely asserted, wrecked the 1922 Washington Treaty.

A naval race was forecast in quarters close to the Chamber of Deputies' naval committee as result of the accord allowing the Reich naval tonnage 35 per cent of Great Britain's.

Members of the committee, which met secretly, said its consensus was that the Washington Treaty was dead and France was free to build whatever warships she chose. The majority, it was stated, favored building up the French fleet at once.

Laval "Stupefied."

Premier Pierre Laval told the chamber's foreign affairs committee he was "stupefied" by the Anglo-German agreement. Members of the navy committee used like expressions.

Laval and his naval minister, Francois Pietri, were requested to appear before the committee Friday to discuss enlargement of France's fleet of 600,000 tons, of which, members said, roughly 400,000 tons are available for Mediterranean service and 200,000 for Atlantic.

The Atlantic fleet has been quietly strengthened during recent months, however, through removal of ships from the Mediterranean toward the North Sea. The navy's second squadron, responsible for protection of the coast from the North Sea to the Gulf of Gascogne, has been more than doubled, with the addition of one battleship, two new destroyers and four torpedo boats. Twenty-five submarines, including one which is the world's

40 Leaders in Prison Mine Riot Face Solitary Cells in Kansas

By the Associated Press.

Lansing, Kans., June 19.—Solitary confinement faced some 40 Kansas penitentiary prisoners tonight as officials moved to discipline leaders of a wild, but bloodless mutiny which resulted in damage estimated at $25,000 to the prison coal mine.

Reports state charges might be filed against the mutineers were denied by Warden Lacey Simpson—the soft-spoken former Kansas farmer who participated in a final charge which brought the convicts' surrender early today after 21 hours of rioting.

"There have been other riots and nothing like that resulted," the bronzed warden drawled. "All we do is put them in solitary. The time they stay in will depend on their individual records and attitude."

The 348 rioting prisoners lost on all counts in their demands for the discharge of Dr. David F. Parker, 32-year-old penitentiary physician, "better cooked food," and immunity from punishment as the price of their submission.

Members of the prison board of administration, called here yesterday, left Warden Simpson in charge of disciplinary measures.

Steps were taken quickly to appraise the damage and seek out leaders of the men who seized control of the mine shortly after descending Tuesday and hung on with guards as hostages until conquered by smoke and guns.

It was estimated loss from fire and sabotage would not exceed $25,000, including burned timbers, collapsed sidewalls, burned coal cars and demolition of two $5,000 electric motors.

Mine Superintendent Robert Murray was held with guards throughout the day until late last night. He had entered the mine to negotiate.

Spectacular and paced with grave potentialities though it was, the strike was singular harmless. Fire, gas, sabotage, bullets and threats of angry men and determined guards were used without dangerous injury to a man—or even to a mine mule.

The strikers' terms first were telephoned to the warden by the mutineers. Murray brought them in person when he was released.

Warden Simpson, fearful of bloodshed, held off until early today before ordering a mass attack. He personally participated in the final thrust of several score armed guards deep into the recesses where the strikers were intrenched.

When smoke from their own fires of hay and wood was turned against them with the reversing of ventilator fans, strikers threw up their hands.

They made no demonstration when fed at 7 a. m. Quietly, even sheepishly, they went back to their cells.

President Calls on Congress To Levy New Tax on Wealth; Social and Wagner Bills Pass

Pensions, Job Insurance Health Reforms Pass on 76-6 Ballot.

Clark Amendment Carries in Battle

Exemption of Private Systems From Plan Held Legal Peril.

By Robert C. Albright.

The Administration's social security program, carrying old-age pensions, unemployment insurance and sweeping health reforms, yesterday was approved by the Senate by an overwhelming 76-to-6 vote.

Passage came after a damaging defeat dealt the leadership by conservative Democrats through an amendment exempting private pension systems from the Government's compulsory annuity plan.

Sponsored by Senator J Bennett Champ Clark (Democrat), Missouri, the amendment leaves the measure, already subject to serious constitutional doubts, open to fresh threats of Supreme Court invalidation.

It was adopted, 51 to 35, over vain protests by leaders that the change will endanger the entire program. The bill now goes to conference with the House, which already had passed the broad measure.

Fourteen Senate Republicans, one Progressive and one Farmer-Laborite joined 60 Democrats in voting for passage. Only one Democrat, Senator A. Harry Moore, of New Jersey, voted with five Republicans—Austin, Vermont; Hale, Maine; Hastings and Townsend, Delaware, and Metcalf, of Rhode Island—against the bill.

One important amendment discarded from the bill all provision for voluntary annuities purchasable from the Government over and above the compulsory old-age pension plan. This provision, which would have permitted purchase of supplementary Federal annuities up to $100 monthly, was not in the House bill. Senator Augustine Lonergan (Democrat), Connecticut, moved that it be stricken from the Senate measure. The sidetracking of the voluntary plan, however, came with a "no" voice vote on the Senate committee's own amendment.

A half-dozen other modifying amendments were forced into the bill in the rush to passage, but a move by Senator Thomas P. Gore (Democrat), of Oklahoma, to inject the bonus issue was beaten back. Gore's amendment, which would have merely "authorized" payment of the bonus, was defeated by a voice vote.

Rally Behind George.

Successful in their attempt to exempt employes and employers now operating under company retirement plans from the gross 6 per cent pay roll tax imposed to finance the Government's compulsory annuity plan, conservatives rallied behind Senator Walter F. George (Democrat), of Georgia, in an attempt to substitute two new titles for the Federal pension plan.

But the George amendment, which would have fostered standard schedules of benefits under privately operated plans, was thrust aside without a record vote.

An effort was made by Senator Daniel O. Hastings (Republican), Delaware, to eliminate the entire contributary old-age pension plan, but this likewise was defeated by a 63-to-15 vote. Hastings joined Senator George and others in predicting that the compulsory plan would eventually break down of its own great weight.

An amendment by Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, which would have taken care of persons over 65 in States unable to provide relief for them, went the same route by a 60 to 18 ballot. This would have forced the Government to supply whatever was necessary to bring monthly pensions in all States up to $30.

But one broadly liberalizing amendment, put forward by Senator Richard B. Russell, jr. (Democrat), Georgia, was adopted. It would allow Federal payment of $15 monthly pensions to persons over 65 in States not now having their own pension plan. The payment could be made during a two-year period of grace, during which the States presumably would attempt to work out their own pension systems.

Another amendment accepted by the Senate would prohibit interlocking directorates between insurance companies and firms operating their own retirement systems, throw open their books to Government inspection, and deny rebates by insurance companies to firms covered by their pension policies.

A further Senate change will make possible payment of pensions to persons permanently blind, by Federal monthly contributions up to $15 monthly to States pensioning their blind residents under an approved plan.

Chairman Pat Harrison, of the Senate Finance Committee, made a vigorous but unavailing effort to de-

Measure on Labor Disputes Adopted After House Debate

Collective Bargaining Propo Usal Now Goes to Conference.

The Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill, clinching collective bargaining rights of workers and eliminating all employer-dominated company unions, yesterday was passed by the House without a record vote.

Pasage came after nearly 7 hours debate, during which the labor measure was roundly scored as "unconstitutional." An effort to send the bill back to committee for further study was shouted down and a demand for the "ayes" and "nos" was rejected when only a scattering of members supported the requested.

The bill, which is high up on the Administration's list of "must" legislation, now goes back to the Senate, which already has passed the measure, in slightly altered form. A conference probably will be asked to iron out differences.

It was the third major Administration measure to pass the House in as many days and today leaders plan to call up a fourth—the second deficiency bill. The controversial AAA amendments and extension of $502,000,000 in existing nuisance taxes, passed earlier this week.

Amendments to the labor bill were voted down almost as fast as they were offered, but two material changes were written into the measure.

The House upset recommendations of its own committe and by a 130-to-48 vote accepted original provisions of the Senate bill, setting up the National Lebor Relations Board as an independent agency, to administer the act, with quasi-judicial functions. The committee had asked that the board be placed under supervision of the Department of Labor. They were backed in this by Secretary of Labor Perkins and President Wil-

Bloc Removes Holding Bill's Death Penalty

Rayburn Visits President After Split Develops Over Measure.

By the Associated Press.

A sharp split over the Administration utility bill developed between the White House and Capitol Hill yesterday when a House group virtually extracted from the measure the "death sentence" for holding companies just as President Roosevelt re-emphasized his advocacy of the provision.

Quickly, Chairman Rayburn (Democrat), Texas, conferred with the Chief Executive. He acted after an Interstate Commerce subcommittee had substituted regulatory language for the Senate-approved provision directing the end of all but "necessary" holding companies by 1942.

"We only discussed the procedure for getting this bill up," Rayburn said of his White House visit, adding that he had told the President the measure, still to be considered by the full committee, would be ready for House action next week.

"If I had had my way, the section on the holding companies would be much stronger than it is," Rayburn said.

What his sub-committee approved was a provision that the Securities Commission may require a holding company to confine operations to one integrated public utility system, unless it is found not to be necessary in the public interest.

In the latter event, the SEC may

Widely Varied Views Greet Tax Proposals

Message Evokes Praises, Prediction Plan Would Bar Recovery.

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt's tax message yesterday evoked reactions ranging from high praise by most Democrats and some Republicans to minority assertions that the proposals would retard recovery.

Here is some of the Senate and House comment:

Senator Long (Democrat), of Louisiana, who sought to put his "share-the-wealth" program into the social security bill: "I have no faith in his promises, but if he'll come along and actually bust up every big fortune in America, we'd be out of the depression in 24 hours."

McKellar for Levies.

Representative Snell, the Republican leader: "I think it was a fine stump speech. It looks like the President is trying to get the jump on Huey Long and the other share-the-wealth people. The effect of the whole statement in my judgment will be to retard the improvement hoped for this summer."

Senator McNary, Republican leader: "At this late hour, I can't believe the President expects legislation of this character during this session of the Congress. It would continue the session indefinitely."

Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee: "I've always believed

The President's Message to Congress Urging Increased Taxes on Wealth

The text of the President's message to Congress on taxes follows:

To the Congress of the United States:

As the fiscal year draws to its close it becomes our duty to consider the broad question of tax methods and policies. I wish to acknowledge the timely efforts of the Congress to lay the basis through its committees for administrative improvements, by careful study of the revenue systems of our own and of other countries. These studies have made it very clear that we need to simplify and clarify our revenue laws.

The Joint Legislative Committee, established by the revenue act of 1926, has been particularly helpful to the Treasury Department. The members of that committee have generously consulted with administrative officials, not only on broad questions of policy but on important and difficult tax cases.

On the basis of these studies and of other studies conducted by officials of the Treasury, I am able to make a number of suggestions of important changes in our policy of taxation. These are based on the broad principle that if a government is to be prudent its taxes must produce ample revenues without discouraging enterprise; and if it is to be just it must distribute the burden of taxes equitably. I do not believe that our present system of taxation completely meets this test. Our revenue laws have operated in many ways to the unfair advantage of the few, and they have done little to prevent an unjust concentration of wealth and economic power.

With the enactment of the income tax law in 1913 the Federal Government began to apply effectively the widely accepted principle that taxes should be levied in proportion to ability to pay and in proportion to the benefits received. Income was wisely chosen as the measure of benefits and of ability to pay. This was and still is a wholesome guide for national policy.

Message From Roosevelt Urges Levies on Huge Incomes, Gifts.

No Action Probable In Present Session

Sharing of Riches Aim; Plan Also Affects Corporations.

By Felix Bruner.

Heavy taxes designed to reduce large incomes and to prevent concentration of great wealth were asked by President Roosevelt in a surprise message to Congress late yesterday.

Basing his suggestions on desirability of a more equal distribution of wealth, the President asked Congress to enact the following legislation:

1. Imposition of inheritance and gift taxes on very large estates, in addition to the present estate taxes. The proceeds would be used for reduction of the national debt.

2. Restriction of very large incomes, particularly those of more than $1,000,000, by very high taxes."

3. A graduated income tax on net corporate incomes starting at 10¾ per cent for small corporations and increasing to 16¾ per cent for the largest companies, in lieu of the present flat rate of 13¾ per cent.

Except for the minimums and maximums for corporation taxes, the President suggested no specific rates.

In addition, the President proposed as long time objectives:

1. Elimination of "unnecessary holding companies in all lines of business."

2. A constitutional amendment to permit taxation by the Government of subsequently issued State and local securities and taxation by State and local governments of future issues of Federal securities.

Not This Session.

Congressional leaders indicated that Congress probably would not attempt to act on any of these highly controversial suggestions at this session, but it is possible that the House Ways and Means Committee will begin a study of the proposals looking to legislation in the next session.

The President based his argument to Congress frankly on a "share-the-wealth" argument, without actually using the phrase which has become Huey Long's slogan.

"Our revenue laws," he declared, "have operated in many ways to the unfair advantage of the few and they have done little to prevent an unjust concentration of wealth and economic power."

Indorsing taxation of income as a "just contribution from those best able to bear it," President Roosevelt declared that "in spite of the great importance in our national life of the efforts and ingenuity of unusual individuals, the people in the mass have inevitably helped to make large fortunes possible. * * * Whether it be wealth achieved through the cooperation of the entire community or riches gained by speculation — in either case the ownership of such wealth or riches represents a great public interest and a great ability to pay."

Huey Says "Amen."

Senator Long, as reading of the message was concluded in the Senate, gained the floor and said:

"I don't want to make any comment. I just want to say 'Amen.'"

Senator Harrison, chairman of the Finance Committee, in commenting on the message later, said:

"To deal with the tax question as suggested in the message will take considerable thought and consideration. It will originate in the House and no doubt the Ways and Means Committee will decide whether to begin now or to undertake a study looking to consideration at the next session."

The message itself did not make clear whether President Roosevelt expected immediate action and

Budget Slash Of 80 Million Is Estimated

Roosevelt's $356,665,000 Deficiency Request Cut to $224,472,000.

By the Associated Press.

Congressmen who control the purse strings did a little figure juggling and expense cutting yesterday, winding up with the conclusion that they would end the session with total appropriations nearly $80,000,000 under amounts asked by the President.

The latest word in their argument was a $224,472,000 deficiency bill submitted to the House by its appropriations committee. President Roosevelt had asked Congress to appropriate $356,665,000 in that bill.

But the appropriations committee, pointing toward the $4,880,000,000 work-relief bill, contended the President should pay for some things he wanted out of that money.

They knocked $76,000,000 off Mr. Roosevelt's estimates for public works. They made a number of other reductions to bring their total cuts to $132,193,000.

Outlay Passes $7,000,000,000.

Meanwhile, expenditures since last July 1 passed the $7,000,000,000 mark—representing a new peacetime high.

Yesterday's Treasury statement, covering operations through June 17, showed total expenditure of $7,000,667,641.

Expendiutres during the comparable period last year were $6,729,318,049.

It was evident, however, that President Roosevelt's expenditure estimate for the financial year will not be reached. His annual budget message provided for expenditures of $8,581,069,026 through June 30, 1935.

The schedule of leaders in their drive toward adjournment was to bring the $224,472,000 bill up in the House and pass it today. They expected few changes, although considerable discussion was forecast on one item in the measure.

Gold Held for Philippines.

The Treasury holds gold belonging to the Philippines as a reserve against Philippine currency. After the dollar was devalued, Congress passed a bill directing that the Treasury credit the Philippines' fund with an amount equal to the increase in the dollar value of the gold.

This year, President Roosevelt asked an appropriation of $23,862,750.78 for payment to the Philippine fund. The aAppropriations Committee yesterday said "No" in most forceful language, reporting it had received no evidence "to show that the Philippines have in any way been injured or suffered any loss" as a result of dollar devaluation.

The new bill covered scores of projects all over the country, including $58,000,000 for public buildings.

It also appropriated $34,675,000 for the Tennessee Valley Authority, $14,000,000 for Boulder Canyon Dam, $20,000,000 for veterans' hospitals, $19,984,000 for the Navy, including stronger bases in Hawaii; $9,850,000 for Army construction, some for Hawaii, and lesser amounts for 23 departments and independent agencies of the Government.

Helen Morgan Granted Divorce From Lawyer

Los Angeles, June 19 (AP).—Helen Morgan, singer and screen actress, was divorced today from Maurice Maschke, jr., Cleveland attorney. The interlocutory decree was granted after reading by her attorney of a deposition by the actress charging cruelty.

When I was talking with someone else, he had the habit of putting his hand under my arm in what appeared to be an affectionate gesture. In reality, he was digging his fingernails into my tender flesh."

Juggler Roosevelt Has Public Dizzy; AAA Action Belies Grass Roots Words; Glass' Filibuster.

By Raymond Clapper

Persons who have been out in the country recently come back reporting that President Roosevelt is trying to juggle too many knives in the air at once. The country is dizzy and is unable to keep abreast of the vast number of Administration projects which are being rushed to Congress pell-mell.

There is inability to understand the Administration's breathless haste, especially when Congress has completed only two major measures this year—the works bill and the NRA extension. Why, with all of the half-completed measures in the works and with the administration of the works program suffering grievously from lack of executive planning and careful attention to detail, does the President keep on pumping in more proposals?

When a person is fatigued, he often finds it impossible to let go, but on the contrary has an irresistible impulse to keep on driving. The Administration gives the impression of being similarly unable to slow down.

In the morning, Mr. Roosevelt sends a message and a bill to the Capitol to stop the issuance of commemorative 50-cent coins and to substitute the issue of commemorative medals through U. S. mints. In the afternoon he sends up an Administration share-the-wealth plan proposing far-reaching measures for inheritance taxes and increased taxes on large private and corporation incomes These measures aim at redistribution of large fortunes. They involve complicated and far-reaching legislation.

Politically they take some of the wind out of Huey Long and other extreme left wingers and head the Administration further toward the left fork. Economically they throw another element of confusion into the situation at a time when a steadying breathing spell is needed more than anything else.

Among the items of unfinished business is the selection of a special counsel to conduct the A. T. & T. investigation ordered by the Senate months ago. Mr. Roosevelt has been so busy that he has been unable to resolve the underground conflict which has developed around this matter between those who want a good fact-finding lawyer and those who want a prosecuting attorney.

As the works relief program was originally understood it would emphasize construction projects. Now owing to the fact that little money can be spent on materials, it will be concerned mainly with hand work, leveling playgrounds, building culverts and other minor chores.

The difference, as one official expressed it, is that "we are going to do things rather than build things."

The sequel to the Grass Roots Republican Convention took place on the House floor this week when the AAA amendments were debated and passed without a roll call, 168 to 52.

Republicans did not even demand that members of the House go on record and say for posterity whether they were for or against continuing AAA. This just one week after Republican Grass Roots spokesmen at Springfield had brought ear-splitting cheers by denouncing AAA bureaucrats, outrageous crop contracts, suppression of the farmer's liberties and intimidation of the Nation's husbandmen by soft-handed fat-heads in Washington who think they can run a farm better than the man behind the plow.

Worse yet, one of the real Grass Roots Republicans in Congress, Representative Hope, of Kansas, ranking Republican on the House Agriculture Committee, eloquently defended AAA and the new amendments. He warned Eastern Republicans that if the processing tax went, the tariff would have to go, too. He said he had no patience with those—he must have meant his own fellow Republicans—who call AAA a program of scarcity. He said it was "essential" that the adjustment program continue and he said it was in entire harmony with former Gov. Lowden's Springfield keynote and with the resolutions adopted by the keynoters.

No one challenged him. The answer is that the hand-picked Grass Roots keynoters denounced with utmost abandon, but when it came to drafting an agricultural plank, the farm Republicans put on a fight in the executive session of the resolutions committee and not only refused to permit it to condemn AAA but also compelled it to draft a statement broad enough to throw a protecting arm around the Administration program.

The keynoters at Springfield and the Republican farm belt Representatives in Congress must not be feeding on the same grass roots.

Yale and Harvard are at it again.

The leading critic of the New Deal, Senator Carter Glass, receives an honorary degree from Yale, while Harvard invites Secretary Henry Wallace, often called the philosopher of the New Deal, to make a commencement week address and report, so to speak, on the objectives of the numerous Harvard alumni, including Franklin D. Roosevelt, '04, who are in key spots at Washington.

Senator Glass is having a triumphal tour this week. In some of the most revered halls of learning he is receiving honorary degrees in recognition of refusal to bend to the forces which swept the New Deal into power. Before going to Yale, he received degrees from Tufts and Princeton.

No one in public life has been so showered with academic honors this year as the half-pint stalwart who on occasion has become so infuriated with the New Dealers that he has denounced them in Latin.

Meantime it all serves as a sort of academic filibuster against the Eccles banking bill, to which Glass is strongly opposed. Because the temporary bank deposit insurance plan expires June 30, the time element is important. Committee work was delayed while Glass was away.

One Government official said, "Senator Glass is beating the banking bill by degrees."

Texas political activities of Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, have sharpened factional troubles there. He and Gov. Allred are at odds and a member of the State Democratic executive committee is seeking to oust young Roosevelt as first vice president of the Young Democrat Clubs of Texas.

This follows reports sent in by Administration scouts that the President's popularity is being endangered by activities of other members of the family. Several independent observers also encountered the same reaction during recent trips into various localities.

The reason Dr. Leon Henderson, chief of the old NRA division of research and planning, did not figure more prominently in the new post-Blue Eagle organization is that he offended some high officials by being too frank when he was asked to investigate the automobile industry for NRA. He hadn't been tipped off and released all of the data instead of making a tactful selection. He wasn't so popular with the high command in NRA after that.

Senator Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, is not only one of the most vehement critics of AAA, but also one of the largest growers of apples. So when the House Agriculture Committee revamped the AAA amendments, a special concession was made to Byrd by omitting apples from control.

As Chairman Marvin Jones explained it, "We didn't want Senator Byrd to have appleplexy."

District to Seek Law To Deport Transients

The District shortly may get a law to enable public welfare authorities to deport vagrants from other cities.

Corporation Counsel E. Barrett Prettyman told the House sub-committee on deficiency appropriations, it was revealed yesterday, that he would consider drafting the measure at once in response to an inquiry of Representative Robert L. Bacon (Democrat), of New York.

After learning from Capt. M. M. Barnard, superintendent of penal institutions, that the District has some 2,500 transients which it can not deport, Bacon called upon Prettyman to draft the legislation.

State Senator Accused Of Trying to Get Bribes

Harrisburg, Pa., June 19 (AP).—Gov. Earle today charged that a State Senator sought "bribes" in connection with administration appropriation bills, and Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti named the Senator as William H. Clark, Chester County Republican. Clark is chairman of the Senate's appropriations committee.

Gov. Earle said he has instructed his secreary, Harry E. Kalodner, and Margiotti to lay all evidence before the Senate. Senator Clark said "I don't know a thing about it," when told of Gov. Earle's charges.

Funeral at Fort Myer For Lochridge Today

Funeral services for Brig. Gen. P. D. Lochridge, U. S. A., retired, member of the Supreme War Council in France during the world conflict, will be held in the Fort Myer chapel today at 3 p. m. Burial will be with full military honors in Arlington National Cemetery.

Gen. Lochridge died Monday at Walter Reed Hospital of heart disease.

Honorary pallbearers will be Maj. Gen. Peter C. Harris, Brig. Gen. Thomas H. Slavens, Brig. Gen. Frederick D. Evans, Brig. Gen. Nathaniel F. McClure, Brig. Gen. Charles Gerhardt and Brig. Gen. David L. Brainard, all retired.

50 Transients Ill From Tainted Food

Indianapolis, June 19 (AP).—Fifty men at a Federal transient bureau here became ill today, apparently from eating tainted food. Two physicians were called to attend them.

The men had been served food from the same relief kitchen that supplied lunches last week to 205 FERA workers who were stricken, one of them dying later. An investigation into the poisoning of the FERA workers has not yet been completed.

Roosevelt For Hopkins' Plans In Ickes Clash

Projects at Low Cost Per Man Favored; Housing Fund Faces Cut.

By the Associated Press.

Amid signs of a growing schism between Harry L. Hopkins and Secretary Ickes, President Roosevelt yesterday hammered anew on the necessity for low-cost work relief projects of the type to be carried out by Hopkins' works progress administration.

The President said at a press conference that $1,800,000,000, segregated for different types of projects at the start of the program, would employ only 1,000,000 men.

Indicating that funds for some of these would be withdrawn, he added that if they were retained only $880 per man would be available for the remaining 2,500,000 he hopes to put to work.

California Plans Cut.

As an example, the President said it would be impossible to carry out the entire $160,000,000 Central Valley development in California. He expressed hope, however, that the State's work progress plan would include some of the projects.

Meanwhile, Ickes called at the White House in what was reported as a final appeal for approval of the entire $249,000,000 recommended for low-cost housing projects. Although he insisted Tuesday that the entire program would be approved despite its high cost, there were indications that the PWA housing division might receive only the $110,000,000 it advanced to help carry on the relief administration.

Neither Ickes nor Hopkins would comment on the disclosure that Harry S. Berry, whom Hopkins recently appointed Tennessee works progress administrator, had been dismissed by Ickes in 1933 as Tennessee PWA engineer. Ickes charged at the time that Berry had advised municipalities they would not be required to pay back the 70 per cent loans on their PWA projects.

Almost One-Third Gone.

Thus far President Roosevelt has approved $1,306,868,160 in allotments from the works relief appropriation, mostly for continuing the relief administration and the Civilian Conservation Corps. Four hundred million dollars has been allotted for highway and grade crossing elimination work and $100,000,000 to pay for work already done under the Hayden-Cartwright road act.

Realization that an average of only $1,100 or $1,200 was available for each man put to work has caused withdrawal of 244 applications totaling $501,830,803.

Continuing their efforts to bring a large number of PWA projects within the scope of the program by trimming per man cost, PWA officials estimated that $100,000,000 of bonds in their revolving fund could be sold within ten days to supplement 45 per cent grants. They said that only the 45 per cent would be charged against the works relief appropriation, which would bring the average cost per man employed down to $959.

Move On to Oust Young Roosevelt

Dallas Democrats to Seek Removal Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

Dallas, Tex., June 19.—Rumbles of contention among Texas Democrats were heard today after it was disclosed a plan was on foot to oust Elliott Roosevelt from the vice presidency of the Young Democratic Clubs of Texas.

Phil Overton, Dallas, member of the State Democratic executive committee, said the movement to remove the President's son from the office would be launched Friday at a meeting of the Dallas County Young Democrats.

Overton said he would introduce a resolution demanding Roosevelt's removal "because he had attempted to have the State convention at Amarillo go on record in favor of a proposed constitutional amendment over-riding the Supreme Court's outlawing the NRA."

'Hill' Bloc Splits With Roosevelt On Utility Bill

limit the operations "to such number of integrated public utility systems as it finds may be included in such holding company system consistent with the public interest."

After November 1, the revised section directs all holding companies to register with the SEC if they wish to engage in interstate operations, but the commission may not take the initative in bringing about a holding company's "simplification" until after January 1, 1938. A company itself may apply earlier for voluntary reorganization.

Observers forecast the new language would not be acceptable to President Roosevelt. Also, unless there should be a sudden shift, they believed the full Interstate Commerce Committee would approve the sub-committee action, while a private House poll was reported to have shown a 40-vote margin against outright abolition of holding companies.

Only yesterday, Mr. Roosevelt, whose personal message brought the abolition privision through the Senate by a single vote, took the occasion of a press conference to reiterate that he favored eventual elimination of holding companies not in a contiguous territory.

He employed a chart to demonstrate how, he said, the $7 earned on a $100 investment by a properly capitalized operating company would zig-zag through perhaps 30 intermediate holding companies until, when it got to the top holding company, it represented about $4.

The objective, Mr. Roosevelt said, is to eliminate intermediate companies. He said he had no objection to holding companies which represent operating companies in adjoining territory.

The President added he would not object to stock being held by one company in another if it were broken up into separate groups, so long as these companies did not attempt interlocking management.

The President said the Senate-approved provision did not affect intrastate companies such as the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey and the Niagara Hudson Co. of New York.

The House sub-committee also modified the section of the bill to regulate power movement. It eliminated the "common carrier" requirement and called for one company to carry energy for another only upon application by a State commission or private company after hearings before the power commission.

Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin: "A splendid message."

Senator Townsend (Republican), of Delaware: "It was a great surprise to everyone in the Senate including the leader on the Democratic side. I should think at this late date it wouldn't have much chance at this session."

Senator Norris (Republican), of Nebraska: "The tax program suits me 100 per cent both on the inheritance tax and the corporation tax. I think he has struck a keynote.

Senator Neely (Democrat), of West Virginia: "One of the most praiseworthy messages that President Roosevelt has ever sent to the Congress. It is the beginning of the end of plutocracy and a lifesaver for democracy."

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana: "I thought it was an excellent message. I would be in favor of action on it at this session."

Senator Clark (Democrat), Missouri: "I am in general sympathy with it."

Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts: "I don't see how some increase in the surtax or inheritance tax can be avoided if we intend to balance the budget."

Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi: "to deal with the tax question as suggested in the message will take considerable thought and consideration."

Representative Martin (Republican), Massachusetts agreed with Snell that the message was "not the kind that will be helpful to recovery at this time."

Representative Fuller (Democrat), Arkansas: "I favor high income and gift taxes. The only thing I have against the President is that he didn't send this message up before."

Peoria Girl's Killer Sought by Science

Police Look to Laboratory Tests for Clew.

By the Associated Press.

Peoria, Ill., June 19.—The search for the slayer of pretty Mildred M. Hallmark, 19-year-old cafeteria hostess, turned to scientific laboratories of crime detection today as rewards for the arrest and conviction of the killer passed $1,600.

Scrapings from under the fingernails of the girl, whose almost nude body was found on a blanket in Springdale Cemetery early Monday after she had been beaten and attacked, were sent to the crime detection laboratory at Northwestern University, Chicago.

Police, whose questioning of half a dozen persons failed to disclose a lead, hoped that science might detect in the tiny bits of accumulations a definite clew on which to continue the investigation.

Funeral services for Miss Hallmark were held today, with more than 100 of her former schoolmates at the services.

Ethiopia Opens Army Training For All Males

800,000 Well-Armed Men Ready, Is Empire's Hint to Italy.

By the Associated Press.

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, June 19. Voluntary part-time military training for every male Ethiopian got under way today as officials asserted this empire, if need be, could put an army of 800,000 well-armed men in the field.

Echoing Emperor Haile Selassie's oft-repeated statement that Ethiopia would be ready to fight "if forced to defend her independence," the officials said armament and equipment would show "incomparable superiority" over that the Ethiopians had at Adua.

[An ill-armed and ill-equipped, although numerically superior, Ethiopian army of about 100,000 men smashingly defeated an Italian expeditionary force of 15,000 at Adua on March 1, 1896, killing an estimated 7,000 white and native Italian troops and taking some 3,000 prisoners.]

Ethiopia's army of 800,000, the officials said, would consist of 20,000 expertly trained infantrymen, 700,000 ordinary infantrymen and 80,000 cavalrymen organized on the old feudal basis.

[Italy, which for months has been shipping men and munitions to her East African colonies, is expected to have about 225,000 soldiers and workmen there by September, in addition to native troops. Military observers do not expect any hostilities before September, when the rainy season ends.]

Authoritative quarters said the new voluntary and unofficial military training program was due to increasingly bitter feeling resulting from Benito Mussolini's recent moves to mobilize Italy's military strength.

The program, "for defense of Ethiopian independence," was similar to the civilian training plan of other nations. Males of all classes and ages participated.

New Drive on Nazis Opened by Austria

Even Children Punished in Latest Purge.

By the Associated Press.

Vienna, June 19.—The Austrian government today celebrated the second anniversary of its prohibition of the Nazi party from Austria by "purging the National Socialist taint from numerous official organizations."

Seven officers of the federal army garison at Salzburg were arrested on a charge of participating in Nazi activities. Even children are under observation and 1,000 have been excluded from the Austrian youth movement because their patriotism was questioned. Officials said more would be expelled.

In Vienna, a stimulated anti-Nazi drive has resulted in 60 arrests in the last 24 hours. The determination of the government was expressed by Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, who stated:

"The world must understand this regime will not permit this land to be set afire again and Austria is firmly resolved to maintain order and peace."

Children to Give Program Tonight

100 Will Appear in Plays and Specialty Dances.

More than 100 children in classes at Chevy Chase, Petworth and Roosevelt Centers will give a joint program in Roosevelt Auditorium, Thirteenth and Allison streets northwest, tonight at 8 p. m., when they will present several plays and a variety of tap and specialty dances.

Included among the 22 numbers are two plays: "How Boots Befooled the King" and "Pineapple Salad," by the Sock and Buskin Club. Another interesting number will be "Fleet's In," including dances entitled "A Sailor's Sweetheart," "A Girl in Every Port," "Raggin' the Waves" and "The Crew."

The program, sponsored by the Community Center Department of the District of Columbia Public Schools, will be under the supervision of Mrs. A. L. Irving and Misses Ivy Randall, Margaret Reed, Adelaide Courtney and Amelie Preische. An admission of 25 cents is asked to defray expenses of the entertainment.

Manhattan Sails Late, Result of Radio Strike

New York, June 19 (AP).—Delayed more than five hours by a radio operators' strike, the United States Liner Manhattan sailed for Europe late today after a tentative agreement had been negotiated.

The ship, which increased its radio personnel from three to five under the temporary arrangement, carried 1,089 passengers and 7,900 sacks of mail. Further negotiations on wage scales and union recognition were set for June 26.

Roosevelt Message to Congress Urging Tax on Wealth

It should be retained as the governing principle of Federal taxation. The use of other forms of taxes is often justifiable, particularly for temporary periods; but taxation according to income is the most effective instrument yet devised to obtain just contribution from those best able to bear it and to avoid placing onerous burdens upon the mass of our people.

The movement toward progressive taxation of wealth and of income has accompanied the growing diversification and interrelation of effort which marks our industrial society. Wealth in the modern world does not come merely from individual effort; it results from a combination of individual effort and of the manifold uses to which the community puts that effort. The individual does not create the product of his industry with his own hands; he utilizes the many processes and forces of mass production to meet the demands of a national and international market.

Therefore, in spite of the great importance in our national life of the efforts and ingenuity of unusual individuals, the people in the mass have inevitably helped to make large fortunes possible. Without mass cooperation great accumulations of wealth would be impossible save by unhealthy speculation. As Andrew Carnegie put it, "Where wealth accrues honorably, the people are always silent partners." Whether it be wealth achieved through the cooperation of the entire community or riches gained by speculation—in either case the ownership of such wealth or riches represents a great public interest and a great ability to pay.

I.

My first proposal, in line with this broad policy, has to do with inheritances and gifts. The transmission from generation to generation of vast fortunes by will, inheritance, or gift is not consistent with the ideals and sentiments of the American people.

The desire to provide security for one's self and one's family is natural and wholesome, but it is adequately served by a reasonable inheritance. Great accumulations of wealth can not be justified on the basis of personal and family security. In the last analysis such accumulations amount to the perpetuation of great and undesirable concentration of control in a relatively few individuals over the employment and welfare of many, many others.

Such inherited economic power is as inconsistent with the ideals of this generation as inherited political power was inconsistent with the ideals of the generation which established our Government.

Creative enterprise is not stimulated by vast inheritances. They bless neither those who bequeath nor those who receive. As long ago as 1907, in a message to Congress, President Theodore Roosevelt urged this wise social policy:

"A heavy progressive tax upon a very large fortune is in no way such a tax upon thrift or industry as a like tax would be on a small fortune. No advantage comes either to the country as a whole or to the individuals inheriting the money by permitting the transmission in their entirety of the enormous fortunes which would be affected by such a tax; and as an incident to its function of revenue raising, such a tax would help to preserve a measurable equality of opportunity for the people of the generations growing to manhood."

A tax upon inherited economic power is a tax upon static wealth, not upon that dynamic wealth which makes for the healthy diffusion of economic good.

Those who argue for the benefits secured to society by great fortunes invested in great businesses should note that such a tax does not affect the essential benefits that remain after the death of the creator of such a business. The mechanism of production that he created remains. The benefits of corporate organization remain. The advantage of pooling many investments in one enterprise remains. Governmental privileges such as patents remain. All that is gone is the initiative, energy and genius of the creator—and death has taken these away.

I recommend, therefore, that in addition to the present estate taxes, there should be levied an inheritance, succession and legacy tax in respect to all very large amounts received by any one legatee or beneficiary; and to prevent, so far as possible, evasions of this tax, I recommend further the imposition of gift taxes suited to this end.

Because of the basis on which this proposed tax is to be levied and also because of the very sound public policy of encouraging a wider distribution of wealth, I strongly urge that the proceeds of this tax should be specifically segregated and applied, as they accrue, to the reduction of the national debt. By so doing, we shall progressively lighten the tax burden of the average taxpayer and, incidentally, assist in our approach to a balanced budget.

II.

The disturbing effects upon our national life that come from great inheritance of wealth and power can in the future be reduced, not only through the method I have just described, but through a definite increase in the taxes now levied upon very great individual net incomes.

To illustrate: The application of the principle of a graduated tax now stops at $1,000,000 of annual income. In other words, while the rate for a man with a $6,000 income is double the rate for one with a $4,000 income, a man having a $5,000,000 annual income pays at the same rate as one whose income is $1,000,000.

Social unrest and a deepening sense of unfairness are dangers to our national life which we must minimize by rigorous methods. People know that vast personal incomes come not only through the effort or ability or luck of those who receive them, but also because of the opportunities for advantage which government itself contributes. Therefore the duty rests upon the Government to restrict such incomes by very high taxes.

III.

In the modern world scientific invention and mass production have brought many things within the reach of the average man which in an earlier age were available to few. With large-scale enterprise has come the great corporation drawing its resources from widely diversified activities and from a numerous group of investors. The community has profited in those cases in which large-scale production has resulted in substantial economies and lower prices.

The advantages and the protections conferred upon corporations by Government increase in value as the size of the corporation increases. Some of these advantages are granted by the State which conferred a charter upon the corporation, others are granted by other States, which, as a matter of grace, allow the corporation to do local business within their borders. But, perhaps, the most important advantages, such as the carrying on of business between two or more States, are derived through the Federal Government—great corporations are protected in a considerable measure from the taxing power and the regulatory power of the States by virtue of the interstate character of their businesses. As the profit to such a corporation increases, so the value of its advantages and protections increases.

Furthermore, the drain of a depression upon the resources of business puts a disproportionate strain upon the modestly capitalized small enterprise. Without such small enterprises our competitive economic society would cease. Size begets monopoly. Moreover, in the aggregate these little businesses furnish the indispensable local basis for those nationwide markets which alone can ensure the success of our mass production industries. Today our smaller corporations are fighting not only for their own local well-being but for that fairly distributed national prosperity which makes large-scale enterprises possible.

It seems only equitable, therefore, to adjust our tax system in accordance with economic capacity, advantage and fact. The smaller corporations should not carry burdens beyond their powers; the vast concentrations of capital should be ready to carry burdens commensurate with their powers and their advantages.

We have established the principle of graduated taxation in respect to personal incomes, gifts and estates. We should apply the same principle to corporations. Today the smallest corporation pays the same rate on its net profits as the corporation which is a thousand times its size.

I, therefore, recommend the substitution of a corporation income tax graduated according to the size of corporation income in place of the present uniform corporation income tax of 13¾ per cent. The rate for smaller corporations might well be reduced to 10¾ per cent, and the rates graduated upward to a rate of 16¾ per cent on net income in the case of the largest corporations, with such classifications of business enterprises as the public interest may suggest to the Congress.

Provision should, of course, be made to prevent evasion of such graduated tax on corporate incomes through the device of numerous subsidiaries or affiliates, each of which might technically qualify as a small concern even though all were in fact operated as a single organization. The most effective method of preventing such evasions would be a tax on dividends received by corporations. Bona fide investment trusts that submit to public regulation and perform the function of permitting small investors to obtain the benefit of diversification of risk may well be exempted from this tax.

In addition to these three specific recommendations of changes in our national tax policies, I commend to your study and consideration a number of others. Ultimately, we should seek through taxation the simplification of our corporate structures through the elimination of unnecessary holding companies in all lines of business. We should likewise discourage unwieldy and unnecessary corporate surpluses. These complicated and difficult questions can not adequately be debated in the time remaining in the present session of this Congress.

I renew, however, at this time the recommendations made by my predecessors for the submission and ratification of a Constitutional amendment whereby the Federal Government will be permitted to tax the income on subsubsequently issued State and local securities and likewise for the taxation by State and local governments of future issues of Federal securities.

In my budget message of January 7 I recommended that the Congress extend the miscellaneous internal revenue taxes which are about to expire and also to maintain the current rates of those taxes which, under the present law, would be reduced. I said then that I considered such taxes necessary to the financing of the budget for 1936. I am gratified that the Congress is taking action on this recommendation.

President Asks Tax to Lessen Massed Wealth

Message to Congress Calls for Big Levies Aimed to Spread Fortune.

Democratic leaders in Congress were looking for further guidance from the White House.

Later at the White House it was said President Roosevelt would welcome action at this session if it could be arranged.

Senator La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin, a member of the finance committee, said he would offer the President's program as an amendment to the nuisance tax bill, in addition to his own plan to lower income tax exemptions and the plan of Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, for an excess profits tax.

Harrison had indicated that the bill, which extends the $502,000,000 nuisance taxes, expiring June 30, would be reported today. The measure has passed the House.

Chairman Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee said he understood the message to be a suggestion for the future. He added that the Senate could add the new taxes to the nuisance tax extension bill, but Harrison indicated he did not approve such a course. The Ways and Means Committee will meet today to consider the President's suggestions.

The nuisance tax bill, which would continue the $502,000,000 in nuisance taxes which expire June 30, is expected to be reported by the Senate Finance Committee today.

Senator Harrison said he believed the President acted wisely in leaving the inheritance tax rate and the rate of taxes on large incomes to the discretion of Congress. He suggested that these taxes should not be of such amount as to destroy completely incomes and estates.

Taking up first his proposal for heavy taxes on inheritances, the President said that transmission of great fortunes from generation to generation "is not consistent with the ideals and sentiments of the American people."

"In the last analysis," he said, "such accumulations amount to the perpetuation of great and undesirable concentration of control in a relatively few individuals over the employment and welfare of many, many others.

"Such inherited economic power is as inconsistent with the ideals of this generation as inherited political power was inconsistent with the ideals of the generation which established our Government."

Declaring that large inheritances "bless neither those who bequeath nor those who receive," the President quoted a message to Congress of President Theodore Roosevelt to support his contention.

Theodore Roosevelt said in his message, as quoted by the President, that no advantage comes to the country as a whole nor to individuals inheriting the money by permitting the transmission in their entirety of enormous fortunes. A heavy tax on large inheritances, Theodore Roosevelt told Congress, "would help to preserve a measurable equality of opportunity for the people of the generations growing to manhood."

Tax On "Static" Wealth.

"A tax upon inherited economic power is a tax upon static wealth, not upon that dynamic wealth which makes for the healthy diffusion of economic good," President Roosevelt continued.

The President argued that such a tax as he proposed would not affect the essential benefits that remain after the death of the creator of a business.

"The mechanism of production that he created remains," the President said. "The benefits of corporate organization remain. The advantage of pooling many investments in one enterprise remains. Governmental privileges such as patents remain. All that is gone is the initiative, energy and genius of the creator—and death has taken these away."

In making his specific recommendation for an inheritance tax, the President said he was suggesting a gift tax in addition to prevent so far as possible evasions of the inheritance tax.

The proceeds of the inheritance and gift taxes, the President suggested, should be specifically segregated and applied, as they accrue, to the reduction of the national debt.

"By so doing," he added, "we shall progressively lighten the tax burden of the average taxpayer and, incidentally, assist in our approach to a balanced budget."

In taking up the second point in his program, heavy taxes for large incomes, the President said that such taxes would eventually reduce the size of great inheritances.

Discrepancy Cited.

He pointed out that while the tax rate for a man earning $6,000 is twice that of a man earning $4,000, a man earning $5,000,000 pays at the same rate as a man earning $1,000,000.

"Social unrest and a deepening sense of unfairness," he continued, "are dangers to our national life that we must minimize by rigorous methods. People know that vast personal incomes come not only through the effort or ability or luck of those who receive them, but also because of the opportunities for advantages which government itself contributes. Therefore, the duty rests upon the Government to restrict such incomes by very high taxes."

In suggesting a reduction in taxes for small corporations and an increase for large ones, the President said that "the advantages and the protections conferred upon corporations by Government increases in value as the size of the corporation increases."

He pointed out that many large corporations are protected in a measure from the taxing power and the regulatory power of States by the interstate character of their business.

"Furthermore, the drain of a depression upon the reserves of businesses puts a disproportionate strain upon the modestly capitalized small enterprise. Without such small enterprises our competitive economic society would cease. Size begets monopoly. * * * Today our smaller corporations are fighting not only for their own local well-being but for that fairly distributed national prosperity which makes large-scale enterprise possible."

The President said that corporation taxes should be graduated on the same theory that personal income taxes are graduated.

Would Balk Evasion.

Foreseeing attempts at evading the higher taxes by splitting up of corporations, President Roosevelt said the most effective method of preventing such evasions would be a tax on dividends received by corporations.

"Bona fide investment trusts that submit to public regulation and perform the function of permitting small investors to obtain the benefit of diversification of risk may well be exempted from this tax," he added.

Concluding his specific recommendations, the President devoted a brief section of his message to his long-range proposals.

"Ultimately," he said, "we should seek through taxation the simplification of our corporate structures through the elimination of unnecessary holding companies in all lines of business."

This was the President's first public suggestion that he contemplates extension of the pending legislation for elimination of "unnecessary" utility holding companies.

"We should likewise discourage unwieldy and unnecessary corporate surpluses," he added.

He said, however, that he did not believe these "difficult and complicated questions" could be debated adequately in the time remaining in this session of Congress.

He made his suggestion for a constitutional amendment to permit taxation of public bonds without comment except that he was renewing "recommendations made by my predecessors."

The message concluded with an expression of gratification that Congress was acting on extension of the nuisance taxes and maintaining the current rates of other taxes which would have been reduced under the present law.

Surprise to Many.

The message came as a surprise to all except a few leaders. Earlier in the day, the President had said in his press conference that he might send a message to Congress before evening, but he declined to indicate its nature.

largest, also have been returned to the fleet.

Reinforcement Seen.

It is expected the fleet will be further reinforced at the end of maneuvers in the Atlantic off Morocco, considered the most important since the World War, now going on. Pietri will review 80 warships off Brest when the maneuvers are finished.

Even so, members of the naval committee argued that France would be hopelessly outclassed in the Atlantic if Germany were allowed 400,000 tons of fighting ships. All units now in the Mediterranean, they said, are needed to protect long coastlines and transport colonial troops.

Britain Seeks to Delay Reich Naval Building

By the Associated Press.

London, June 19.—Great Britain, continuing naval negotiations with Germany to smooth out the working of their new 100-35 naval ratio pact, will seek to spread Germany's future naval building over the longest period possible.

That objective was authoritatively disclosed tonight as plans were pushed forward for naval conversations with the French, Italian and Russian governments, in that order, at London.

A supplementary agreement now being discussed with Gen. Joachim Von Ribbentrop, Adolf Hitler's naval ambassador, and his colleagues, will tentatively determine the dates of construction, size and types of Nazi warships, it was revealed.

It was understood Britain would like to spread the Reich's construction over seven years, while Germany was anxious to complete her post-Versailles building program in four years.

Scout Paris Report.

While the ratio agreement limiting the Reich's fleet to 35 per cent of Britain's both by total tonnage and generally by categories is binding upon Britain and Germany regardless of what other powers do, supplementary action, it was explained, will be dependent upon their action.

Meanwhile, reports reached well-informed diplomatic quarters here that Germany already had started building one super-battleship expected to be of about 30,000 tons.

These sources, however, were skeptical of French reports that Hitler had authorized construction of several large warships and 2,000-ton submarines.

For the moment, it was understood, Germany does not intend to build U-boats larger than 800 tons despite the important concession Britain made in virtually promising her equality of undersea strength after "friendly discussion." Authoritative quarters said this government had not abandoned hopes of eventually eliminating the submarine from warfare.

5 Killed in Mexican Skirmish.

Mexico City, June 19 (AP).—Dispatches to the newspaper, Excelsior, said today that five persons were killed and three wounded when Agrarians boarded a train near Zamora, Michoacan, and opened fire on enemies. The fight was said to have been due to a feud.

Japanese Keep Military Show In North China

Arms Bristle in Tientsin Despite Amicable Settlement.

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Tientsin, China, June 19.—Japan's army, hailing prospects for "amicable settlement" of the North China controversy, continued an almost uninterrupted parade of its military might today.

Even as spokesmen asserted China's compliance with the army's demands made military action extremely unlikely, newly arrived troops of the Tientsin garrison staged sham battles throughout the Tientsin area.

The rattle of machine gun fire in the Japanese concession combined with the roar of airplanes overhead and the rumble of armored cars to give Tientsin residents an idea of what real war might be.

Troops "Sightseeing."

A Japanese army official said the garrison troops, continually riding through streets in the Chinese quarter in armored cars, were merely "sightseeing."

Japanese airplanes basing on the Chinese airfield here were flying over the city, it was explained, to oversee the continued evacuation of Chinese troops.

While the national government at Nanking seemingly executed the reported terms of settlement of the "Changpei incident" involving the detention of four Japanese, Japan continued to hold troops at Shanhaikwan for use in the event force was deemed necessary.

It was revealed that the Japanese army had requested the right of exclusive use of one of the two tracks of the Tientsin-Shanhaikwan Railway between Shanhaikwan and Tangshan for troop trains whenever desired.

Dispatches from Peiping said the Pieping branch of the National Government's military council had ordered the 132d Division of Chinese troops in Chahar Province transferred to Shansi, as the Japanese demanded. Another demand, removal of Gov. Sung Cheh-Yuan, was fulfilled yesterday.

Americans Divided.

American businessmen here, already hard hit by China's depression, were divided in their attitude toward the Japanese penetration of North China.

Most important American goods are not competitive with Japanese lines, but petroleum dealers, who now command the lion's share of the trade, were long-faced at the possibility they might eventually be ousted here as they were in Manchukuo.

On the other hand, automobile importers expressed belief they might be benefited if the Japanese finally overtook administration of this area. Machinery and electrical lines were considered likely to feel seriously the pinch of Japanese competition.

British interests apparently stood to suffer in the event of Japanese control due to their heavy investments in the textile industry.

Senate Confirms Fahey in Bank Post

But Russell Says He Should Be Aid to Hitler.

By the Associated Press.

The Senate yesterday confirmed the renomination of John H. Fahey, of Massachusetts, as a member of the Home Loan Bank board after a protest by Senator Russell (Democrat), of Georgia, that Fahey would be better as an "assistant to Hitler or Mussolini."

Russell declared he had "tried for four days" to see Fahey about a matter for a constituent and had been unable to do so.

"It is my belief he is wholly unsuited by temperament and disposition to hold this position in a democracy," the Georgian asserted.

The attack on Fahey, present board chairman, brought a half-dozen Senators to their feet with defenses.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, said it was "inconceivable" that any one of Fahey's character would refuse to see a Senator, and that the Georgian's experience must have been due to a misunderstanding.

3 Dairy Hands Beaten In Milwaukee Strike

Milwaukee, June 19 (AP).—Three employes of the Gridley Dairy Co. were beaten today by men described by the authorities as strike sympathizers. Harold Larson, 30, helper on a milk truck was injured so badly he was taken to a hospital.

James Dalton, driver of the truck, and Louis Adams, another helper, were also beaten but continued on their route after their assailants had fled in four cars. Police said the three men recognized some of their assailants and that warrants would be sworn out. The Gridley Co. is the largest of the three dairies where union drivers and other workers are on strike for a closed shop.

Lutherans May Close Four Church Colleges

Cleveland, June 19 (AP).—A proposal to close four educational institutions having a total assessed valuation of $765,000 faced the opening session today of the thirty-sixth triennial convention of the Missouri Synod of the Lutheran Church.

The schools involved are Concordia colleges, at Portland, Oreg., and Conover, N. C.; Concordia Seminary, at Springfield, Ill., and St. Paul's College, at Concordia, Mo. A "committee of 13," headed by the Rev. Henry A. Grueber, of Milwaukee, submitted recommendations that all be closed after completing an educational survey over a three-year period.

Motor Group Backs Free Falls Bridge

The advisory board of the American Automobile Association, District of Columbia Motor Club, unanimously adopted the report of a sub-committee favoring the construction of a free bridge at Great Falls at its monthly meeting yesterday.

Two purposes would be accomplished by such a bridge, the report said. These would be the forming of a connecting link for a North and South highway, which would permit commercial traffic to pass by Washington, thus relieving, to some extent, congestion in crowded areas, and creating the possibility of developing a great scenic park for Maryland and Virginia, adjoining the Potomac River.

The advisory board held unanimously that the bridge should be constructed so as not to interfere in any way with the development of power at Great Falls if such a project should be undertaken.

First Lindbergh Law Execution Is Ordered

Muskogee, Okla., June 19 (AP).—The first execution under the Lindbergh kidnaping law was decreed today by Federal Judge R. L. Williams, who sentenced Arthur Gooch, Texas and Oklahoma outlaw, to die Friday, September 13, for kidnaping two Paris, Tex., officers last November.

The death penalty was recommended by a Durant jury at the close of Gooch's trial on the kidnaping charge.

Hauptmann's Freedom Plea Set for Today

Court at Trenton to Hear Opposing Counsel Battle Over Verdict.

By the Associated Press.

Trenton, N. J., June 19.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's fight for life enters the second stage tomorrow.

Four months and a week after his conviction at Flemington for murder of the Lindbergh baby, his counsel will go into the Court of Errors and Appeals to ask for a reversal of the verdict of the eight men and four women who said he must die in the electric chair.

Behind locked doors in its white-walled, red-curtained room on the fourth floor of the State House annex, the Court of 14 Judges will listen for four and a half hours to oral arguments. The defense arguments will take three hours. The State will have half that time.

He Has Two Other Appeals.

Should Hauptmann lose he still has recourse to the Court of Pardons, and from the court, should there again be an unfavorable decision, his lawyers have indicated they will appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The Court of Errors and Appeals will not announce its decision until the autumn, and tomorrow's proceedings will be preliminary to a summer's study of the reasons set forth by the defense for reversal of the trial verdict and of the long record of the 32-day trial itself.

The defense will charge the State offered varying theories as to the cause of death in the case. They will argue that Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, presiding judge, erred in admitting and rejecting certain testimony; that Attorney General David T. Wilentz's summation was inflammatory and that he bullied and bull-dozed witnesses and Hauptmann himself.

Defense Cites 193 Reasons.

The defense has cited 193 reasons why a new trial should be granted. Tomorrow's proceedings will be chiefly a restatement of these with legal citations.

Hauptmann will not be in court. Attendance will be limited to between 50 and 75 persons, lawyers and regularly assigned reporters and a handful of State troopers.

Precautions have been taken by the court to permit no one to enter or leave court except at the regular noon recess, and no news will come from the court except at that recess and after the adjournment at 3 o'clock.

The fate of Hauptmann will rest probably in the hands of 13 men. It was widely reported today, but not confirmed, that Judge Henry T. Kays, a lay judge of the court for 11 years, will be named a vice chancellor shortly. As vice chancellor he would cease to be a member of the Court of Errors and Appeals.

Hauptmann needs a majority vote to win a new trial. A tie would sustain his conviction.

Lad Nabbed in Holdup Blames Girl Friends

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 19.—The high cost of showing girl friends a good time was pleaded today by a youth booked on a robbery charge as Francesco de Zela Pardo, jr., 19, who described himself as a son of the Peruvian consul general here.

The youth was arrested last night in a jewelry store, where police charged he pointed a .22-caliber revolver at the proprietor, Louis Marshall, before a police interruption.

Eleven dollars was found on the floor of the store after the arrest, which was precipitated by a passer-by's report to a corner patrolman that a holdup was in progress.

The youth said his father had given him $30 weekly allowance since he was 15. Detectives said they asked why he had attempted a robbery.

"The girls in New York want to be shown a good time by being taken to dinners, shows and supper clubs," they quoted the young man, who said he had been in this country only 5½ months. "And that takes money."

Alaskan Colonists Ask Investigation

Complaint Sent to President and Senators.

By the Associated Press.

Palmer, Alaska, June 19.—Patrick Hemmer and Mrs. I. M. Sandvik, Matanuska Valley colonists, who said they represent 40 other colonists, sent complaints today regarding project conditions to President Roosevelt, Senators Couzens, Schall, Vandenberg and La Follette; Harry Hopkins, relief administrator, and Gov. John W. Troy of Alaska.

Asking for an investigation, they asserted the cabins are not being constructed or wells dug; no preparations are under way for school; there is not sufficient medical aid available; roads are not being built into the tracts as promised and prices at the commissary are much higher than at the Palmer store.

Bishop of Exeter Assails U.S. Rule

By the Associated Press.

London, June 19.—A fiery attack on democracy in general and the American system of government in particular was launched in the House of Lords today by the Bishop of Exeter during debate on the India home rule bill.

The 72-year-old bishop, his white beard bobbing up and down in emphasis of his points, contrasted democracy with the Mussolini and Hitler dictatorship in Italy and Germany, distinctly to the advantage of the latter.

Money-controlled politics and gangsters, he said, make the United States an exceedingly poor example for the Indian people who, under the provisions of the bill, would have a modified Federal system of government.

He asserted that he saw men starving in Chicago while "just outside was the very fertile province of Illinois where I think they were burning their crops because they could not sell them."

Baptists Slate Annual Parley For July 5 to 12

Maryland Assembly Will Embrace Churches of Washington.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., June 19.—The nineteenth annual Maryland Baptist Summer Assembly, embracing the State Baptist Training Union, Maryland-District of Columbia Pastors' Conference, Training School for Sunday School Workers and the Maryland Woman's Missionary Union, will begin at Braddock Heights, 5 miles west of here, on the Catoctin Mountain, July 5 and continue until July 12. The territory embraced in the assembly is Maryland and the District of Columbia with churches having a membership of approximately 20,000 and an enrollment of about 20,000 in Sunday schools.

Featuring the program will be early morning Bible lectures by the Rev. Dr. W. W. Adams, professor of Greek, Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, and evening addresses by the Rev. Robert G. Lee, pastor of Bellevue Baptist Church, Memphis, Tenn. The lectures and addresses will begin July 5 and continue until the assembly adjourns.

The Training Union will convene July 8 for three days. The pastors', Sunday school and Missionary Union sessions will begin July 8 and continue five days.

Program leaders in addition to Dr. Lee and Dr. Adams include: Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, executive secretary, Columbia Association, Washington; C. A. Heatwole, member, Baptist Sunday School Board, Nashville, Tenn.; Alvera Rowell, president of the Virginia Baptist Training Union; the Rev. and Mrs. H. A. Sodergren, missionaries from the Congo; Miss Katherine Mallory, corresponding secretary of the Woman's Missionary Union, Birmingham, Ala.; the Rev. T. Eugene West, assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church, Charlottesville, Va.; the Rev. Wilfred C. Tyler, president, Maryland Baptist Training Union, Annapolis; the Rev. Jacob Gartenhaus, messenger to the Jews, Home Mission Board, Atlanta, Ga.; the Rev. Paul B. Watlington, pastor First Baptist Church, Hagerstown; Mrs. R. S. Barnes, corresponding secretary, Maryland Woman's Missionary Union, Baltimore; the Rev. H. Frederick Jones, mission study leader, Woman's Missionary Union, Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Taylor, First Baptist Church, Dundalk, Md.; the Rev. W. Clyde Adkins, assistant pastor, Eutaw Place Baptist Church, Baltimore.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Ledbetter, Havre de Grace Baptist Church; the Rev. J. N. Stewart, pastor Allen Memorial Baptist Church, Salisbury; the Rev. and Mrs. W. Emory Trainham, First Baptist Church, Front Royal, Va.; the Rev. Theodore E. Miller, pastor, First Baptist Church, Baltimore; Miss Grace Sibyl Brame, associate secretary, Southern Baptist Student Work, Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. Joseph T. Watts, general secretary of the Baptist Union Association, Baltimore, and the Rev. William C. Royal, pastor of the First Baptist Church, this city, and president of the Baptist Union Association.

At a business session of the Baptist Training Union, a young people's organization, reports will be submitted and officers elected. Dr. Lee will preach the annual sermons in the First Baptist Church July 7, and in the auditorium on the mountain in the evening. The enrollment last year, 840, exceeded all former records.

Baptist Conclave Attended by 1,000

Lower Shore Conference Ends at Princess Anne.

By the Associated Press.

Princess Anne, Md., June 19.—The sixty-fourth annual conference of the Baptist Association of the Lower Eastern Shore came to a close tonight with an address by Mrs. Eugene Levering, of Baltimore, before the Women's Missionary unit.

The Rev. John H. Strong, D. D., of Easton, spoke at the closing meeting for men during the afternoon.

Approximately 1,000 delegates from Wicomico, Dorchester, Worcester, Somerset, Talbot and Caroline counties and part of Delaware attended the conference which opened yesterday.

Mrs. Franklin Takes Title at Cumberland

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 19.—Mrs. Joseph P. Franklin, formerly Miss Jean Arendes, came back into the golf championship picture at the Cumberland Country Club yesterday by defeating Mrs. Fred T. Small in the finals of the annual spring tournament, 4 and 3.

Mrs. Franklin, prior to her marriage, participated in most of the tournaments at the local club, and captured several championships. She retired from the game for two years and returned this spring to win four consecutive matches and the title. Mrs. Franklin's medal score in the final match was 94 for the 18 holes, while Mrs. Small, who won the fall golf title in 1934, carded a 99.

In the semifinals, Mrs. Franklin eliminated Mrs. Elizabeth Dixon and Mrs. Small won over Mrs. Lloyd J. Lanich, defending champion.

Relief Youngsters Given a Vacation

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 19.—Fifteen youngsters, 6 to 12, from Berkeley County relief rolls families, have been taken by Mrs. Pansy Duff to Romney for a month's vacation, along with 150 other youngsters from the ten eastern counties of West Virginia. The 150 will be quartered in the buildings of the State Deaf and Blind Institute, empty now during the summer vacation period of its usual occupants.

On July 15 another 15 will be taken to Romney for a month, and on August 15 another quota of 15, to stay until September 15.

Kent Island Outing Planned.

Centerville, Md., June 19 (AP).—The Kent Island Business Men's Association is rounding out plans for the celebration to be held July 4, 5 and 6 at Matapeake. The program will include a parachute jump, boat races, a bathing beauty contest, swimming contests and a baseball game. Benefits will go to the Stevensville Fire Company.

An 'Innocnt Spectator' Seems Bored by Mitchell's 'Fireworks'

Senators Ask Mitchell Give Fuller Details

lost to the Treasury" through ship subsidy transactions.

Knows of "No Bribes."

He said he had charged "indications of corruption," based on such transactions, but that he had no knowledge of any "direct bribes." He said he had not seen any money passed, and suggested that an alert prosecutor with a grand jury would be the way to develop such evidence.

Mitchell told the committee that if the situation in the Commerce Department—"were left to Joseph B. Keenan (assistant attorney general, in charge of criminal prosecutions) it would be cleaned up." Keenan, sitting behind Senator Royal S. Copeland, chairman of the committee, smiled slightly in recognition of this compliment.

"If Mr. Keenan decided there was nothing to prosecute, would that satisfy you?" asked Senator Arthur Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan.

"I believe it would," replied the ousted official.

"It would satisfy me, too," commented Senator Vandenberg.

A few feet away from the witness sat Secretary Roper, the chief target of his criticisms. Roper "invited" to be present, was a silent observer, surrounded by his chief assistants, including J. C. Peacock, director of the Shipping Board Bureau, and Eugene Vidal, director of air commerce.

Although not a member of the committee, Senator Huey P. Long (Democrat), of Louisiana, sat throughout the hearing and at times listened intently. He frequently has referred in the Senate to President Roosevelt's trips aboard the yacht Nourmahal, owned by Vincent Astor, one of those described by Mitchell as beneficiaries of the alleged $1,720,000 "gift" in the Leviathan case.

Crowd Disappointed.

The marbled Senate caucus room, the largest room on the Senate side of the Capitol, was crowded when the hearing opened, with lawyers and lobbyists for shipping interests filling the front chairs. Mitchell's testimony must also have been disappointing to the spectators because the room was half empty toward the end of the first session.

Aside from a show of spirit at the beginning when he banged his fist on the table and in a loud voice described how he was ousted because he insisted on telling Secretary Roper of graft and corruption in the Commerce Department, Mitchell was a quiet and colorless witness.

He described Admiral Hutch I. Cone, former member of the Shipping Board, as a "messenger boy" for International Mercantile Marine and he accused South Trimble, jr., solicitor of the Commerce Department of "masterful inactivity" and being "unfit" for that position.

"Give Us Facts," Mitchell Told.

In turn, the committee almost from the beginning kept Mitchell under a running fire of sarcastic remarks, demands that he "give us facts" and charges of being actuated by a "spirit of retaliation." Constantly he was asked what he had done while Assistant Secretary of Commerce to remedy the conditions of which he complained. His answer was that he had been ousted for trying to remedy the alleged conditions.

The committee also frequently halted Mitchell in his recital of details regarding ship subsidy transactions to say that what he was asserting was already in the record of the Black ocean and air mail subsidy committee. His answer to that was despite the revelations of the Black committee, Secretary Roper had "done nothing about it."

Committee Not Friendly.

Mitchell seemed to be without a single sympathetic friend on the committee. Even the Republicans took part in taunting him, although Senator Vandenberg showed a greater desire than any other member to develop the facts in the case of the Leviathan.

The witness, however, did not present a particularly friendly attitude to the Republicans. He said that the Shipping Board under their administration had been "a cesspool of corruption," and several times he made slighting remarks about Republicans. All of the ship subsidies had their origin under Republican administrations.

At the outset of the hearng, Mitchell said it would "take several weeks for a Senate committee to intelligently investigate the Commerce Department's activities for the purpose of determining whether they are now being conducted in the interest of the people of the country, or to a large extent for the benefit of the favored few, and whether waste, extravagance, general inefficiency, graft and corruption are to be found therein."

He said he would touch only the high spots of his complaints and for the day wished to confine himself to reading and commenting on excerpts from a memorandum he submitted some time ago to Secretary Roper. He said he would start with the Shipping Board Bureau, "in which most of the abuses are to be found." He said he had a 74-page memorandum on that subject, but the committee urged him only to give "high lights."

He said that last September 10 he was first asked to resign by Secretary Roper on the ground that he was "not a leader of men." He said he asked how he could be a "leader of men" when every time he undertook to halt things Republican bureau chiefs were doing they would go behind his back to the Secretary and "he whitewashed them."

Banging his fist on the table, he said he added to Secretary Roper that the trouble in the department was "graft, waste and inefficiency." Senator Charles L. McNary (Republican), of Oregon, said the witness made so much noise hitting the table the committee could not hear him.

Refused Appointment.

Mitchell explained he had thrice refused appointment as Assistant Secretary of Commerce. He elaborated this remark for a few minutes and Senator McNary asked him to "get along with your charges." Senator Vandenberg asked about the Leviathan case.

He described the ownership of United States Lines by the Chapman interests in 1929 and led up to their financial difficulties in 1931. He said that Admiral Cone was reporting to P. A. S. Franklin of the International Mercantile Marine and Shipping Board Chairman T. V. O'Connor wanted the Dollar-Dawson interests to have the lines.

He described the disposition of United States Lines in 1931 to a combination of the Dollar-Dawson-International Mercantile Marine interests under a contract which required the Leviathan to make seven voyages annually. His recital was interrupted several times by questions as to whether his information was not "already a matter of record" and whether he did not have new information.

Charges Favoritism.

Finally he said "favoritism" had been shown to the International Mercantile Marine in which the Franklins, Vincent Astor and Kermit Roosevelt were interested. He explained that the indebtedness of United States Lines was "scaled down" $5,380,000 for the new owners. He said the International Mercantile Marine not only had "influence" over the old Shipping Board, but also over "those running the Commerce Department now." He pointed out that former Postmaster General Walter Brown held 4,700 shares of International Mercantile Marine stock.

Coming down to the present Administration, he related that in March, 1933, Admiral Cone had promised Kermit Roosevelt to have the Leviathan taken out of operation as soon as the new Shipping Board was confirmed.

He inserted into the record a memorandum from Mr. Peacock to Mr. Trimble asking that a contract be drawn providing for the laying up of the Leviathan and relieving the company of liquidated damages specified by the contract of 1931 for failure to operate the Leviathan.

Dickinson Quoted.

Dated February 9, last, this memorandum quoted Assistant Secretary Dickinson as telling Mr. Peacock that President Roosevelt had approved terms for the new contract. It was this contract, he contended, that was signed March 19, last, a week after it was denounced as prejudicial to the Government by the Comptroller General, because it relieved the International Mercantile Marine of $1,720,000 in damages due the Government.

He explained this sum rightfully belonged to the Government, since the new owners of the Leviathan had been granted a credit of $3,000,000 on the price of the Leviathan as a subsidy to cover the losses of operating that vessel.

Senator Copeland raised a question about the age of the Leviathan, pointing out it was 20 years old. He also questioned the seaworthiness of the vessel but Mitchell said that was a matter for experts. At this afternoon press conference he pointed out that the Berengaria is a sister ship to the Leviathan and that the Majestic was built at the same time. Both, he said, were effectively and profitably being operated by foreign companies.

He contended at his press conficiently and profitably being operated profitably before it was taken over by the International Mercantile Marine interests, which he said, were also interested in foreign companies and did not try to develop business for the ship.

Scoffs At Contentions.

Mitchell also scoffed at contentions that if the United States Lines, owned by I. M. M., were forced to operate the Leviathan or pay the penalty for nonoperation it would wreck the company and throw the ships back on the Government. He said the I. M. M. was a wealthy company and that its president, P. A. S. Franklin, had told him it had $9,000,000 in bank.

Before the committee, Senator Josiah W. Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina wanted to know what Mitchell had done as Assistant Secretary of Commerce to prevent what the witness had termed "plundering the Treasury." He said he had protested to Mr. Roper and in reply to questions named occasions within the last six weeks.

"You took no action at the time these things were going on," asserted Senator Bailey. "You did not act until you knew you were going out. I think you were actuated by a spirit of retaliation instead of one of public service."

Senator Duncan U. Fletcher (Democrat), of Florida, insisted that the witness give facts and not his "opinions or inferences" after Mitchell had referred to Admiral Cone's activities. Senator Wallace H. White (Republican), of Maine, urged that the witness be given a chance to develop his story as he wished since he was ordered to appear before the committee.

Cone Is Defended.

"I don't care whether he was ordered here or came here voluntarily," Fletcher angrily retorted, "he has no business trying to blacken the name of honorable men without facts. I know and admire Admiral Cone and men who cast aspersions on him are not fit to tie his shoe laces."

Senator White agreed that Admiral Cone was above reproach, adding that he knew of "1,000 things that should not have been done by the Shipping Board, but I do not believe that either Admiral Cone or any of the other officials reek with corruption."

Mitchell started to cite other instances of ship subsidies that have been criticized, but was quickly halted when Senator Copeland suggested that they had been covered by the Black committee.

"That is just it," replied Mr. Mitchell. "The Black committee revealed these things, but Secretary Roper has done nothing about it."

"Why didn't you?" shot back Senator Copeland.

"I wished you had been there," replied the witness. "I tried, but Secretary Roper suggested appointment of a committee."

Farrell Named.

He was referring to the advisory Shipping Board committee which he subsequently said consisted of "beneficiaries of millions of dollars from the old Shipping Board." He named as members of the committee James A. Farrell, former head of the American South African Line and recipient of a mail contract valued at $2,000,000; R. D. Lapham, president of the American Hawaiian Steamship Co., which owns 50 per cent of the stock of the Oceanic and Oriental Navigation Co. with a mail contract that has yielded $3,643,000; Joseph T. Lykes, of Lykes Brothers Steamship Co., with subsidiaries that had received more than $6,000,000 under mail contracts; Thomas A. Scott, connected with several shipping interests and Clifford D. Mallory, also interested in ship concerns.

Senator Vandenberg said "a survey of the equities" in the ship contracts should be left to the Black committee and that the witness should confine himself to testifying about "improper favoritism, graft and corruption." It was at this point that Mr. Mitchell denied he had charged "corruption" and gave his definition of "graft."

Mitchell said he laid his charges formally before the Attorney General on May 14 and when asked why he had not done it sooner said under departmental rules he was prevented from even communicating with the Department of Justice, except through Trimble.

He said Trimble, the department's legal head, had done nothing about the matter, asserting that his two special agents were "running down every tip but getting nothing." He said he heard nothing from the Justice Department until June 14—one month after he submitted his charges—and then he thought a "peculiar coincidence occurred."

"About 6:30 p. m. on June 14 a messenger brought a letter from Keenan in which he said he would be glad to give me every opportunity to substantiate my accusations and would be glad to have additional evidence," Mitchell recited.

"The next morning Secretary Roper called me in and asked me to resign and I refused. He then handed the President's letter to me, dated June 13, removing me from office. They apparently held up the President's letter two days to give the Justice Department time to get their letter to me."

"Have you any reason to doubt the good faith of Keenan's letter?" asked Senator Louis Murphy (Democrat), of Iowa.

"No," replied the witness. "I believe Keenan is a very efficient man and it left to himself would clean up this matter."

The committee and Mitchell sparred for a few more minutes without throwing any further light on the matters under inquiry and then it was decided to recess until today.

Week at Camp Is Consolation Prize in Contest

Runner-Up in Scholarship Competition Will Win Calvert Vacation.

A week's vacation at Camp Calvert, near Leonardtown, Md., and overlooking picturesque Breton Bay awaits the boy who "almost wins" The Washington Post Staunton scholarship contest.

First prize, as already announced, is two years at the famed Staunton Military Academy at Staunton, Va. With tuition, board, uniforms and other expenses paid, the value of this award is more than $2,000. That, of course, is the goal of every boy who enters the competition, but the week at Camp Calvert will be a delightful consolation prize for the winner of second place.

During the week at Camp Calvert the boy who wins this vacation will enjoy baseball, hikes and water sports. He will swim in the salt water of the bay, in care of a trained counselor, with boys of his own age for companions. He will play baseball, tennis or volley ball during the day, and in the evening enjoy a story period or other entertainment around a campfire.

The camp, which is associated with Leonard Hall School in Leonardtown, is conducted by the Xaverian Brothers. Brother Rogatus, C. F. X., A. M., is camp director. Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of Metropolitan Police, and Inspector Albert J. Headley, both of whom are familiar with the camp, indorse it heartily, commending the fine facilities, the management and the opportunities for recreation it affords. Under Catholic management, the camp is open to boys from 8 to 17 years of age without regard to creed.

The District Department of the American Legion is cooperating with The Washington Post in selecting the boy most deserving of the Staunton scholarship. To be eligible, he must be the son of a World War veteran, and must have completed the second year of High School, to be ready in the fall for two glamorous years at the famed Virginia school. The winner will be determined on the basis of scholarship, character and an essay on "Why I Would Like to Go to Staunton," which each contestant must write.

To enter the contest, a boy who is eligible according to the rules must file an application blank, and a booklet which will be helpful in writing the required essay will be sent to him. Communications should be addressed to Alice Fox Pitts, Staunton contest director, in care of The Washington Post.

$1,250 Award Given Mother Of W. Lee Jett

Two-Year-Old 'Murder Mystery Has Sequel in Court.

A 2-year-old murder mystery was solved in a civil court of the District Supreme Court yesterday when the Capital Transit Co. agreed to pay Mrs. Maude C. Cuvillier $1,250 for the death of her son, Wilmer Lee Jett, whose lifeless body was found covered with newspapers alongside the Glen Echo street car tracks in July, 1933.

Following the discovery of the body, Maryland police launched an intensive investigation, arrested numerous persons suspected of having murdered Jett, and finally allowed the case to languish when no definite clew was discovered. The investigators learned that Jett had attended a gay celebration in a house near where he was found, and from the condition of his body surmised he had been beaten and then dumped on the car tracks.

Mrs. Cuvillier sued for $20,000 when an autopsy showed that even had her son been assaulted, he had injuries of such a nature that he might have been hit by a street car.

The award yesterday was a consent judgment, signed by Justice Oscar R. Luhring. Jett's two brothers, Earl E. and Charles C. Jett, administrators of his estate, acted as his legal representatives, along with Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer.

Flood Imperils 3,000 Families As LeveesBreak

Arkansas Troops Called to Pile Sandbags; 1,000 Flee in Texas.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 19.—Floods subsided in the muddy Middle West tonight, but rivers overburdened by torrential rains launched fresh assaults in Arkansas and Texas.

Two more levees—one at Neds Lake near Van Buren, Ark., and the other in the vicinity of Morrilton—crumpled under the strain. Three others had collapsed previously and more than 150,000 fertile acres were covered by the waters.

The Arkansas Governor summoned two squads of National Guardsmen to aid 400 men laboring to strengthen the dikes at Pine Bluff and to keep anxious natives from the river front. A sandbag rampart was thrown up before North Little Rock. Reinforcements were hurled into the fight to prevent widening of the fissure at Neds Lake. More than 3,000 families were endangered or had already evacuated their homes.

The brimming Arkansas River continued to rise.

Waters from the Colorado River swirled into Wharton, Tex. Fifty houses in the Negro district were inundated and 35 blocks of streets were covered to the curbs. About 1,000 lowlanders were forced to evacuate that vicinity.

Twenty-one persons perished in a flood at Chimalpa, in Mexico.

Ducks swam in fields at Fairmont, Minn. Water hazards dotted the midcontinent landscape. Showers drenched many of the States east of the Mississippi.

But the abatement of the abnormal rain in most of the Plains States resulted in a recession of many swollen streams after a long flood siege that claimed an unofficial total of more than 175 lives and caused property and crop damages of more than $26,000,000.

Coast Guard officers at Boston last night announced the rescue of Dr. Daniel E. Nyman, 38, Arlington physician, and Stanley Mazrinas, 28, of Cambridge, missing at sea three days in the 54-foot motorboat Franz. They said the men, in a serious condition, were taken to a Portsmouth, N. H., hospital.

Coast Guardsmen searched the Chesapeake Bay for another motor boat, reported to have two men aboard. Efforts also were being made to find the two-masted schooner, Vision, in Lake Michigan.

Senate Votes Vast Social Program For Pensions, Job Security, Health

Administration's Bills Sweep to Passage by 76-6 Vote.

feat the Clark amendment, permitting private concerns to operate their own pension systems without being taxed for the Federal old-age retirement plan. He insisted this arrangement would make it possible for private companies to unload the greater risk from older employes on the Government pension system, while retaining the lesser risks from younger employes under their own private plan.

Such an arrangement, he claimed, would lead to widespread establishment of private pension systems in order to claim the exemption, and require rigid "policing" by the Social Security Board.

Danger of Invalidation.

More important, he insisted (and he was backed up in this by Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), New York, co-author of the bill, and Government advisers), the change would subject the program to grave danger of invalidation by the Supreme Court.

It was apparent a strong effort will be made in conference to oust this amendment. In that event, conservative Democrats, supported by their Republican colleagues, will renew their fight on the conference report.

The contributory old-age pension plan provided in the bill would work out as follows for a person drawing an average $100-a-month salary who retires at 65: $17.50 a month, where he paid taxes 5 years; $22.50, 10 years; $32.50, 20 years; $42.50, 30 years, and $51.25, 40 years.

Outstanding provisions of the social security bill include:

1. Grants to States for assistance to needy old persons more than 65. Grants would be on a 50-50 matching basis, except that in no case would the Government' share exceed $15 a month. Federal appropriation of $49,750,000 provided for the 1936 fiscal year.

2. Federal old age annuities to persons over 65, ranging from $10 to $85 a month, depending upon the amount of wages earned before the retirement date. Farm labor, domestics, casual labor, Government and State employes, and employes of certain institutions, would be exempted. A pay-roll tax divided equally between employes and employers for financing the compulsory Federal old age pension plan. The tax would begin at 1 per cent in 1937 and by graduated steps would reach 3 per cent in 1949 and thereafter.

3. Stimulation of State unemployment insurance system by Federal grants in aid and imposition of uniform pay-roll tax on employers. Against this tax a credit would be allowed by the Federal Government for contributions made by employers to State unemployment insurance systems. With the exception of certain uniform standards, States are left free to set up any plan they wish. The excise tax upon employers of four or more persons, to finance the unemployment insurance program, would begin at 1 per cent in 1936, and reach 3 per cent in 1938.

4. Grants to States for aid in the permanently blind. These grants would be on an equal-matching basis to States whose own plans for caring for the blind met given standards. In no case would the Federal Government contribute more than $15 a month. For this purpose, $3,000,000 would be appropriated for 1936, and necessary amounts thereafter.

5. Grants to States for carrying out State plans in aid of dependent children. Grants would be on a one-third matching basis, except in no case would Federal Government pay more than $6 a month for any single dependent child.

6. Federal aid to States to help them extend and improve their services for promoting the health of mothers and children. Some of the grants would be allotted equally among the States, some on the basis of the number of births, some on the basis of need. All of the money except on the basis of need would be on a 50-50 matching basis. Special provision is made to help States extend and improve medical, surgical and corrective services for crippled children. The Children's Bureau would be authorized to co-operate with State public welfare agencies to extend their services. Federal disbursements among the States for vocational education of the physically disabled would be nearly doubled.

7. Appropriation of $8,000,000 annually for grants to aid States in maintaining adequate public health services. The Surgeon General of the Public Health Service would make allotments on the basis of population, special health problems, and financial need. An additional $2,000,000 would be appropriated each year, to be spent by the Public Health Service in investigating disease, problems of sanitation, and in co-operating with State health authorities.

8. A social security board would be set up under the Labor Department to administer the program. It would be of three members, appointed by the President with the consent of the Senate, and drawing $10,000 a year salary.

Labor Dispute Measure Gains House Passage

Wagner Bill Is Adopted Without Record Vote After Debate.

liam Green of the American Federation of Labor.

Another amendment, providing that no unit selected for the purpose of bargaining collectively shall include the employes of more than one employer, was adopted by a 127-to-87 vote. The amendment, sponsored by Representative Robert Ramspeck (Democrat), Georgia, was fought bitterly by Chairman William J. Connery of the Labor Committee.

Among the amendments voted down for the House was the so-called Tydings amendments, likewise rejected by the Senate, prohibiting unions from coercing workers to join their organization or to strike. An effort by Representative Vito Marcantonio (Democrat), New York, to bring farm workers under the bill, also was rejtcted.

Free Press Rule.

On recommendation of Chairman Connery, an amendment was adopted to the effect that nothing in the bill might be construed as interfering with the freedom of the press, as guaranteed by the Constitution.

Connery hailed the enacted bill as "a new declaration of the rights of man." Echoing this statement, President Green, of the American Federation of Labor, expressed "general satisfaction and deep appreciation."

"It represents a most advanced step in legislative achievement for the workers of the Nation," said Green. "I am confident it will prove itself the Magna Charta of labor of the United States."

The bill, in effect, reasserts collective bargaining guarantees written into Section 7 (a) of the national recovery act, which was invalidated as it applied to codes by the Supreme Court Schechter case decision. The bill passed the Senate before the court's NRA ruling was handed down, but has been slightly altered by the House committee to bring it reputedly into line with the court's finding.

Connery charged that non-enforcement of Section 7 (a) has bred "a widespread and growing bitterness on the part of the workers." Pasage of the bill, he insisted, would make for industrial peace rather than further friction.

Those against whom charges were ignored were Robert Franklin Law and John Andrew Clancy, joyriding; James Tyler and Thomas Corham, grand larceny and joyriding; James Shorter, robbery; Charles Reid and Jessie Blackwell, assault with a dangerous weapon, and Edward Major, carnal knowledge.

Reciprocity War In Trucking Looms

West Virginia Won't Hono Out-of-State Permits.

By the Associated Press.

Charleston, W. Va., June 19.—The possibility of a war on truck reciprocity agreements was foreseen tonight in the announcement of the West Virginia road commission that it would extend no reciprocity on permits carried by out-of-State, for-hire trucks.

tain the permits, they, too, will requires for-hire trucks to obtain a permit in addition to the usual registration plates, becomes effective July 1.

Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia and Pennsylvania have served notice that if their trucks must obtain the permits, tehy, too, will require West Virginia trucks to obtain license plates.

Road commission officials declared that they felt it was the clear intention of the Legislature to require out-of-State trucks to contribute their share toward upkeep of West Virginia roads. The issues involved do not include trucks carrying livestock or processed farm and orchard products.

West Virginia Marks 72d Birthday Today

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 19.—West Virginia will have no formal oratorical observance of its seventy-second anniversary tomorrow. However, there will be a curtailment of business activities throughout the State, and the usual display of flags on public buildings and private homes. As it is a State holiday, all banks and public offices will be closed.

The idea of a separate State from old Virginia took root when a convention here April 22, 1861, with the late John S. Carlile the moving spirit, recommended that counties of what is now northern West Virginia choose delegates to a convention at Wheeling, and appointed delegates from Harrison county. The movement for a new State proceeded until it was created June 20, 1863, as a Civil War-born State.

Baptists Discuss New Social Work

World Problems Would Be Studied by Church.

By the Associated Press.

Colorado Springs, June 19.—A revolutionary proposal that the Northern Baptist Church expand its activity to include social and international problems was debated today by leaders of the annual convention, which will open here tomorrow.

The proposal was labeled "problems threatening the welfare of the entire human race" and marked a drastic new trend in the Northern Baptist Church. Its activities previously have been confined to the local and foreign mission sphere.

Delegates from 30 States are registered for the six-day meeting. Plans were made to accommodate between 2,000 and 3,000 delegates.

Police Slay Bandit, Can't Identify Him

At First Believed He Was Alvin Karpis' Aid.

By the Associated Press.

Willow Springs, Mo., June 19.—Officers tonight were uncertain over the identity of a bandit suspect, shot to death here today, who at first was believed to be Harry Campbell, indicted Bremer kidnaper, and associate of Alvin Karpis.

Two Springfield, Mo., detectives, who made the tentative identification, said later fingerprints of the slain man and those of Campbell did not check.

Local officers and State highway troopers continued to comb a wooded area near here for a man and woman companion of the slain man. The trio was suspected in the holdup of a Poplar Bluff, Mo., night club last night during which Oscar Murphy, a musician, was shot and wounded.

The unidentified man was killed after Sergt. Nathan Massie, of the State Highway patrol, said he made an unsuccessful attempt to ambush Trooper Ben Graham and Sheriff C. D. McKinney of Carter County, who had been pursuing the bandit car. Sheriff McKinney and Graham shot and killed him after a chase through the woods.

Liquor Concern Pays Fine.

The International Distilling & Distributing Co., through Harry G. Taylor, vice president and manager, paid fines totaling $200 in Police Court yesterday for liquor law violations.

The company was accused of selling liquor, in broken and unbroken lots, without District tax stamps. A plea of guilty was entered before Judge Gus A. Schuldt.

Missing Youth Sought By West Virginia Police

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 19.—A search was being made today by State police, the sheriff's officers and others for Jack Hovermale, 15, who disappeared Sunday while on a visit with the family of Nelson Keller at the home of Mrs. Keller's brother, David Knight, this county. The youth, a ward of the court, has been working with Keller for 18 months.

The Keller family considered the possibility that the youth may have fallen in Opequen Creek, near the Knight home, and drowned.

Good News for County Road Users Who'd RATHER DRIVE on CONCRETE

CONCRETE is not only the pavement you'd like to have on your farm-to-market roads—but it's also the most economical pavement, for these reasons—

1. First cost can be in keeping with traffic requirements. Thousands of miles of 9 or 10 foot concrete roads are serving farm-to-market traffic safely and comfortably. Many counties and states have used concrete in this way, thereby winning the praise of voters.

2. Maintenance costs only a fraction as much as with so-called "low cost roads." In a few years' time concrete saves you thousands of dollars a mile.

3. Concrete lasts. Pave once and you're done for decades.

4. Concrete saves you money on gas, oil, tires and car wear every mile you drive compared to lower type surfaces.

You prefer concrete. Actual cost figures show that you are entitled to it. So—

Glass Honored With Tributes At Yale Rites

Protracted Ovation Greets Senator, Given Honorary Degree.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New Haven, Conn., June 19.—Two resounding receptions to United States Senator Carter Glass featured the commencement exercises which closed the 234th year of Yale University today.

As the Virginia statesman was presented by Prof. George H. Nettleton, orator of the day, to President James Rowland Angell this morning the audience that crowded Woolsey Hall burst into a spontaneous and protracted ovation. No other candidate for an honorary degree received even a fraction of the generous applause poured upon the Senate leader who was described by Prof. Nettleton in his presentation speech as "a dauntless leader of the independent force of intelligent public opinion, who never sold the truth to serve the hour."

Senator Glass was called by President Angell in the award of the degree, a "statesman and patriot, instant in the defense of the country's defense and honor."

Honors Connecticut.

This afternoon the Senator was applauded to the echo at the alumni luncheon as he insisted that "Connecticut has reverence for the Constitution which Virginia possesses and is just as determined that impious hands shall not be put upon it."

The alumni audience paid the Senator the tribute of rising as he was introduced by President Angell, a mark of appreciative honor paid to no other speaker on a list which included Gov. Wilbur Lucius Cross of Connecticut and President Robert Gordon Sproul, of the University of California.

Senator Glass' graceful appreciation of the honor given him in the chief honorary award in the power of Yale University to bestow—a doctor of laws—was eloquently delivered to a hushed audience.

Praises New England.

Senator Glass said as the final speaker at the alumni luncheon:

"New England has its great history and its great men, and so has Virginia, and when, as so often, an assembly has been told that the senior Senator from Virginia has exhibited an unusual degree of independence and courage, I have ventured to wonder if that was precisely true.

"It is inconceivable to me that any New Englander with knowledge of his section of the country, just as it is inconceivable to believe that any Virginian with a knowledge of the history of that old Commonwealth and its songs, could be other than courageous and independent in the consideration of great public problems which affect the welfare of the United States.

"In this respect I don't think Connecticut has exceeded Virginia, except on one occasion. I believe it was the first State to threaten secession from the Union. Virginia actually thereafter undertook it, but we are now all one people of one Nation under the Constitution and I venture to trust that Connecticut still has as much reverence for that great instrument and still is just as determined as Virginia that impious hands shall not be put upon it."

The honorary degree conferred on the senior Senator from the Old Dominion was one of 11 awarded at commencement exercises at which 1,122 degrees in courses were distributed.

Roanoke Man in Race To Head Rotarians

Mexico City, June 19 (AP). — A South American was nominated for the presidency of Rotary International for the first time in Rotary's history today, but the preponderance of United States delegates to the convention here led to the belief his North American rival would be victorious.

The two candidates are Ed R. Johnson, of Roanoke, Va., first vice president in 1933-34 and chairman of the opening plenary session of the convention, and Donato Gaminara, of Montevideo, Uruguay, director of Rotary International and present first vice president. The voting, which will be secret, starts tomorrow and the result will be announced Friday.

Frostburg Council Adds To Corporate Limits

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frostburg, Md., June 19.—The city council adopted an ordinance extending limits of Frostburg to the top of Eckhart Hill, on the east, and to the bottom of Federal Hill on the west. The east end of Mount Pleasant street, South Water street, all of the Junior Order Park, Bealls lane extended and Bowery street extended and the community park and swimming pool, were incorporated by the ordinance, passed last night.

The action was taken to increase the city's revenue without raising the tax rate. Street lights, sewer and water pipe will be installed immediately in the section.

U. S. Gets 'Rudderless' Plane; Test Flights to Begin at Once

Radical New Design Built Originally by F. E. Weick.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 19.—The Fairfield Aircraft Corporation of Hagerstown announced today that it had delivered to the Bureau of Air Commerce of the Department of Commerce the Weick "rudderless" airplane, incorporating radically different design and performance features.

Sherman M. Fairchild, president of the corporation, said the plane was designed and constructed originally by Fred E. Weick, of the engineering staff of the national advisory committee for aeronautics at Langley Field, Va. Because of its exceptional performances, the Bureau of Air Commerce commissioned the local concern to rebuild it in the Federal campaign to develop new types of aircraft, especially those which may be simpler, safer and less expensive.

Test flights will be made immediately. Among the features are a three-wheel landing gear which permits landing at any speed with immediate application of brakes without risking turning over; new type flaps which function separately, with one control for the flap effecting low speed and another for the flap which permits steep gliding angle for landing in restricted areas; new type ailerons which are expected to permit achieving the correct relationship between banking and turning with the ailerons only, obviating the need for a rudder; operation of the air-brake control and the throttle by the same lever, simplifying the landing operation.

D. C. Second in U. S. In Building Permits

Washington was second only to New York City last month in the total of building permits, the Labor Department reported yesterday.

Seven hundred and forty-three permits were issued here for improvements totaling $3,711,944, while 3,768 buildings were authorized in New York City at a cost of $13,246,762.

The local figure included $1,000,000 for a sewage treatment plant.

Detroit was third in a list of 122 cities with 1,199 permits aggregating $2,783,404.

A slight gain was reported for the country as a whole, the fifth consecutive month in which the trend remained upward.

War Recovery Problems Top U. of V. Agenda

Public Affairs Institute Opens June 30; Oxford Savant to Preside.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

University, Va., June 19.—Political and social readjustment after periods of economic stress and war will be reviewed in a round-table conference on "Reconstruction Problems in the Light of History" at the Institute of Public Affairs, which will open its ninth annual session here June 30.

International in scope, the forum is one of the five listed for the first week of the two-week session, and will present a distinguished group of speakers. Dr. Robert McElroy, professor of American history at Oxford University, will preside over the daily discussions.

Among those who will interpret particular questions in these meetings are Col. Henry Breckinridge, New York attorney and former Assistant Secretary of War; Felix Morley, editor of The Washington Post; John Daniels, author and former secretary of the English Speaking Union of the United States; Dr. Francis William Coker, professor of political science at Yale; Dr. Ernest Minor Patterson, professor of economics at the University of Pennsylvania, and president of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, and Dr. Ellis Paxon Oberholtzer, Philadelphia author.

Dr. McElroy, who will come here from England to take charge of the conference, is a native of Kentucky and a graduate of Princeton, where he was at one time head of the department of history and politics. In England he has lectured at Cambridge, Bristol, Manchester and Leeds Universities, in the Royal Gallery of the House of Lords, and other institutions.

Topics listed for the week's program include the objectives of reconstruction; debts and the method of settlement from the point of view of the interests of the individual; the doctrine of equality of sovereign states; tariff barriers; labor, unemployment and securities against unnecessary risks, capitalism, private property, and individual liberty, and how to widen political points of view.

Pension Fund Approved.

The pension will become effective January 1, 1939, with the deduction to begin immediately.

'War Horse' Repeats In Long Pigeon Race

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 19.—War Horse, AU34MRC984, owned by Francis Meyers, of Midland, winner of last week's 200-mile race, again led the field in the 300-mile race flown by the Algonquin Pigeon Racing Club from Cincinnati, Ohio. His loft mate, Risky Lad, AU33-MRC42, placed second.

At a business meeting of the club, two new lofts were entered, one owned by Edward F. Miller, 311 Valley street, and the other the partnership loft of R. Lee Hunter and Ralph Cramer, 708 Gephart drive, this city.

The young bird series is scheduled to start Sunday, August 25, from West Union, W. Va., and will continue for five weeks, the last race being a 300-mile affair from Cincinnati September 29. Present indications are that there will be between 150 and 200 birds entered in the first race.

The next and final race of the old bird series will be flown Sunday, June 30, from Mitchell, Ind., a distance of 400 miles.

4-H Health Competition Is Staged in Berkeley

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 19.—Juliet Marie Duke, Hedgesville, and Norman (Buddy) Snyder, of Spring Mills, are the healthiest 4-H girl and boy in Berkeley County. Miss Duke was rated 96.2 per cent perfect, while Snyder scored 95. Two other girls were rated 96 per cent.

One hundred and ninety-nine Berkeley County club members entered the health contest. Miss Duke won a trip to the State 4-H camp at Jackson's Mill, where she will enter the State health contest for national honors.

The class will be known as the Harry W. Nice Class, in honor of the Governor of Maryland, who was invited to attend. Representatives of the five Carroll County lodges will be present.

Gen. Caziarc Is Dead at 91; Served 44 Yrs.

Retired Officer, Former Professor at Bowdoin, Passes at Richmond.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., June 19.—Brig. Gen. Louis Vasmer Caziarc, U. S. A., retired, whose career included military service from 1862 to 1906 and college teaching of military science and law, died today at a sanatorium here. He was 91 years old.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in Arlington Cemetery.

Gen. Caziarc, a native of Boston, lived 17 years in Charleston, S. C. He held a master of arts degree from Bowdoin College, where at one time he was military professor and acting professor of international and constitutional law.

He began his military experience with Company I, Thirty-eighth Massachusetts Volunteers, in 1862. He reached the rank of captain in 1891 and major in 1898, serving in Cuba in the Spanish-American war. Made a colonel in 1904, he was retired that year, with the rank of brigadier general.

He was executive officer of the Signal and Weather Bureau from 1881 to 1884 and adjutant of the Artillery School at Fortress Monroe, from 1887 to 1891.

Organizations in which he held memberships included the Royal Legion, the Society of Foreign Wars, the Huguenot Society and the South Carolina Society.

Court Window Opened Prisoner Dashes Out

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Bristol, Va., June 19.—"Clear out of that window and let some air in," officers ordered spectators attending police court yesterday.

Air rushed in and Clifford Orfield, who had just been fined $50 for storing liquor, rushed out.

The prisoner had been sitting near the window and he moved so suddenly and negotiated the intervening space with such rapidity that he was through the window and on his feet running before anyone realized what had occurred. He soon reached State street, beyond the center of which lay Tennessee and temporary safety.

Adult Education Program Launched

1,000 Enrollment Expected in Somerset County.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Pincess Anne, Md., June 19.—A program of adult education was launched in Somerset County today under the supervision and direction of the Maryland Emergency Relief Administration, supplemented by funds from the American Red Cross.

In the north end of Somerset, Omar J. Carey, a graduate of Washington College, is forming classes in tennis, baseball and softball, with daily instruction.

Elmer A. Jones, a student at Indiana Tech, Fort Wayne, Ind., is in charge of swimming and kindred sports in this section of the county, while the Rev. Frank K. Brasington, formerly director of aquatics at Central Y. M. C. A., Baltimore, will be stationed on Smith's Island, in Tangier Sound. He will spend two days each week at Crisfield. On Smith's Island, the Red Cross is conducing a class in hygiene and home nursing, bearing the full cost of the instruction.

W. Marshall Scott, Somerset County director of adult education, estimates that the total enrollment in physical education classes will run close to 1,000.

"ALL THE FUN WAS GONE OUT OF LIFE" says middle aged woman

Many women suffer from hot flashes, dizzy spells, nervousness and other annoying symptoms of the Change of Life. They get so blue and discouraged that life does not seem worth living.*

Mrs. Matushek

"All the fun was gone out of life," complains Mrs. S. Matushek of 10907 Edbrooke Ave., Chicago. For five years I was going through a very bad time. I was nervous, had terrible headaches, could not climb stairs and felt swollen. Your Vegetable Compound worked wonders for me. It is a great medicine for any time of life, but especially at the Change and before motherhood. My daughter Lucille used to faint at the office. Your medicine helped her and helped my daughter-in-law too."

"I Had Awful Hot Spells"

says Mrs. Harry H. Price of 304 North Harrison Ave., Kankakee, Illinois: "The Vegetable Compound puts pep into me and makes my work easy."

Causa Honoris.

This week two of the country's leading universities, Princeton and Yale, have separately conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws upon Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia. These honors are a well-deserved tribute to the courage, integrity and ability of a man who during long years in the service of his State and his Nation has won enduring place in the long line of illustrious leaders which the Old Dominion has given to this country.

The senior Senator from Virginia is one of those rare individuals who knows how to defend his convictions fearlessly without becoming either a doctrinaire or an obstructionist. He has the happy faculty of compromising without capitulating and of maintaining his independence without disavowing party allegiance and thus sacrificing influence in helping to frame legislative policies.

It is therefore particularly fitting that Senator Glass should be singled out for these signal academic honors at a time when the too rare qualities of practical statesmanship have been put to an exceptionally severe test. There are other members of the Senate whose learning, forensic skill and idealism make them peers of Senator Glass. But few, if any, Senators have had as long or as successful a career in fighting political opportunism, in maintaining fundamental traditions, and in forwarding truly progressive legislation.

It is not alone as "a dauntless leader of the independent force of public opinion," as the Yale citation puts it, that Senator Glass holds a unique position in the political world of today. As a notable representative of his State, and as an outstanding national figure, he himself symbolizes the value of the Federal system of government, which he so well understands and has done so much to preserve.

A Community Project.

The request for $65,000 to begin modernization of Washington's public health service goes to the Budget Bureau with the united support of the community behind it. The Board of Commissioners was naturally reluctant to approve this additional outlay when the 1936 budget already appears to be slightly unbalanced. But even this objection has been overcome by the concern of officials as well as civic, professional and business organizations over the needless impediments to health in the District.

A few months ago there was general indifference toward this acute problem. Apparently Dr. Ruhland, Washington's new health officer, has aroused the community to a proper realization of its deficiencies. To the credit of some officials it may be said that views have changed when knowledge of the District's laxity in health control has been presented to them. If the Budget Bureau and Congress are no less amenable to reason the Capital City may gradually obliterate the disgrace of its unnatural death rate.

It is a pity that this important request has to be short-circuited to the Federal Budget Bureau after having the approval of the local government. That agency has no qualification to pass upon the needs of the local community for additional health funds. In the circumstances it could best serve the public interest by transmitting the Commissioners' request immediately to Congress.

Whither?

By dull statistic the question is raised: What's the hurry? The fastest driving in city streets, traffic experts have determined, nets but a minute per mile.

The office is three miles from home? By stepping on it hard, by jumping across the yellow light, by squeezing in ahead of the car in front—three extra minutes are gained. To what end? To soothe jangled nerves with the opiate of speed? To flaunt for a moment a superior engine power before an unimpressed audience? To make the rest of the world taste the dust for a while? To demonstrate a superior genius for deft maneuvering? To make up for time dawdled away earlier? To get a shoeshine, smoke a cigarette, meet a man? Or, perchance, to join the 52 who have already been killed in Washington this year?

"Where," in the words of the goggled motorcycle patrol, "is the fire, buddy?" Fire? Fire? There is no fire, though that siren and those clanging bells might lead one to think there is. No fireman rings those fast-nearing warnings; instead, an interne is clearing the road for an ambulance out on another emergency call.

What Price Planned Economy?

Congress recently spent more than two months trying to give intelligible legal form to a mandate from the White House calling for $4,880,000,000 to create jobs. Then the President spent another two months trying to decide how the money should be spent. At the end of that period he has shifted his emphasis from "useful projects" and "permanent improvements" that would create "future new wealth for the Nation," to what he now calls "the mandate from Congress to put 3,500,000 people in this country to work."

In giving his instructions to the works progress administrators for the States, the President twice referred to the "mandate" from Congress "to put all the people on the relief rolls to work within the coming year." Every one who followed the course of this extraordinary legislation through Congress realizes that it contains no such mandate. At the insistence of the White House Congress made available this huge sum and left its expenditure largely to the discretion of the President. Mr. Roosevelt's emphasis upon the words "mandate from Congress," coupled with Secretary Ickes' obvious apprehension over the made-work program which is being launched, gives the impression that the Administration is already trying to evade responsibility for the tragedy of errors which the country is now assuredly going to witness.

The Senate struggled for weeks to substitute some kind of plan for the vague grant of authority sought by the White House. The final result was a loose allocation of funds for highways, elimination of grade crossings, rural rehabilitation and electrification, housing, sanitation, flood control, and other useful undertakings. But the PWA report on the cost of such projects indicated that few of them can be undertaken—even on subnormal wages—if the President adheres to his decision that practically all of the work relief fund must be spent at the rate of $1,100 to $1,200 per employed man per year. Instead of obeying a "mandate," it appears that the President is ignoring the policy, confused though it may be, which the Senate endeavored to establish.

Playboy government has seldom if ever been carried to such extremes in this country. It is now plainly evident that the Executive sponsored and Congress approved a huge appropriation for the expenditure of which no rational plan had been made. Some members of Congress, as well as some members of the Cabinet, are doubtless appalled to discover that all the prattle about national planning and scientific relief has simmered down to boondoggling. Moreover, Congress has not only surrendered its control over the national purse for the next two years. It has also inadvertently permitted the inauguration of policies that actually tend to defeat constructive efforts to relieve the unemployed.

The absence of thought behind this gigantic muddle has never stood out more emphatically than it does in the President's instructions. He asked the work relief administrators to "make every effort to get the unemployed into private industry." That, of course, is the most important objective of any relief program. But the type of projects to be authorized will actually deprive of their jobs thousands of workers who are now supporting themselves. Casual work, ordinarily done by local craftsmen, will be taken over by the new inflated CWA. The inevitable scramble to place so many relief roll workers is certain to be a disturbing element in the field of private employment. And there is no assurance that the employment exchange system is to be used to give efficient direction to the operation.

The President talks casually about the psychological advantages of eliminating the dole. Under the relief set-up most of the unemployed have been expected to do some work to earn their allowance. Wherein will their status be improved by assigning them to dig holes under a different classification? Presumably this is one of those mysteries which, as Administrator Hopkins would say, the public is "too damn dumb to understand."

When the whole work relief scheme, as it is now revealed, is reduced to its fundamentals it boils down to a haphazard program of distributing nearly five billion dollars over the widest possible field, with the naive hope that in some way it may improve the lot of the unemployed. And this is what some people have the nerve to call "planned economy."

Off On A Tangent.

For many years a dispute has been going forward as to the merits of the long and short haul provisions of the interstate commerce act. Interests on the Pacific Coast favor a rate system that would permit the railroads to charge less for carrying freight between Eastern cities and Western ports than they charge to transport the same load between Eastern cities and landlocked communities of the West. The railroads take the same view because they wish to compete with intercoastal shipping lines.

On the other hand, communities of the mountainous country west of the Rockies complain that rates favoring Pacific Coast cities put them at a great disadvantage. Lower rates for the transcontinental haul tend to entice industries away from the scattered cities of Colorado, Utah and States similarly situated. These regions have vigorously resisted any change in the present law, which forbids the railroads to charge less for the transcontinental haul than for shorter distances on the same route.

The strange thing is that this controversy should be occupying the attention of the House Interstate Commerce Committee at a time when President Roosevelt is trying to induce Congress to deal with the country's transportation as a single problem. Establishment of a closer relationship between steamship and railroad rates is undoubtedly urgent. But that can not be satisfactorily solved by forcing intermountain shippers to subsidize transcontinental railway service. The arguments presented at hearings on the Pettengill bill merely emphasize again the need for a national transportation policy extending to all common carriers.

Congressional committees would make better progress if they would concentrate their energies on the larger objective sought by the coordinator of transportation, whose office has now had to be extended for another year.

The End Of Versailles.

The Anglo-German naval agreement is important enough as a technical arrangement in the tangled field of armament limitation. But it is far more important as signalizing a fundamental rearrangement in the political kaleidoscope of Europe. For when Great Britain, over Franco-Italian opposition, freely accepts the recent German denunciation of the Treaty of Versailles it is apparent that far-reaching new alignments are in order.

Gone at this one stroke is the French scheme for isolating a recalcitrant Reich within a ring of steel. Gone is the practical effect of the Franco-Russian treaty, now more than offset by the Anglo-German understanding. Gone also is the sting in the rebuke administered to Germany by the League Council on April 17, which sought to indict Hitler for his unilateral denunciation of the disarmament sections of the treaty of 1919.

Many factors have undoubtedly contributed to this important development. With Japan steadily extending her influence in China, and with no prospect of the Anglo-American alliance which Premier Baldwin and Raymond Moley would like to see, the arguments for friendly relations with Germany have increasingly impressed British public opinion. Again, much resentment has been aroused in England by French acquiescence in Italian designs on Abyssinia, which lessens any remaining feeling of responsibility to the Quai d'Orsay on the part of Whitehall. A third factor—and others could be mentioned—is obviously the belief that the present agreement with Germany is favorable from the British viewpoint, and that delay in coming to an accord might only result in stiffening the German terms.

But an agreement favorable to Britain distinctly does not mean an agreement acceptable to France and Russia. The 35 per cent ratio by categories, means—for instance—that Germany has Britain's blessing in building to parity with present French strength in cruisers. The same provision, plus acceptance of German equality with Britain in submarines, means that the Baltic becomes a German lake, which Russia will regard as a threat and at which Poland is likely to look askance. The immediate reactions on the part of these powers will go far to show the political consequences of the profound decision taken by the new Conservative government in Great Britain.

Although far-reaching, the British move can not be regarded as surprising. Since 1918, British foreign policy has consistently played second fiddle to that of France. The time was bound to come when this subordination would be terminated, regardless of what crise de nerves may be provoked in Paris. And it was also certain, in view of Britain's traditional support of the balance of power in Europe, that any Franco-Russian treaty would go far to promote an Anglo-German understanding. Finally the British ambition for the League of Nations—as an agency which should not be utilized to enforce the will of the victors on the vanquished—was alone likely to lead to a split with France, even though the time for that split was not ripe last April.

The move of London toward Berlin, and away from Paris, is so pronounced as to arouse expectations that efforts will now be made to soften its effects. Anthony Eden is rushing to Paris to explain that the Anglo-German accord will greatly favor general naval limitation if it is viewed in the proper light. Mr. Eden is a convincing negotiator and it is to be hoped that the French will listen carefully before taking any impulsive action. But at the moment they are not to be blamed if their horizon of vision is obscured by the fact that Nazi diplomacy has won a great triumph, and that the Versailles system is now sunk without trace.

Toward Peace In The Chaco.

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The stubbornness with which both Bolivia and Paraguay have conducted their long and bloody war in the Chaco overflows into the negotiations each time an effort is made to stop the conflict. It is therefore somewhat premature to rejoice over the imminence of peace, for many steps remain before these two dogged nations sign a treaty.

Whatever the terms, a greater hope for peace exists in the exhaustion of both combatants. They have lost about 100,000 of their men in the three years of ferocious jungle warfare, preceded by several years of guerrilla fighting. The stake is a desolate region, valuable for its oil, but worth far less than the sacrifices it has cost both nations. The League of Nations having failed in its peace efforts, it will be a triumph for the American nations' ability to bring conciliation in the Western Hemisphere if the present formula proves successful.

The Final Masters.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The recent decision of the Supreme Court against the constitutionality of the NRA has raised a highly important issue before the people of America. The nature of this impending issue pertains to the relationship which exists or which should exist between the American people and the Federal Constitution.

The splendid Preamble of the Constitution clearly sets forth the aims and purposes for which it was formed. Its opening words explain that its authors were and are: "We, the People of the United States." Among its outstanding aims, were its intentions to promote the general welfare, and to secure the blessings of liberty to its founders and to their posterity.

The Federal Constitution, acting as spokesman for its creators, the people of the United States, provided for three major departments to carry out its purposes in safeguarding the people's welfare and inherent rights: First, a Congress to be chosen by the people to make laws in accordance with the people's needs and desires; second, a President to be chosen by the people to act as agent for the people in executing their spoken will, and, third, a Supreme Court to be appointed and confirmed by a President and by a Senate elected by the people, to interpret the Constitution and to superintend the administration of the laws for the just and rightful benefit of the first and final masters of all governmental affairs, the people of the United States.

The founding Fathers of the Constitution, wisely realizing their human limitations in making it provide for all the needs and requirements of generations then unborn, explicitly explained how it could be amended from time to time, as new conditions might demand.

Therefore, if the American people consider the resultant difficulties of the present unparalleled economic depression of sufficient importance to warrant a new constitutional amendment, it is both their right and duty to take action in the interest of the present and future people of the United States.

W. E. BRATTON.
Little Lot, Tenn., June 15.

NRA Amendment?

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: There is ample precedent for legalizing the NRA program by a constitutional amendment. When the Federal income tax was first proposed it was fortunate for the American people that it was found to be unconstitutional. Its promoters then hit upon the expedient of making this unconstitutional measure constitutional by amendment to the charter of our liberties and this was promptly done by passage of the XVI amendment. The income tax is possibly the most undemocratic law that was ever passed. This unjust law and the XVI amendment to the Constitution should, of course, be repealed. Later on, and as a war recovery measure, a law was proposed which would bring about Federal prohibition of the liquor business. But this too was found to be unconstitutional, violating as it did the very principles of liberty which the Constitution was designed to protect. But again an amendment, the XVIII, to the Constitution, was passed making an unconstitutional measure legal.

And now it is proposed to make constitutional a measure which for its enforcement requires 5,000 Government employes, which endeavors to supplant the natural law of supply and demand by a vicious artificial law which has ruined thousands of small institutions with the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars. Why not nullify the Constitution again by the adoption of another contradictory amendment legalizing the NRA?

HENRY WARE ALLEN.
Wichita, Kans., June 12.

Dumb General?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: According to the columns of The Post, Gen. Hugh Johnson, of NRA fame, has joined the rapidly increasing army of New Deal critics and has cracked down on President Roosevelt. Gen. Johnson charges the people have grown "leery of promises and evasions," that they are tired of "echoes" and demand a clear statement from the President as to his future aims and policies in order that business activity and the faith of the people may be restored.

Evidently the General is not well informed, or he would know that the policy of the Roosevelt Administration is both clear and unequivocal. A number of months back, when the United States Chamber of Commerce urged, as Gen. Johnson now urges, that President Roosevelt clearly state the future policies of his Administration, the President promptly and smilingly disposed of the inquiry by saying it was similar to "have you quit beating your wife?" And when at a recent press conference President Roosevelt was asked if there would be a further devaluation of the dollar, he promptly and smilingly countered with the statement that he "was neither a prestidigitator nor an astrologer."

If from the foregoing clear, lucid and statesmanlike utterances of our smiling President, Gen. Johnson does not fully understand the future policies of the Roosevelt Administration, he must be promptly relegated to that class which Public Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins has designated as being "too damned dumb" to understand the New Deal. And through his inability to easily comprehend the cockeyed program of the Roosevelt Administration, the General automatically places himself among the Tories, witch doctors and other straw men the heroic General so vigorously battled when he was recently strutting his short though comic hour upon the public stage.

R. C. SCHROEDER.
Washington, June 17.

The First Operation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read in your paper of May 31 your account of the shaft unveiled to the first woman to submit to modern surgery.

Why did you not also tell that her family sat around armed with rifles to kill Dr. Ephraim McDowell in case that he failed?

LOIS SOEBOZENAVE.
Washington, May 31.

Street Cars Preferred.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Recent newspaper articles indicate that a strong effort is being made by the District Commissioners to force the local transit company to substitute bus service for a number of the electric car lines. I do not know the attitude of the transit company in this matter, but I presume they are willing to furnish whatever service the public demands.

If I am able and have the time I invariably go to the car line for transportation because of the vile smelling and sickening gas fumes to which one is subjected as a bus passenger. Just why bus designers are so stingy with head room, leg room and aisle room I can not fathom. In addition, I have yet to meet the person who can read with any degree of satisfaction on a moving bus, whereas almost everyone reads the newspaper whenever they wish on a street car.

When buses grow old, as they do in five or six years, the noise, jerks and fumes do not lessen but rather increase so that comparing a bus with a street car involves many factors that do not appear on the surface. The citizens of Washington should carefully look into the facts before coming to any conclusion in this matter.

I recently rode on one of the new street cars in downtown Washington and, although it was greatly crowded, due, I expect, to novelty riding, I finally obained a seat and was amazed at the speed, comfort and other desirable qualities demonstrated. And best of all I was not gassed during the entire trip.

JOHN W. TODD.
Washington, June 19.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was reading in your paper of June 18 about this car-bus talk. It is nothing but a bungled-up job. Mr. Hanna said a week ago if the people wanted the cars they could have them. Now he is going about face and wants to shove the buses on people.

People should fight this change to the last minute to save the trolleys. Hot weather makes riding on crowded buses unbearable.

EX. R. ROADER.
Washington, June 18.

Rescuing The Franc.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The act of Secretary Morgenthau in going to the rescue of France to assist in heading off a currency crisis, was one of those worth-while gestures of international good will, which count in the long run for world understanding.

The French are very sensitive; they are easily moved by evidence of international cooperation such as our Secretary of the Treasury has shown. Smarting under the criticism of the American people on the matter of war debts, the French were, almost unconsciously to themselves but quite noticeably to American tourists, becoming "offish" to American visitors. I do not argue the point as to the merits of the case of war debts. But Mr. Morgenthau, ignoring whatever was an occasion of difference between the two nations, did not only "the decent thing," but a very humane and courteous thing in coming to the rescue of the French franc.

Incidentally, and in the light of some present-day revelations, Mr. Roosevelt might do well to place in his Cabinet more such capable men, to take the place of "wooden" men who fail to see that we are living in the year of our Lord 1935.

The Post Impressionist

On Renewing Your Youth.

Post Office, Thursday.

IN the spring a—well, a middle-aged grad's fancy heavily turns to thoughts of class reunions. It has to. It is pushed around there by all sorts of invitations, follow-up invitations, questionnaires, follow-up questionnaires.

"In which of the following events," asks the inquisitive class secretary, "will you take part: . . . Soft baseball?" There is need for solace! Class reunions always celebrate "the brave days of old" somewhat wistfully.

The Post-Impressionist is against such counter-clockwise sentiments. That those days deserve celebration nobody believes more firmly than does he. Yet, if yesterday was better than today, aren't we alumni better than we were yesterday?

In an affirmative answer, it seems to this columnist, lies the consolation of two-score-and-ten. It seems to him that there is a second youth of far less disquieting mien than second childhood, and that most old grads attain it soon.

Anyhow, all our former classmates we're lucky enough to encounter have kept the good qualities of their earlier epoch and have shed those which were—well, less worth retention. However fine these old boys may have been in the nineties, we've never seen such improvement anywhere as we see among them in the thirties.

We hope somebody can see a bit of it in us!

The average man of our class is still an enthusiast. Even if he knows that most of his dreams can't come true, he still dares to dream them. Even if his deeds don't change the world, he still dares to do them. But he is gentler; he is mellower. He is wiser because he realizes that we all still have such a lot to learn—more eager because he realizes that we all have so little time in which to learn it. He is stronger because he has suffered. And, because he has suffered, he is tolerant.

For our part, were we able to send our boy to college, we should want him to go to "our" college and be what our average classmate has become. Considering average averages, that's the average we prefer.

After all, the best attitude toward class reunions is that maintained in the current reunion issue of "The Crimpoon," an occasional newspaper which since 1910 (an age-record for class journals) has chronicled the deeds and deaths of Harvard 1900. Frank Buxton therein maintains the attitude well—being the editor of the Boston Herald. And another Frank (Frank Simonds) recounts "the greatest thrills he ever got" out of belonging to this class:

"I recalled the moment when I saw Marlborough Churchill, with the stars of a general, moving across the stage of the World War as chief of intelligence . . . I remember a moment at the peace conference when Bob Bliss, from our embassy, sitting at a table next Marshal Foch, interpreted for me . . .

"There flashed before my eyes a night in Mulhouse . . . when Reggie Kauffman, speaking for the journalists of the allied world, producing a letter from Theodore Roosevelt setting forth 'T. R.'s' faith in the future freedom of the Lost Provinces and the people of this newly liberated city pressed forward to touch the paper . . .

"I recalled the long weeks at the London Naval Conference, when this great conclave waited breathless upon a word coming from Bill Castle, American Ambassador in Tokyo . . . I recaptured visions of Billy Phillips, set about by ambassadors in all the glory and garters of their calling, but in his chaste habiliments symbolizing the simplicity of American statesmanship. I remembered Dwight Davis, homeward bound from the Philippines, holding the British Ambassador in Paris spellbound while he described the Far Eastern detail in the majestic destinies of the Class of 1900.

"I have sat under Walter Eaton reverently when, as dramatic critic-in-extraordinary, he has held a Washington audience spellbound by his interpretations of the drama. Tone-deaf as I am, I have hastened to the radio on a Sunday to hear Pitts Sanborn addressing a Nation-wide hook-up with the voice of our premier musical authority. More than once, too, in the old days, I have listened to Mark Sullivan recently come from the White House and bringing the authentic word of the approaching Waterloo.

"Oh, it has been a good show, and many times have I peeked under the tent-flap with pride. But the greatest thrill of all? That was when I walked down a street in Cincinnati with Murray Seasongood and suddenly became aware of what it means to be the first citizen of a great town . . .

"Later, when I sat at table with the leading citizens of Cincinnati, whose host Murray was and whose grateful followers they were, I murmured once more that phrase which . . . has proved so unfailing the claim to reflected glory. 'Yes; I was a classmate of his.'"

Retribution!

THE viciousness of the whispering campaign loosed yesterday against Ewing Mitchell, deposed Assistant Secretary of Commerce, shows the seriousness with which the Administration views his blow-up. It was about as stinging as the newspapermen have heard for many a day. As a result of the campaign, together with his futile presentation, he got a most hostile reception from the Senate Commerce Committee. Responsible also for this reception is the fact that the Republicans have no more desire to revive the ship subsidy mess than the Democrats.

Unfortunately for the Democrats, however, the Black committee which spent months going into the whole business, has just made its report. This fully justifies Mitchell in his statement that while the situation was inherited from the Republicans this Administration has done nothing to clean it up. And while it may be that the Leviathan deal made by this Administration will stand the test of scrutiny, as the Administration says, the fact is that it was carried out over the protest of Comptroller General McCarl. Mr. Roosevelt was mistaken, it appears, when he told the newspapermen yesterday that a consideration in writing down the claim of $2,220,000 on the Leviathan was that two more ships would be built. Obligation to build these two ships had to be given to Jim Farley in another agreement in order that the operators could get additional subsidies.

It also is said that had the Government enforced its Leviathan claim it would have pressed the operators into bankruptcy. The Black committee charges that the ship operators have been rooking the Government out of payments for years through their set-up of corporate structures that resemble the utility holding companies.

The question that arises immediately when one reads the Black report, for instance, is why Mr. Roosevelt should be so determined to crush the utility holding companies and yet permit such as the International Mercantile Marine Co. to exist. This company owns the Roosevelt Steamship Co., which in turn operates the United States Lines and the Baltimore Mail Line. Also there are numerous other organizations in the structure. According to the Black committee report the Roosevelt company collects approximately 19 per cent of the gross voyabe revenue of the vessels of the United States Lines. Between December 8, 1931, and December 31, 1933, it collected $3,097,537.95, and turned over to the International Mercantile Marine $2,712,055.65. The United States Lines, operator of the Leviathan, in that period showed a loss of $1,886,379.11.

This set-up, of course, is the one in which Kermit Roosevelt and Vincent Astor are heavily involved. The committee report carries Kermit's name in bold, black-faced type.

• • • •

It is not intended to cast any insinuations or leave any vicious inference in this recital. These men were the beneficiaries of our ship subsidy system under the Republicans. They are beneficiaries under the present Administration. Both were Republicans. Both are now New Dealers. In the campaign Kermit publicly deprecated the attitude of other members of the Roosevelt clan in opposing the political maverick, as they called him, and said that blood was thicker than politics. Vincent issued a statement saying moneyed men were silly in being afraid of Mr. Roosevelt. He, Vincent, had money, he pointed out, and was going along with the New Deal. But it would certainly be interesting to hear Vincent justify the attack on the utility holding companies and explain the structure in which he is so heavily involved.

It is, of course, a picture as old as time. Unfortunately for this Administration it is presented to the country after we have been taught for two years that anybody who has as much as $10,000 is an enemy of mankind; that the vested interests are grinding us down to earth; that the money changers are responsible for our plight.

Back in the days when we were broad-minded we were pretty blase over a Teapot Dome scandal. At least, we didn't think it serious enough to kick out of power the party that was responsible for it. But we've been taught in the past two years to think in low terms. And such thinking, applied to this spectacle, makes it look very bad. It's what I call retribution, if nothing else.

NRA And Philippines

Japan Has Captured Our Islands' Textile Trade, Not To Mention Such Matters As Rubber Shoes; But The Japanese Consul At Manila Says The Filipinos Like It.

By Vincente Albano Pacis,
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Manila.

WITH the trade statistics for 1934 now available, Japan's quiet but unremitting capture of the commodity market of the Philippines is once more confirmed, to the great dismay of American exporters and importers. And to add sarcasm to this Japanese thrust, the voluble Japanese consul in Manila, the Hon. Atshusi Kimura, declares that the American NRA is all to blame!

During 1934, according to the figures just made available, the Japanese increased their exportation of textiles to the Philippines by 95 per cent, mostly at the cost of the United States, which brought to the islands for the same period 45 per cent less textiles than it did in 1933. This result was foreshadowed by the figures of 1930, when Japanese cheap and seemingly high quality textiles first began to flood the Philippines. The extent to which Nippon cloths soon dominated the local market is evident from the fact that Chinese retailers, who are the most numerous in the islands, but who were bent on boycotting Japan as a result of the Shanghai affair and the birth of Manchukuo—had to lift the ban on Japanese goods and stock up with them.

• • • •

THE Japanese textile thrust in the islands was undertaken on two separate fronts. While cloths were being shipped in great quantities, finished garments were also being brought directly from Yokohama, Osaka and other parts, or manufactured in Manila with Japanese material and capital, but Filipino labor. The employment of Filipino labor was evidently for the purpose of placating the natives. Garments can, however, be made so very much cheaper in Osaka than in Manila that the biggest Japanese shirt and underwear factory had to shut down at the beginning of the year, throwing out hundreds of native laborers. Henceforth, the textile flood will come directly from Japan as cloths or garments, with the bouquet to Filipino labor entirely missing.

The situation in the textile market is typical of the situation with regard to other articles—Japan is steadily displacing the United States.

Japan is already ahead of America with regard to chinaware, porcelain, toys, leather harness and saddles, rubber boots and shoes, bicycles and motorcycles and other articles in which the United States was formerly dominant.

THE statistics on rubber shoes is very graphic. In 1922, America exported to the Philippines 560,167 pairs, valued at 900,000 pesos, while Japan exported only 5,407 pairs worth 2,548 pesos. In 1933 the two countries' respective positions were reversed, Japan exporting 2,082,995 pairs valued at 618,248 pesos and the United States sending to the islands only 65,516 pairs worth 55,000 pesos. The 1934 position of America is even more anomalous but the complete figures are not yet available. As a pair of Japanese rubber shoes sells for as low as 60 centavos, while the cheapest American brand retails at no less than two pesos, it is stated that in 1934 the United States practically abandoned the field to Japan.

American importers and exporters blame the antiquated tariff law in force in the Philippines. It was enacted by Congress in 1909 and amended only once or twice since. It is contended that since most of the tariff duties provided by this law are specific, and since values have since risen by about 100 per cent, the ad valorem protection afforded American goods has been reduced considerably. Japan, it is pointed out, was not a factor in foreign trade when the tariff law was enacted.

• • • •

THE Japanese Consul General in Manila practically says this is all poppycock, hooey, bunk.

"It is NRA fault," he declares in his clipped English, sucking air through his teeth, the Japanese gesture of contentment, "that American goods get it on the—what do you call it?—neck.

"NRA increased American wages and American cost of production—also cost of American goods. But Filipinos, due typhoons, plant pests, blights, American export limitations, are poorer today than—shall we say 1929 or 1930? Result—Filipinos buy cheaper goods.

"NRA good for America, bad for Philippines. Seventy per cent Philippine imports come from United States. President Roosevelt's price-boosting campaign increased prices American goods coming to Philippines. He also boosted American wages. Result—American articles sold in Philippines high price; Filipino wages not bosted, Filipinos can not afford American goods.

"Japanese work hard, produce cheaply, sell cheap goods. Filipinos need cheap goods, Japan gives what they need. Japanese good friends of Filipinos."

AMERICAN handlers of American goods have renewed a petition for a general overhauling of the Philippine tariff law—a task which the Philippine Legislature, in its last session, failed to accomplish mainly as a result of the bitter and drawn-out fight over the independence law. As the Legislature is meeting in special session—probably next February—it is expected that the Governor General will include in his message a suggestion for tariff reform.

The Legislature, as a matter of fact, had tried to increase the tariff protection on American articles when it was in session. But Washington made it understood that such a move then might spoil its overtures for tariff reciprocity with foreign countries.

Murder In Translation

By

Wm. Lyon Phelps.

LET me advise all those who wish to improve their reading knowledge of French or Italian or German or of any foreign language to read murder stories written by English or Americans and translated into the language one wishes to learn.

Most persons, learning to read a foreign language, either read idiotic sentences which have no value except for grammatical purposes, or else they read the famous classics, which are often desperately hard to understand, and are often—let me say this to you confidentially—most horrible bores.

• • • •

If you have a little knowledge and want more, read some terrifically exciting novel or play, where your eagerness to know what happens next will force you to read on further. Again, the murder stories and other thrillers are almost always in short sentences and brief paragraphs and straight-forward conversation or narrative. There are few long descriptions, no elegances of style, no profound thought; the speed of the action makes the language easy. This is the best way to acquire a vocabulary, and it is hopeless to attempt to read a foreign language when you do not know what the words mean. That sounds absurdly like a platitude, and yet that is precisely the difficulty in nearly all school and college courses in French, German, Italian, Latin, Greek. The pupils do not know what the words mean, even if they do know the rules of grammar.

• • • •

Edgar Wallace is translated into all the European languages. This week, just for the fun of it, I have been reading in German a whole row of English and American murder stories. Edgar Wallace's "The Indian Cloth" and others. And I was particularly glad to find that one of my hottest favorites among writers of thrillers, I mean "Carroll John Daly," is widely read in German translations. "An Eye for an Eye" ("Auge um Auge") and "The White Diamond" ("Der Weisse Diamant") are tremendously exciting stories, so packed with action that one can not let them alone. It gives an extra thrill to read them in a foreign tongue.

The publisher of these crime novels (Kriminal-Romane), Wilhelm Goldmann, of Leipzig, has a very sensible blurb on the cover:

"Crime novels as a class are neither good nor bad. They may belong to the world's greatest literature, such as the 'Orestes,' by Sophocles; 'Hamlet,' by Shakespeare; 'Crime and Punishment,' by Dostoevski. The crime novels of our time are certainly often very bad, indeed, especially when they appeal only to the beast which is in every human being. But the good crime novel has the features of a well-written story, presents something of the whole range of human experience, et without losing any of the excitement of a thrilling narrative."

Dr. Mims to Give Talk In Vanderbilt Program

Special Dispatch to The Post.

University, Va., June 19.—Dr. Edwin Mims, head of the English department at Vanderbilt University, will deliver the summer school convocation address here Tuesday.

Registration for the summer session, which started yesterday, is expected to reach 1,300, an increase of about 200 over last year. For the first time since the new dormitory unit was built several years ago all rooms have been leased. Dr. Mims will stop here on his way to Europe, where he will spend the next year on a visiting professorship.

No End of Books

Horses and Glamor.

NOW to me the horse is just a large and smelly animal. Once, up on the sides of Mauna Loa, Hawaii, I was so far persuaded out of my natural conservatism as to mount one. It went all very well as long as he walked, but when he began to slow-trot it was just too much—we had to quiet down again. I make this painful confession so that you will know that I am not one to wax lyric over equine flesh.

And still it is entirely possible to see the rich and natural glamor of "the horsey set." Emerson once remarked that when a man is feeling low he should buy and dress himself in a new set of clothes, complete from hat to shoes—I myself like to take the hunt-meet or steeple-chase cure. Soviet Russia will never catch up with the deft English psychology implicit in velvet caps and red riding coats, on great glossy brutes thundering down "between the flags," in the clipped and traditional lingo of trainers and owners and the nice ritual of M. F. H.'s and gentlemen-riders.

Lacking a brave meet ticket in your lapel, the next best thing—though expensive—is Harry Worcester Smith's rangy, genial, and most entertaining volume: "Life and Sport in Aiken" (Derrydale Press, $10). It's got the horsey glamor in every line.

• • • •

OBVIOUSLY, the people who are really going to buy the 950 elegant copies of this edition will be those mentioned in the book. There are quite enough. But the rest of us don't have to be personal friends of "Pete" Bostwick or Mrs. "Sonny" Whitney, nor to have dined at "Mon Repos," the famous Thomas Hitchcock home, in order to feel the charm of the life which goes on in America's capitol of the kingdom of the horse, Aiken, S. C.

Mr. Smith is proud to record its annals. He knows them well—he has been the close friend of Aiken's royal family, the Hitchcocks, for 50 years (and of Lewis, their Negro valet, for 35). He has himself lived in Aiken many years in one of the Hitchcock cottages which—to make the state of things quite clear to his millionaire neighbors — he calls "Woolworth House: Everything 5 or 10 cents."

And as for knowledge of horses and their ritual, Mr. Smith is founder of the Master of Foxhound Association of America, author of a number of sporting books and of the articles "Steeplechasing" and "Horse-Racing and Breeding" in the latest Encyclopaedia Britannica. And more, he seems one of the pleasantest people on earth.

• • • •

FOR here, in informal and oddly assorted chapters, he tells of the Hitchcock Woods (15 to 20 square miles of fine timber, threaded with dozens of riding paths, drag-hunt paths and steeplechase courses, into which no auto can enter save when there's a fire); of the Aiken drags (fastest in the world); of Thomas Hitchcock's method of training steeplechase horses; of polo, upland shooting and hunting jack rabbits (imported from Kansas) with beagles; of the children's drags (and the valentines little girls send him); of the sporting Sunday breakfasts he gives at Woolworth House (his invitations, printed, describe the pictures on his walls, the silver cups on his mantel, the sporting books on his shelves, and indeed the exact food which his guests will get); of the grand and lively horse-show balls they give (when, says the invitation, there are "oysters from the sea, turkeys from the roost, cranberries from the bog, and liquor from the corn," and "no introductions necessary; just look, smile and beseech by a glance; she won't turn you down"); and, by name, of the best grocers, fishmongers, and other tradesmen in Aiken (not omitting a nice word for Western Union).

And along with that somewhat astonishing variety there will be a most touching tribute indeed to the late Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, granddaughter of the Washington philanthropist, W. W. Corcoran, pioneer of the straddle seat for women riders in this country, founder of Aiken as a horse center and of the Meadow Lark Club, Long Island, as a polo center, and the first sportswoman of America of her time.

• • • •

BUT Mr. Smith, for all his eloquence, his kindly particularity with names, his cheery flow of appreciation and anecdote, really needed an editor. One can pass over the Grade A snobbismus of the porter on the Aiken special who once said to Mrs. Hitchcock's daughter. "Miss Titine, I been through the whole train. They ain't no one you'd like to dine with." Or the Grade Z boorishness of a Hitchcock house guest (duly named) who used to sit down in a comfortable chair, call in Lewis, the faithful old darkey, stick out his boot and let Lewis polish it "until his eyes stuck out," and then, without so much as looking up, murmur, "There's a little dull spot on the instep of this one."

But where on earth was Mr. Smith's eyesight when he included this as an allegedly complimentary remark from Theodore Roosevelt, after a visit to Aiken: "It was horse, morning, noon and night; but really man has his place in this world."

M. D. Beneman Weds Margaret Gottesman

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 19.—Miss Margaret Gottesman, daughter of Mrs. Edward Gottesman, of Brownsville, Pa., and Milton Daniel Beneman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barnet Beneman, were married yesterday in the study of Dr. Abram Simon, in Washington.

The bride is a graduate of Carnegie Institute of Technology and New York University, and has been a member of the Brownsville High School faculty. Mr. Beneman attend Staunton Military Academy.

Ancient Latin Quarter of Paris Soon Undergoes Modernization

Old Buildings Will Give Way to Up-to-Date Structures.

By the United Press.

Paris.—The oldest section of the Latin quarter of Paris, which saw the activity of medieval students, soon will be cleared away to give place to more modern, sanitary buildings. The blocks of buildings which are to be demolished are huddled together between the St. Germain and St. Michel quarters in tiny streets, so narow that one can walk down them and touch the buildings on either side.

This section of Paris dates back to hundreds of years ago when the first Paris students lived, studied and went to taverns in this quarter.

Original Cellars Remain.

It was not until the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries that the Latin quarter expanded south to the hill, where the Sorbonne now stands. In this section, at the time of Louis XII, a tavern named the Little Blackmoor made itself famous for wine and food, whose merits have been sung by many a medieval poet whose talents have since been forgotten.

Little remains today of these once famous places except the original cellars, for other buildings were constructed on their foundations a century or two ago. Traditions of the past still linger in this district and proprietors of these buildings still display a cellar said to be a former torture dungeon, another which is the supposed site of the revolution tribunal, and a third as the trysting spot of Marie Antoinette and her lover.

Still another, on the Rue de la Harpe, has a deep well where "undesirables" were done away with in the twelfth century, and a secret passage which runs under the Seine River and connects with a building on the other bank. This passage was blocked long years ago, but the underground entrance is still exhibited to tourists.

In the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, one of these little streets housed the studious copyists, to whose patient efforts is owed what has been preserved of classical writings. Not far away is another narrow little street, where the illuminators, who finished and illustrated the copyists' manuscripts. A little to one side was a seminary for priests, which was founded by Maitre Gervais, canon of Notre Dame Cathedral, physician of Charles V and early astronomer.

Although there are many memories in this part of Paris, the demolishing the old buildings will cause little regret, for with the clearing away of the streets, the pure Gothic architecture of the Church of St. Severin will be exposed in a proper setting for the first time in centuries.

Movies on Fish, Magazine Will Boost Colorado

State to Start Campaign to Make Itself the Nation's Playground.

By the United Press.

Denver, Colo.—Colorado is making elaborate plans to advertise its attractions.

State Fish and Game Commissioner R. G. Parvin has been given permission to purchase a talking picture showing all about fish and fishing. The State executive council has, at least tentatively, given its approval to the publication of a State magazine.

The purpose of the two projects is to bring the State forward and to advertise its natural beauty as an aid toward making Colorado the national playground for vacationists.

The publication of the magazine is, by far, the most ambitious advertising proposal the State has undertaken. It is planned to make it a monthly publication. There will be a fish and game section. The State highway department will have its place. The mining bureaus also will have a place.

In addition, the magazine will contain fiction—Colorado historical stories and pictures.

The State will have to pay for the first several issues, but, it is hoped, the magazine will become self-sustaining before the end of six months.

The film will be complete, with sound. It will show, as the main feature, the propagation of fish from the time the egg is taken until the fish is dumped into a frying pan.

Sound will be furnished by a voice explaining the intricate problems that go along with fish culture, and all the mountain scenes will be explained.

The picture, when complete, will be reviewed by the executive council, and, if it is accepted, will be available for the motion picture theaters. It will be released as an educational feature.

New Sugar Report Law Invoked for First Time

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 19.—Federal investigators here invoked for the first time the new law which requires merchants to report sugar sales in quantities of more than 25 pounds when they cited Stanley V. Otzelberger to appear before U. S. Commissioner D. Angle Wolfinger.

Federal agents arrested Herbert Metz, of Mount Briar, on charges of violating the internal revenue laws after a raid which netted a 200-gallon still, 425 gallons of mash and whisky. In another raid in the same section the agents found an unattended still and 150 gallons of mash, while in the Chestnut Grove section a 50-gallon still in operation, and unattended, and a quanty of mash and whisky were seized.

Foltz Elected Head Of Ballot Supervisors

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 19.—The Washington County Board of Election Supervisors organized yesterday by electing Robert G. Foltz, Republican, president, and naming Samouel C. Stick, attorney, and Charles O. Ward, clerk.

The appointment of Strite and Ward is understood to have had the approval of the Young Republican League of the county.

Koons-Grissinger Nuptials.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., June 19.—Miss Thelma Pauline Koons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy F. Koons, of Harrisburg, was married Saturday in Lancaster to William Albert Grissinger, of this place. The ceremony was performed in the St. Peter's Reformed Church by the Rev. James E. Walker. Mr. and Mrs. Grissinger will make their home in Waynesboro, where the bridegroom is employed as manager of a retail store.

Coin Demands Indicate Gains In Retail Trade

Philadelphia Mint Busy Day and Night Turning Out 'Chicken Feed.'

Philadelphia (U.P.).—Money is being made night and day at the United States mint here to meet steadily growing demand for small-coin pieces.

It is a sign of an increase in retail trade, according to Supt. Edwin H. Dressel.

In addition, the governments of Mexico, Cuba and Panama have been shipping silver to Philadelphia for coinage into half-dollar pieces.

Since May 1, according to mint officials, the demand for smaller coins has been steady, forcing them to add two extra 8-hour shifts in order to care for new business. The mint now operates 24 hours daily and pay rolls have been increaed.

Dressel said he didn't know just how long the "boom" would continue, but indicated that continued gains in business would keep the mint going at top speed.

During May the mint turned out 68,079,016 domestice coins, mostly pennies, and 4,500,000 foreign coins, which is "considerably ahead" of last year's figures, Dressel reported.

If the demand continues to grow, the record of 74,194,124 pieces turned out last December may be broken. The previous record had stood since 1917.

The mint recently coined abput $50,000 in the old-fashioned "cart-wheel" dollars, but making of such pieces temporarily has been suspended.

Explaining why they believed the demand for small coins was a sign of better retail business, mint officials said the pennies, dimes, nickels and quarters were needed because more dollar bills were changing hands over the counters of America's stores, necessitating more change.

Orchards in Peril From Cedar Rust

Fungi Spreading in Apple Belt of West Va.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 19.—Several growers in the eastern Panhandle apple belt are reporting unusual damage from cedar rust. Complaints of heavy damage have come from Hampshire County and from Jefferson. A Hampshire grower who has more than 200 acres bearing fruit reported that one part of his orchard was virtually "eaten up" by the fungi. Considerable damage to the apple crop is feared.

The West Virginia Horticulture Society, which unsuccessfully sought cedar-cutting as a Federal relief project earlier this year, has appealed to Commissioner of Agriculture J. B. McLaughlin at Charleston to start cutting the cedars.

Cedar rust stints and misshapes the growth of apples and destroys the leaves of the tree. It slowly kills trees by strangulation of foliage. The fungus comes from the bright red balls which develop on cedar trees with the first warm rains each spring.

Probe Opens in Injury Of Night Watchman, 70

Hagerstown, Md., June 19 (AP). An investigation was begun today by State's Attorney M. L. Ingram into the case of James R. Nicodemus, 70-year-old night watchman who was found unconscious Friday night at a wholesale grocery warehouse here. Nicodemus has not recovered consciousness.

It was thought at first that he had fractured his skull in a fall down a flight of stairs, but attending physicians advised Ingram today that the injury apparently had resulted from a heavy blow. The grocery company has begun an inventory to ascertain if anything is missing.

Postmasters Convene Friday in Martinsburg

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 19.—The West Virginia Division, National Postmasters, will hold its annual session here Friday and Saturday, with L. B. Kennlburg, of Thomas, president, in charge.

The principal address will be made by J. A. Latimer, special assistant to Postmaster General James A. Farley. Edwin Windsor, an officer of the national organization, also will speak. Arrangements for the affair were being made by a committee of which Postmaster Whiting C. Faulkner is chairman.

"I put it there this morning so we'd be sure to have a place to park!"

Venus stepped down from her pedestal at the Corcoran Art Gallery and sighed enviously. There was a wistful look in her eyes as she patted her hair back into place.

"You don't know what breaks these modern women get," she moaned. "Now, in my day, things were different."

We leaned against a glass case and listened to her plaintive tale.

"Why," she continued, "when I wanted vanishing cream or a new lipstick I had to send that flighty daughter-in-law of mine, Psyche, over to Proserpine's house across the River Styx to get it and, would you believe it, I tramped all the way from Olympus to the Parthenon without finding a single decent Beauty Shoppe! And you know how catty those Athenian newspapermen could be. That awful Aristophanes, who had that scurrilous column in the Daily Gazette, actually said that if I got another wrinkle my face would look like a prune skin.

"But these modern women have all their beauty and personality problems solved by Frances Mangum, of The Washington Post, and she knows ever so much more about beauty than I did." She smiled shyly. "But then, I had my moments. There was that dear boy, Praxiteles . . ."

Well, since Beauty is Truth, Venus was right: Miss Washington does get a break. All she has to do to keep her nose from being shiny or her chins from doubling is to follow Frances Mangum's advice in The Post. Frances knows her cosmetics, whether they're to be used to please a sweetheart, hold a husband, or make the blonde next door jealous. She tells you where to get 'em, how to apply 'em, and, when the date is over, how to peel 'em off. In short, Frances' column is the answer to a perplexed maiden's prayer.

And Handsome being what Handsome does, Frances also advises you on ways to develop your personality . . . how to acquire that charm which will make men want to shower you with attentions . . . and other women long to cut your throat. Even Madame de Stael could have profited from our Frances' column.

If you have wrinkles instead of dimples . . . circles instead of curves . . . girl-friends instead of boy-friends . . . let Miss Mangum tell you the reason why. Follow her advice and you'll have that movie-actress figure . . . that peaches-and-cream complexion . . . those come-hither eyes . . . and a lot more fun. Prince Georges Graduates 171 From 3 Schools

Martha Singleton and Betty Young, of Hyattsville, Get Scholarships.

Graduation exercises were held last night at three Prince Georges County (Md.) high schools, Hyattsville, Maryland Park and Oxon Hill. A total of 171 pupils received diplomas or certificates.

Hyattsville had the largest graduating class, diplomas being presented to 114 boys and girls by Nicholas Orem, county superintendent of schools. Maryland Park had 42 graduates and Oxon Hill had 13 pupils receiving diplomas and two obtaining certificates.

At Hyattsville, Dr. Henry I. Stahr, president of Hood College, Frederick (Md.), gave the address to the graduating class. The invocation and benediction were delivered by the Rev. Lawton Riley, rector of Pinkney Memorial Protestant Episcopal Church, Hyattsville. Songs by the senior class and presentation of awards by Principal J. A. Miller completed the program.

Scholarship awards given by Strayer's College and Genjamin Franklin University, both of Washington, were presented to Betty Sue Young and Martha Singleton, respectively. Happy Harry Is Ill, Old Capitol Servant

Harry Parker, beloved Capitol servant who can and does say that he is a Republican when the Republicans are in and a Democrat when the Democrats hold the stage, is seriously ill at his home in Riggs street.

Practically every House member since 1889—the date when Harry was named as messenger to the Ways and Means Committee through William McKinley, then Republican Representative from Ohio—has known "Happy Harry" and his gretting: "Everything is lovely."

Harry says that he was born at Mount Vernon, but doesn't know his age. His father was a slave of John Augustine Washington, but was freed before he was born. Harry worked at Mount Vernon when he was a boy for Col. Harrison H. Dodge, veterans superintendent of the estate.

Brewer L. Stouffer, manager of the bureau, said instructions are that only those who are registered by June 22 will be given employment in the works relief program of the Federal Government.

Defense Move Fails in Trial Of Liquor 'Plot'

Loudoun County Case Off Until Sept. 23; Guilty Plea by Quesenberry.

By the Associated Press.

Federal District Court officials in Alexandria yesterday said the session of the Loudoun County liquor conspiracy trial set for today would be unnecessary, since Judge Luther B. Way has overruled the demurrer filed in the case by defense counsel.

Today's session in the case was set primarily for disposing of the demurrer filed by counsel for the defendants, contending the indictments returned by a Norfolk grand jury were invalid.

The court officials said there would be no further activity in the case in the Federal court here until September 23. On that date, they said, the trial of 10 of the defendants who pleaded not guilty would begin.

Another defendant, Thomas Quesenberry, pleaded guilty, and Judge Way withheld sentence until the others have been tried.

The eleven defendants, all of Loudoun County, are charged with conspiring to evade internal revenue liquor levies.

Attorneys Join Demand For Virginia Judgeship

Richmond and Norfolk attorneys yesterday joined Senator Harry F. Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, in urging favorable action on the House-approved Montague bill establishing a new Federal judgeship for the Eastern Virginia District, according to the Associated Press.

Appearing before the sub-committe e of the Senate Judiciary Committee considering the bill were Senator Byrd, Braden Van Deventer and former Representative Menalcus Lankford, of Norfolk, and Thomas D. Gay, of Richmond. All of them urged a favorable report on the bill, asserting that Judge Luther B. Way, of Norfolk, is overworked by a heavy docket.

Lynchburg Is Seeking Mobile Transient Camp

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lynchburg, Va., June 19.—Lynchburg is seeking a mobile transient camp for work on the highway between Pleasant View and the city's water system dam on Pedlar River. It is hoped that 100 transients will be transferred to the camp.

It is proposed to improve the secondary highway between Pleasant View and the lake, a distance of four miles in which are 17 fords on Pedlar River. It is proposed to put low bridges at the fords. The road would be relocated in places and gravel surfaced.

Appeals Court Upholds Ouster Of Lyman Kelly

Tribunal in Virginia Denies Plea of One-Time Arlington Officer.

By the Associated Press.

Wytheville, Va., June 19.—A writ of error has been refused by the Supreme Court of Appeals in the case of Lyman M. Kelly against the Commonwealth, from the Circuit Court of Arlington County.

Kelly, the petitioner, asked for an appeal from a judgment of the lower court, entered on November 3, 1934, in an ouster proceeding under Section 2705 and 2706 of the Code of Virginia, by which he was removed from office as a member of the County Board of Arlington.

After the order removing him from office was entered and before adjournment of the term of court at which judgment was entered, on November 19, 1934, the petitioner moved to vacate the judgment and set aside the verdict and grant him a new trial on the ground of after-discovered evidence. The lower court overruled this motion.

At the time of the institution of the ouster proceedings, Kelly was chairman of the Arlington County board and the ouster proceedings were based on a report of a grand jury filed in the Circuit Court of Arlington County on August 3, 1934.

LAST CHANCE For Utility Investors

Now is your last chance to help prevent a grievous injustice to millions of American citizens. Now is your last chance to protest against the Wheeler-Rayburn utility bill, which if passed by the House of Representatives will destroy your or your neighbor's investments. The bill, with its drastic provisions to abolish holding companies, was forced through the Senate in spite of strong opposition.

AMERICANS DO NOT WANT THIS BILL!

The American people see the unfair, destructive character of this bill. They do not want it.

Senator Neely of West Virginia said he had received 23,000 messages from his constituents. On the basis of a tabulation of the letters he had actually read (a large number), only 69 wanted the bill passed; 22,931 desired that it be defeated.

A poll of the Nation's press taken by Newsdom shows that 494 papers are against the Wheeler-Rayburn bill, and 197 for it. A recent count by The United States News shows 83% of the newspapers commenting opposed to the bill. What is more representative of the public than the public press?

Not one representative of utility customers or investors urged that the bill be passed, in hearings before the Senate and House committees. On the other hand, investors' organizations, business groups of all kinds, State public utilities commissioners, insurance companies and savings banks, and thousands of persons like yourself have protested against it. Even the President's own business advisory group, the Roper Council, opposed the destruction of holding companies.

BILL FORCED THROUGH SENATE

Yes, the Senate has voted to wipe out utility holding companies. But an amendment which would have done away with the "death sentence" provision was beaten by the margin of only one vote—45 to 44—and only as the result of most desperate efforts by Administration forces. Says The Wall Street Journal in a report on the voting:

Emil Hurja, patronage distributor for Postmaster General Farley, was seen dashing here and there around the Senate just before the vote was taken. It is an open secret that the Administration's control over $4,880,000,000 was the deciding factor when the final vote was taken on the amendment.

So the money which you pay in taxes to help recovery was used to force Senators to destroy your savings. Do not let this happen when the bill comes up for a vote in the House. Urge your Representatives not to let patronage lead them into forgetting your interests by voting for the Wheeler-Rayburn bill merely because the Administration demands the bill be passed.

One reason why the Administration is so insistent upon having this bill passed, when there is a vast majority of popular sentiment against it, may be found in the statement of Senator Dieterich, himself a Democrat: "This bill, instead of regulating and correcting the evils that exist in holding companies, is an effort to bring about public control of all the utilities in the United States." Government ownership and operation of electric and gas companies means more political bureaus, more political jobs—and more taxes.

URGE YOUR CONGRESSMAN TO HEED YOUR WISHES

You have every right to make your wishes heard. And if your wishes are disregarded you have every right to elect new Congressmen who will represent you more faithfully.

Now is your last chance to help defeat this bill, which will wipe out practically all utility holding companies and the savings of millions of utility investors. If you have no utility investments, act for your neighbor who has.

Isn't it worth the price of a telegram or the effort of a letter to let your Representatives in Congress know that you want them to vote against this wanton destruction of the property of good American citizens? Act now. It is your last chance.

78-Year-Old Woman Writes Her Representative

Dear Sir:

As your office calls upon you to represent the people and act for their rights, I as a citizen of your district ask you to vote against House Bill No. 5423, as I am opposed to this legislation that puts public utilities under Federal commissions and management by Government.

I am 78 years old, and have a small investment in the utilities which brought me my income upon which to live. I don't want old age pension. I only want what I have honestly earned and I expect honest returns from the use of money invested.

If the Government taxes and probes utilities all the time, how can they pay their interest? What is the reason for such drastic legislation? I protest and hope you will act against such bills.

Yours respectfully,

Mrs. ——— ———
Rural Route No. —,

ASSOCIATED GAS & ELECTRIC SYSTEM

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and tangent and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food don't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blows up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get them two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

Just don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Entered a subscription. 25c at drug stores. © 1935 C. M. Co.

Suburbs Seek Share of Chest Cash for Relief

Contributions of U. S. Employes Wanted by Nearby Counties.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 300. Clarendon, Va.

Nearby counties in Virginia and Maryland want funds contributed by Washington Federal workers living in their territories to the Washington Community Chest returned to the counties for relief needs.

To accomplish this, a meeting will be held on the night of June 28 in the office of Gilbert Hall in the Investment Building, Washington, Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs, superintendent of public welfare in Arlington County, announced yesterday. Representatives of Arlington, Fairfax, Prince William and Montgomery counties and Alexandria City will attend.

It is pointed out that several thousand dollars are contributed to the Washington Community Chest each year by residents of these sections who are employed in Washington. The claim is that it is almost impossible to raise sufficient funds from residents not employed in Washington to carry on the relief work of these communities.

Those who will attend the meeting are E. C. Davidson, Mayor of Alexandria; D. C. Book and Walter Pierpont, of the United Charities of Alexandria; G. Wallace Carper, member of the board of supervisors of Fairfax County; Mrs. J. Hunter Mack and Mrs. Edler, of the Fairfax County Welfare Board; B. M. Smith, chairman of the County Board of Arlington County; J. Hugh McGrath, vice chairman of the Arlington County Welfare Board, and Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs, superintendent of the local welfare board; Mr. Lee, of Montgomery County, Md., and C. P. Close, of Prince Georges County, Md.

The report for the month of May, made public yesterday by Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs, superintendent of public welfare for Arlington County, shows that there were a total of 51 cases which received relief and 24 new cases of which only 4 were of any expense to the county, making a total of 75 cases handled during the month.

The report further shows a total of 132 visits to the office, of which 102 were white and 30 colored cases. Visits made to homes numbered 114. There were but 2 cases during the month where persons were fined in the county court which were handled by the welfare department. The total fines in the two cases collected amounted to $71.70. There was a total of $350.01 collected in non-support cases.

Bills paid during the month from the county relief funds amounted to $513.58, and from Arlington relief funds $93.66, making a total of $609.56.

Funds on hand in the Arlington County Trust Co., credited to Arlington County Relief Fund as of May 31, total $884.54. The amount on hand as of the same date in the same company which is credited to the Arlington County Board of Public Welfare is $843.50.

William E. Robey has been elected president of the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department.

Other officers elected are Charles B. Austin, vice president; Melvin Wouder, secretary; Phil Charles, assistant secretary, and J. Clements, treasurer.

Members of the board of trustees are Walter U. Varney, Thomas R. Mechem and Herbert F. Smith.

The trustees will meet on Tuesday, July 2, at which time they will appoint the chief and other officers of the department.

Announcement is made that during the summer vacation season the Arlington Community Library will be open from 10 a. m. to 12 noon on Tuesday and Fridays, and in the evening from 7 to 9 o'clock on Thursdays.

The Daughters of Isabella of St. Charles Catholic Church at Clarendon will sponsor a benefit card party tomorrow night at the home of Mrs. Norman Baldwin, on Wilson boulevard, at Clarendon.

The honor roll for the month at the Henry Clay School at Lyon Park, announced by County Superintendent Fletcher Kemp, includes the following list of pupils by grades:

Red Cross Sets Swim Classes At Alexandria

Capt. L. P. Strovel to Have Charge of Instruction in Life-Saving.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 823.

The Alexandria Chapter of the American Red Cross has completed arrangements to start life-saving and swimming classes at the Alexandria municipal swimming pool. The classes will be under the direction of Capt. L. P. Strovel, of the local rescue squad, who is also chairman of the chapter's first-aid committee.

The local Red Cross will sponsor a class in first-aid training for the Alexandria Chapter, Order of DeMolay. Approximately 25 members of the order have organized for instruction in first-aid work. After completing the course they will assist the Red Cross in its work.

The Alexandria Kiwanis Club will meet this afternoon at 2:30 at the Kiwanis summer camp in Fairfax County near Franconia, Va. This is the first meeting in the camp this year. The program this evening will be under the direction of Elliott F. Hoffman and, in the absence of President R. W. Eaves, Harry F. Kennedy will preside.

City Manager E. C. Dunn, of Alexandria, announced yesterday that 19 miles of improved roads in the city will be given a surface treatment during the next month. Bids for furnishing the material for this work will be opened next Wednesday at 3 p. m.

Superintendent of Schools T. C. Williams, of Alexandria stated yesterday that bids on furniture and equipment for the new $350,000 high school nearing completion will be opened next Wednesday. The cost of the school equipment exclusive of cafeteria furnishings is expected to be about $23,000.

A "Jack and Jill" wedding, in which 40 children of the Sunday School of the Washington Street Methodist Church will take part, will be presented in the church lecture room tomorrow at 8 p. m. Mrs. Grace Dove Davis is in charge of the entertainment. Proceeds will go to the church building fund.

A notice to the deliquent taxpayers of Alexandria has been issued by the city tax collector's office. This notice states that all real estate upon which the 1934 taxes have not been paid will be sold at public auction on July 26. The deadline on which delinquent taxes can be paid in order to avoid publication and sale will be July 6.

Lewis E. DeMoll, John D. Matter, Walter Pierpoint, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Chauncey and Frank Michelbach have been named as delegates from Alexandria, Va., to the thirtieth annual convention of the Retail Merchants Association in Ocean View, Va. on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

In anticipation of its second season, directors of the Little Theater Group of Alexandria have indorsed summer projects calling for the improvement of Lyceum Hall.

Before opening the season in the early fall, plans were made for the redecoration of the hall, the construction and purchasings of lighting equipment and improvements to the theater's workshop. Other improvements call for interior painting, enlargement of the stage and the construction of a rear stage entrance stairway which would connect with the first floor to provide additional dressing room facilities.

Takoma Park Lutherans Make Lawn Fete Plans

Plans for a lawn fete were made by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Takoma Park Lutheran Church at its last meeting of the season Tuesday night at the church hall. The affair will be held Wednesday at 7 p. m. on the church grounds, Fifth and Dahlia streets, Takoma Park, D. C.

Mrs. Walter Sheller is general chairman of arrangements. Mrs. Chester R. Brenneman, president, appointed the following in charge of the various features: Mrs. Ralph Mahr, grab bag; Mrs. Henry Schergер, cakes; Mrs. Frederick Waterholter, ice cream, and Mrs. Henry Brake, refreshments.

Church to Plan for Picnic.

Further details for the picnic to be held July 6 by the Brotherhood of the Takoma Park Lutheran Church will be made tonight at a meeting at 8 p. m. in the church hall. Fred Umhau is president.

Young People Hard to Handle, Students Told

Dr. Valeria Parker Speaks to Women at Md. U. Summer School.

Present-day young people are more difficult to manage than those of other generations, although they are beset by more temptations, Dr. Valeria H. Parker, of the American Social Hygiene Association, yesterday told Maryland women attending the summer school at the University of Maryland.

The school, the annual rural women's short course, is paying particular attention to music at this session. Nine county trained choruses are on the program and there are regular periods for group singing. Instructors in music are Harlan Randall, music instructor at the University, and Augustus D. Zanzig of the National Recreation School of New York.

Among the students at this session are a grandmother, Mrs. Jennie Woodland; her daughter, Mrs. R. B. Whittington, and her grand-daughter, Miss Olive May Whittington, all of Marion Station, Md. Twin sisters, Mrs. D. J. Hunter, of Westminster and Mrs. W. E. Keefer, of Hapstead, will receive certificates for attending the course for four summers.

Seven of the women attending the course have attended every session since it was started 13 years ago. They are Mrs. Clagett Hilton, Mrs. Motley Davis, and Mrs. Alice C. Kinsey, of Montgomery county; Mrs. W. F. Mulligan, of Prince Georges; Mrs. J. Walter Miller of Allegay; Mrs. J. G. Stevens, of Frederick, and Mrs. Harry A. Matthews, of Baltimore County.

The program today will include Miss Celestine Hodges, Miss Florence Hall and Mrs. Majorie Long, of Washington.

Farley Visions A Silver Lining At Hyattsville

Declares Country Further Out of Slump Than People Think.

The United States is further out of the depression than most persons realize, Postmaster General James A. Farley declared yesterday afternoon at ceremonies marking the laying of the cornerstone of the Hyattsville postoffice building.

"If people will continue to give President Roosevelt the encouragement and assistance that have characterized the first two years of his Administration, the Nation will soon find itself back in a normal condition," the Democratic national chairman asserted.

Pointing to increased revenues of the Postoffice Department, which for the current year he estimated at $30,000,000 to $40,000,000, Farley made the definite prediction that "times are rapidly getting better."

Despite the rain which was falling at the time set for the cornerstone laying, a crowd of several hundred persons watched the Postmaster General guide the large stone into place. The remainder of the program was completed in the Arcade Theater, which was donated by Sidney Lust, owner.

Greeted by Committee.

The official Postoffice Department party was met on Bladensburg road at the District line by the reception committee, headed by Mayor H. T. Willis of Hyattsville. Other members of the committee were S. Marvin Peach, Egbert F. Tingley, Mrs. W. J. Morris, W. Carroll Beatty and William P. Magruder.

A parade met the cars upon their arrival at Hyattsville. The parade consisted of the band from the National Training School in Washington, a detachment of Company F, Maryland National Guard; several troops of Boy Scouts, a delegation from Snyder-Farmer Post No. 3, American Legion, of Hyattsville, and a number of floats displayed by merchants of the town.

Following the laying of the corner stone, exercises at the theater were opened by an invocation by the Rev. D. Hobart Evans, pastor of the Hyattsville First Presbyterian Church. Introductory remarks followed by T. Howard Duckett, general chairman, and president of the Maryland Bar Association.

Mayor Willis gave the address of welcome to Postmaster General Farley and his party. Miss Mary W. Tise, who has served Hyattsville as postmaster since 1909, was introduced.

Senator George L. Radcliffe, of Maryland, spoke next, pointing to the postal system as a means of acquiring knowledge and a method for the dissemination of knowledge. He announced that Senator Millard E. Tydings was unable to be present because of the critical illness of his mother in Havre de Grace.

Representative Stephen W. Gambrill, of the Fifth Maryland Congressional District, was present at the laying of the cornerstone, but was compelled to leave on account of illness.

Smith W. Purdam, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, and a resident of Hyattsville, paid high tribute to the administrative ability of Postmaster General Farley, and also to Senators Radcliffe and Tydings and Representative Gambrill. He praised the civic spirit of Hyattsville in its preparation for the event. Purdum urged the boys and girls of the town to "follow the plumb line" in life exactly as the builders of the new postoffice followed this measurement in erecting the building. This is necessary, he added, in order to become good citizens.

Only Second Best Town.

Farley opened his address by referring to Hyattsville as the "second best town in the United States." He said his own town in New York State, in which he laid the cornerstone of a new postoffice a short time ago, naturally "was the best town."

"The Federal Government has honored Hyattsville by building such a fine new postoffice," Farley added. He said "its construction will mean much to the community."

The Postmaster General reviewed briefly the efforts of the Roosevelt Administration in bringing the country out of the depression and in restoring the confidence of the people. The President has made mistakes, he declared, as would any man who was face to face with such a difficult problem, but he prophesied that with the co-operation of all, the country would soon be "well on its way back to prosperity."

The program was closed with benediction by the Rev. Chester J. Czyz, assistant pastor of St. Jerome's Catholic Church, Hyattsville. Music by the National Training School Band completed the exercises.

A box was inclosed in the corner stone, in which were deposited a series of 1935 coins; a list of all the Hyattsville postmasters and the date of the erection of the first postoffice; a copy of the Hyattsville Independent, local newspaper; the original petition from the Hyattsville Chamber of Commerce for a new postoffice building; copies of correspondence with Representative Gambrill relating to the new office; a list of architects and engineers engaged in its construction; a copy of the official program; two letters postmarked June 19, 1935, at 4:30 p. m., and an emblem of the American Legion.

Do you tire easily?
Sluggish, overworked blood makes you feel weak—mentally dull.
S.S.S. Tonic brings vitality and tone to the whole body.

BODILY WEAKNESS is only one of the many symptoms of a low red-blood-cell count. Loss of appetite, underweight, nervousness and like common ills are often due to this same underlying cause.

The red-blood-cells must be up to normal and vigorous to keep the tissues pure and to help supply the body with fresh oxygen-energy in its circuit thru the entire body of over 200 times daily.

S.S.S. Tonic, in the absence of any organic disease, should help you get those vital red-blood-cells back up to normal. It will make you enjoy your food and help your digestion, too. It is a scientific medicine, 108 years of success. Just try it and you, too, may soon "feel like yourself again." Insist on S.S.S. Tonic in the blood red cellophane wrapped package. The larger size is sufficient for two weeks' treatment—and is more economical, too. At all Drug Stores. © S.S.S. Co.

Radio Guide's popularity poll named Jack Benny the outstanding radio performer; his show ran third in the "musical program" classification, and he and Mary Livingston were elected third among the "teams." Which would indicate that Jack might have been placed in all six of the classifications if he had been an announcer.

Leaders in other fields: "One Man's Family," with Lux Radio Theater and "March of Time" falling a little behind, topped the dramatic lists; most popular team was Amos 'n' Andy, with Burns and Allen second; Show Boat was voted best musical program, Rudy Vallee's spot taking second place. Of the orchestras, Wayne King's topped, followed by Guy Lombardo. Richard Kimber and Ben Bernie. Best announcer was Jimmy Wallington; Don Wilson and Harry Von Zell came next in favor.

Leading performers behind Benny are Lanny Ross, Eddie Cantor, Bing Crosby, Joe Penner, Fred Allen, Frank Parker, Will Rogers, Edgar Guest and Don Ameche in the order named.

Radio Guide observes that the voting revealed a new trend in radio tastes, with a higher level of appreciation. Comparisons to results of previous years showed a passing of the "low" comedian—the "subtle jest is mightier than the pun and the gag of doubtful character." One notable disclosure was the poor showing made by the much discussed children's programs, none of which approached a front position in the ten weeks of voting. Lighter comedy sketches fell behind in favor of standard drama and special radio productions.

Batting for Morgan Baker.

WHEN questioned about reports of considerable overtime in the correspondence unit, Division of Applications and Information, NEC, T. F. Carroll, chief of correspondence, said there has been some overtime, but explained that compensatory time off would be given for extra hours.

Considerable back mail received by this relatively new organization caused the overtime work, Mr. Carroll explained. The greater part of this bulk of mail has been answered, however, and employes started Monday on a 9-to-4:30 shift, he said. In the event a rush job has to be completed and employes work overtime, they will be given an equal amount of time off the next day, it was explained.

Last Monday marked the end of a two weeks' period of overtime, with hours from 8:30 to 6, Mr. Carroll said. These employes are now on the regular schedule and a record of all overtime has been kept, he added. Compensatory time off will be given for this extra work, according to the correspondence chief.

Mr. Carroll expressed the hope there would be very little overtice in the future.

On Calendar

The leave bills have been placed on the House union calendar, and efforts are being made to have them entered on the consent calendar, according to information from the office of Representative Robert Ramspeck.

Awards for obtaining the largest number of new members weekly of the N. F. F. E. have been presented the following: Charles J. Newell, Local No. 2; Miss Una J. Tilghman, Nocal No. 2; Miss Mae Morgan, Local No. 105; Miss Pearl Cooper, Local No. 261; R. N. Lowe, Local No. 21; John L. Bateman, Local No. 2; Mrs. Minnie D. Stevens, Local No. 105; Mrs. Sue Inge, Local No. 262; Mrs. Ola King, Local No. 262, and Miss Katherine O'Brien, Local No. 2.

Leave Bill Petition.

Action is being taken by the Washington Chapter, Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists and Technicians to present to Congress members a widely-circulated petition for the 30-day leave bill.

According to reports from the chapter, the federation expects to have 10,000 signatures within a week to present before the House and a much larger number when the bill reaches the Senate.

The following statement has been issued by the chapter:

"The F. A. E. C. T. welcomes all co-operation on this petition, and is prepared to furnish the forms to all organizations and individuals desiring them."

An additional announcement says that "the Washington Chapter of the F. A. E. C. T. is requesting the Civil Service Board of Appeals and Review, Chief Examiner Moyer, and Commissioner Mitchell to reconsider the adverse decision on the reallocation appeals of the sub-professionals at the Naval Observatory. Commissioner White has promised a personal investigation."

B. S. Clayton, Agriculture, today will explain how peat lands of the Everglades, in Florida, are drained for crops, before the annual meeting of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, at the University of Georgia, Athens.

IF F, P or C follows your name in this column, call in person on the Federal Diary editor between 4:30 and 6 p. m. today. You will receive tickets to one of the following Loew's theaters: (F), Loew's Fox (stage, Henry Armetta and Lester Allen with Nellie Breen, and other acts; screen, Warner Baxter, Ketti Gallian in "Under the Pampas Moon"); (P), Loew's Palace (second week of Will Rogers in "Doubting Thomas"); (C) Loew's Columbia (Mae West in "Goin' to Town").

Navy Department Lodge, No. 1, A. F. G. E., will meet tomorrow at 8 p. m. at the Carlton Hotel.

Justice Festeties.

Miss Frances Jewler (P), Identification division, has become the bride of Erwin Swooter.

G. F. Lindsey (C), Identification division, has returned to work after an extended illness.

One day during the Shrine convention, 633 visitors made tours through the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Last week approximately 2,000 persons visited the bureau.

Dr. Herbert Friedman, curator of birds, Smithsonian Institution, has completed a survey of different forms of avian societies reported by ornithologists in the professional literature from all over the world.

Leave for Atlanta.

E. Claude Babcock, president A. F. G. E., and Col. Charles I. Stengle, executive assistant, will leave today for Atlanta, where they will speak before A. F. G. E. locals Friday night. They also will speak at Columbia, S. C., Monday night.

Two new locals of A. F. G. E. have been organized, Lee Sumers, publicity director, announced yesterday. Officers of the Resettlement Administration, Local No. 206, are: Carol Agger (F), president; Clara Rogorad, secretary, and A. T. Fredericks, treasurer. HOLC, Local No. 207, was formed in Baltimore.

Great American Tourist.

New York, June 19.

The birds in the trees are whispering sweet symphonies for this is the time of year when the Great American Tourist busies himself selecting the happy hunting grounds where he will spend his two-weeks' vacation. The Yacht Club Boys have told you in song of the species. He hops up on roads in his little flivver, and the back window is covered with such plasters as "Guest of Canada," "Guest of Michigan," "Guest of Maine." The Great American Tourist is always boasting he's a guest, but he neglects to tell you that he paid through the nose for the plasters he picked up along the route. He spends two weeks vacationing, and then spends four weeks recuperating from the rigors of two weeks spent in the Catskills or the Adirondacks. In between, he spends in two weeks all the loose dough he saved in the other 50 weeks of the year. The birds in the trees, whispering sweet symphonies, are cuckoo birds, for it has been scientifically established that the Great American Tourist is cuckoo.

* * * *

The fatigue involved even in selecting a two weeks' vacation trip is terrific, or, as Sam Goldwyn would say, it is colossal in a small way. Personally, I am a vacation-literature-pawer. Other people get a kick out of tearing cellophane. I get a kick out of going to the travel bureaus and getting the nice yellow and red pamphlets that tell of the natural wonders of the country. I have been all over the country, not traveling, y'understand, but through the medium of these vacation resort pamphlets. My desk is loaded with them now. "Come to Virginia in June," shrieks one folder. "Canada Calls," says the second. "Have you ever spent July in the Green Mountains?" queries the third. Come to think of it, I never have spent July or even August in the Green Mountains. It is enough to develop an inferiority complex. "Bermuda is the spot when your nerves are on the spot," says a bright blue folder from a steamship office. It has a nice ring to it. I must remember it for a song title for Irving Berlin.

* * * *

Actually, I've been places on vacations, and I've seen things. There was that vacation at Lake Mooselookmeguntic, Me. The political speakers have always told of the "rock-bound shores of Maine," and in the passage of years my conception of Maine was that it was a large quarry. I had no idea that chuckling brooks tumbled through acres of pine trees, never dreamed of silent mountains slumbering under purple halos, or lakes that shimmered appealingly in the sun-flecked shadows of giant trees. I'll never forget the glorious vista of the Maine lakes, with Mount Washington purplish-vague, 80 miles distant, the snow on its peak resembling the white thatch of an octogenarian. I've always wanted to go back there, to cross again on the curious roofed-over bridges that span the rivers in northeast New England, to pass through towns and villages of surpassing charm and peace. I'd like to go back, but it's not safe to travel the roads traveled by the Great American Tourist.

* * * *

My recollection of Bermuda consists of a gallant etching of the colored British seamen of that port, born and bred to the sea that pounds at their doorstep. One of the harbor pilots had taken the S. S. Queen of Bermuda out through the tricky channel, and then we dropped anchor to wait for the pilot launch to arrive and pick up the pilot. Through the heavy seas we could see the sturdy little pilot launch plunging toward us, and at times it was completely hidden in the deep cavities formed by the heavy swells. Jockeying with all the skill of a Sonny Workman, the yellow-jacketed seamen came thundering in toward us on the crest of a huge wave. Our pilot, suspending himself from the rope ladder, waited until the launch was 6 feet distant and then propelled himself into the air. For one split second he seemed to hang there, and then the launch came in and scooped him up and departed on the same wave. Bermuda, which bans automobiles, is free of the Great American Tourist, who would turn it into a bedlam of flivver horns and crushed fenders.

* * * *

Sitting here, in the midst of my brightly-colored vacation guides and road maps, I find it difficult to make up my mind. "Relax in the Poconos," whispers one of the folders. "Cavort in the Chasm of Yellowstone Park," pleads another. "Lake Louise is a honey in August," beguiles a third. "The trout are biting in New Hampshire," reads a fourth. Shall I take Route No. 4 or Route No. 36? Shall I flee from it all via the Holland Tunnel or across the Fifty-ninth street bridge? Torn by the savage conflict, I can not make up my mind. If I venture out on the open road, I become a target for the Great American Tourist, who tears off your fenders, bumps into your radiator and goes careening into the distance, with his "Guest of Canada" sign flapping in the vagrant breeze. It is hardly safe to trust yourself on the highways with him; for his hand and his steering wheel are set against the world. The birds in the trees are whispering sweet symphonies, my desk is cluttered with vacation literature, but I'll take no chances. I'll spend my vacation right here in New York.

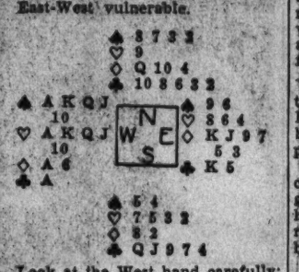
Culbertson on Bridge

It Is to Laugh.

IT is not very kind to laugh at the misfortunes of others, and for this reason I hesitated before using today's hand. But sometimes Bridge games produce examples of genuine humor, and the deal below is one of them. It was played in a casual game at Crockford's Club, the famous New York Bridge Club. One of the players held as nearly a perfect hand as most of us will ever see. He was first thrown off his course by an opening psychic bid, and in trying to recover he got his bidding tangled up and finally played at a partscore contract in his weakest suit, instead of at a Grand Slam contract in his best suit.

South, Dealer.
East-West vulnerable.



Look at the West hand carefully; you may never see one like it. It was unfortunate for West that he was not the dealer; by making an opening two-bid and receiving a positive response from his partner, he would probably have succeeded in reaching seven notrump. But West did not deal; and South, a famous woman player, sensed the hopeless nature of the North-South hands and made a psychic opening bid of one club.

West could have coped with this psychic attack by overcalling with two clubs, a bid which is forcing to game and which shows about the same strength as an opening two-bid. But West was confused by the array of Aces and Kings which faced him, and could not keep his wits about him. He failed to overcall in the opponents suit, but bid only two spades.

Since this bid, while strength-showing, is not forcing, it was very lucky for West that his partner kept the bidding open at all. But the luck was stil holding up, and East bid three diamonds, North having passed.

West now realized his first overcall had by no means shown his great power, and knew he should have bid the opponents' suit. To repair this error, West decided to bid clubs. "Three clubs!" said he.

Alas, this could have made matters even worse; for, three diamonds having already been bid, three clubs was insufficient. But North could have rescued West from his predicament by calling attention to the irregularity; for West would then have corrected his error by bidding six or seven notrump. North, however, was not so kindly disposed. He merely passed.

East decided West had a fair hand with a strong club suit, and that the opponents probably had the major suit strength, making game impossible. So East passed too. South, supremely happy that the opponents had not reached a game (though, of course, not dreaming of how great the danger really was) was satisfied to pass and let West play the hand in her best suit.

And at three clubs, undoubled, the biggest hand ever dealt in Crockford's was played. Poor West! He did not even make his contract.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

THERE are several kinds of tapeworm that may live in human beings. The parasites are called tapeworms because they are long and thin and resemble "tape." Their life habits are so similar that they can be considered together. Each worm consists of a head, by means of which the parasite fastens itself to the wall of the intestine, and a body divided into segments which vary in number from one to several thousand. Three main varieties are of great importance to health: the fish, the pork, and the beef tapeworms, so called from the type of food through which they gain entrance to the human body.

The fish tapeworm (Dibothriocephalus latus) is widely distributed throughout the world. It is very common in Japan and in certain countries of Europe and, in recent years, has been increasing in the United States and Canada. Its presence in the human body is often overlooked, as it may live for years without producing important symptoms other than anemia. The worm is grayish yellow in color, with an almond shaped head along which are deep grooves. Its segments often number several thousand. It is from raw, smoked, or poorly cooked fresh-water fish that man contracts the disease.

The pork tapeworm (Tenia solium) occurs not infrequently in man, who acquires the worm by eating pork which has not been cooked sufficiently to kill the young forms (larvae). These larvae are most important, as the danger does not come from the presence of the adult worm but rather from the tiny forms. Young worms may find their way to any of the organs of the body, including the brain and the heart. The location determines the symptoms and it is not difficult to see that this complication may assume serious proportions when a vital organ is invaded. The adult worm measures from 6 to 9 feet in length. The head is globular and contains many hooklets. The segments are usually fewer in number than in the fish tapeworm.

The beef tapeworm (Tenia saginata) lives in the adult state only in the human intestine, while the young worms are found exclusively in the intestines of cattle. This form is very common in man all over the world. Fortunately cold storage is effective in killing this worm, and as a consequence the present care with which beef is handled is a factor in reducing its occurrance. Like other parasites, it is also destroyed by cooking. This worm may grow to enormous lengths; some over 100 feet have been reported. The head is cuboidal and contains four suckers, with which it anchors itself to the intestinal wall.

The symptoms associated with these parasites vary. It is possible to harbor one or more worms for many years without noticeable discomfort. Frequently there is a sense of abdominal distress with colicky pains. Irregular appetite, nausea, and vomiting may follow. The segments of the beef tapeworm are frequently seen in the stool and, as a result, this type is most easily recognized by the patient. In addition to symptoms referable to the intestinal tract, an anemia of severe type may develop, particularly in the case of the fish tapeworm.

In the treatment of worm infection every effort must be made to dislodge the head, as the mere removal of the segments leads only to regrowth of the parasite. Numerous worm medicines are used, extract of male fern being the most widely known. This drug should not be used except as advised by a physician. After the worm has been killed by the drug the intestine may be cleared by a saline laxative. It is best to have the patient in bed during the treatment. Unless the head is obtained the remedy has been unsuccessful and a new trial must be made. An individual may act as host to more than one tapeworm, and the reappearance of symptoms should arouse suspicion of another invader.

3 D. C. Girls Make Court Bow June 25

Marianna Dunn, Emlen Davies, Cynthia Davis to Be Presented.

Silver Jubilee Program Shows London at Gayest in 25 Years.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Once again Washington debutantes have been "commanded" to make their bows before the King and Queen of England at the last drawing rooms of the season to be held in Buckingham Palace June 25 and 26.

Of all the seasons to be presented at court, this is probably the most desirable in many years. Women who have received that signal honor this year not only have the honor of the presentation itself, but the pleasure of being in London for festivities which have not been equalled since the coronation of King George and Queen Mary, who are celebrating their silver jubilee.

The young Americans who are to be presented have just enough time to learn the bows and graces which they must know before the great moment of presentation.

From Washington there will be three prominent and popular debutantes, all of whom are now in London, excitedly attending fittings for gowns, and the meetings with Mrs. Robert Worth Bingham, wife of the United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James, who is not only coaching them in court etiquette, but who will also present them to the king and queen. They are Miss Marianna Dunn, daughter of the Chief Protocol of the State Department and Mrs. James Clement Dunn; Miss Emlen Knight Davies, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, and Miss Cynthia Davis, daughter of the former Secretary of War, Mr. Dwight F. Davis.

Abroad Several Months.

Miss Dunn has been abroad for several months, having gone first to Italy to visit Miss Christine Long, daughter of the United States Ambassador to Italy and Mrs. Breckenridge Long. Miss Long also was a debutante of the past season in Washington. After spending some time with the Longs, Miss Dunn was joined by her mother with whom she has been traveling in Europe for several weeks.

Miss Davies, a debutante of the past season, has had a strenuous year, for not only was she among the gayest of the debutantes, but she was also a sophomore at Vassar College, and important examinations had to be taken before she could sail for England with her father early this month to join Mrs. Davies who has been abroad for two months.

Miss Davis is well known in the Capital, having lived here off and on since her father was in the Cabinet of President Coolidge when her elder sister, Mrs. Roger Makins, the former Miss Alice Davis, was a debutante. Later Miss Davis went to the Philippines with her father when he was governor general and after the death of her mother, she and her elder sister took turns as official hostess for their father, who is at present making his home here. Miss Davis sailed a few weeks ago.

Will Make Bow June 25.

All three of these girls will be presented June 25 at the first of the two June drawing rooms. Other Americans who will make their bows on that day are Miss Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Calif.; Mrs. Henry Bedford, Miss Leta Clews, Miss Frances Lorillard Ronalds and Miss Jane Watson, of New York; Miss Priscilla Taylor, of Westchester, Pa.; Miss Nancy Symington, of Baltimore, and Miss Hulda Warfield Cheek, of Nashville, Tenn. Miss Cheek sailed two weeks ago with her cousin, Miss Pattie Warfield Edmunston, of Baltimore, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Royal T. McKenna, of Washington, who made her debut in the Capital several years ago.

On June 26 another group of 12 Americans will be presented at court.

D. C. Girl Wed To Graduate Of Annapolis

Miss Elizabeth O'Brien Becomes the Bride of Ensign Schwartz.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth O'Brien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Brien, to Ensign Frank Dewey Schwartz, U. S. N., took place yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at 2400 Sixteenth street, the Rev. W. Joyce Russell, of St. Thomas Apostle's Church, officiating. Ensign Schwartz is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Schwartz, of Wichita, Kans.

During the ceremony, performed before an improvised altar decorated with palms, ferns, lilies and cathedral candles, a stringed orchestra played.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a period dress of mousseline de soie. Her voluminous veil of tulle fell from a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Her matron of honor, Mrs. Stephen H. Caldwell, wore green chiffon with matching accessories, and carried talisman roses. Miss Gertrude Mae Healey, her maid of honor, wore a similar dress of peach chiffon and also carried talisman roses.

The bridesmaids were Miss Molly Pagan and Miss Amanda Chittum, whose dresses were of yellow mousseline de soie with matching accessories. They wore hair hats and carried old-fashioned bouquets of yellow and blue flowers. Miss Martha Dewey, cousin of the bridegroom, and Miss Jaqueline Ames wore blue mousseline de soie with blue accessories and hair hats, their flowers similar to the other two bridesmaids.

Mr. Thomas Lochi O'Brien, brother of the bride, was best man. The ushers were Mr. David Letts, Mr. James Proctor, Mr. Calvin Milans, Mr. John A. Hawley, Mr. Elwood Sager and Mr. Charles Squire, all of Washington.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at 2400 Sixteenth street. Among the out-of-town guests were the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Schwartz. Mrs. Schwartz wore a delft blue chiffon redingote over figured chiffon and a dusty pink felt hat. Her corsage was violets and orchids.

The bridegroom's two grandmothers, Mrs. A. L. Dewey, of Robinson, Ill., and Mrs. Margaret Caperles, of Bradford, Pa. Mrs. W. J. Young, of Robinson, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. N. J. O'Brien, of Kew Gardens, Long Island; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. O'Brien, Forrest Hills, Long Island; Miss Catherine O'Brien, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. Edward Manguson, New York City; Mr. R. H. Tynes and Mr. R. H. Tynes, jr., of New Haven, Conn., also attended.

The bride attended Wilson Teachers College and George Washington University. The bridegroom graduated from the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, in 1933. The bride's going-away dress was gray, with which she wore a dark blue coat trimmed with blue fox.

Ensign and Mrs. Schwartz will make their home in San Diego, Calif.

From there they will go to their summer place, Pinecroft, at Virginia Beach.

Kate Leedy Young to Marry James Heroy, Jr., Today in N. Y.

Miss Kate Leedy Young, daughter of Mrs. William G. Bibb, of New York, and the late Mr. L. Fenwick Young, of Washington and Birmingham, Ala., and Mr. James Harold Heroy, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Harold Heroy, of New York, will be married today at 5 o'clock at St. James Episcopal Church, in New York. The Rev. H. W. B. Donegan will perform the ceremony, assisted by Dr. Carl Reiland. A reception will follow at the Hotel Pierre.

The bride will be given in marriage by her stepfather, Mr. William G. Bibb, and will wear her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin. The gown is trimmed with rosepoint lace that belonged to the bride's grandmother and is simply designed with long, tight sleeves, and a train which is covered by a full tulle veil. She will also wear a face veil and will carry a bouquet of white iris and valley lilies.

Attendants Named.

Mrs. Eugene Van Ness, of New York, will be Miss Young's matron of honor. She is the former Miss Marjorie Schuyler, and made a joint debut with the bride-elect. The other attendants will be Mrs. Richard S. Perkins, Miss Elizabeth Perkins, Miss Betty Pearl, and Miss Christina Ten Broeck, of New York; Miss Ann Strater, of Louisville, Ky.; and Miss Suzanna Oliver, of Birmingham. All attendants will be gowned alike in frocks of jade green net, fashioned with short capes and full skirts with ruchings. Their large-brimmed hats, which match their costumes, are made of horsehair and are trimmed with velvet bands of a darker shade of green. Bouquets of shasta daisies and baby's breath complete their costumes.

The bride's mother will wear a dress of sapphire blue chiffon and a picture hat of dusty pink.

Mr. William Ward Heroy will serve his brother as best man and the ushers will be Mr. William Fenton, Mr. Henry M. Brookfield and Mr. Eugene Van Ness, of New York; Mr. John Escher, of Englewod, N. J.; Mr. John Herrick Jackson, of New Haven, Conn., and Mr. Beekman Cannon of Cherry Valley, N. Y.

The church will be decorated with white garden flowers. Vases of white stock will be place on the alter, which is to be flanked by groups of Australian ferns. There will be clusters of peonies on either side of the aisle and a carpet of moss green will lead to the chancel steps.

At the Hotel Pierre, where the wedding reception will be held, large torchieres filled with weigelia and snow balls and vases of assorted garden flowers will be scattered throughout the reception room.

Member of Junior League.

Miss Young is a member of the Junior League and made her debut in 1933. Mr. Heroy was graduated from Yale in 1934. His father is associated with the Corn Exchange Bank in New York and is vice president of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.

After a wedding trip Mr. Heroy and his bride will live at 230 East Seventy-first street in New York.

Those who will attend the wedding from Washington are Mrs. James E. Alexander, Mrs. William A. Hill and daughters, Miss Mamie Livingston, Maj. and Mrs. Oliver Newman, Mrs. William B. Young, Mrs. N. M. Hill, Mrs. E. A. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Meem and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Snodgrass and Miss Ellen Lee Snodgrass, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ramage and Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Bag and Halter Sets Are Smart For the Beach

Made in Cotton Prints, With Floral Designs or Polka Dots.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

A SMART STYLE note is struck by the new beach bag and halter sets. These come in matching cotton prints, vivid with floral designs or polka dots running the gamut of bright summer colors.

Halter and bag together form a useful and attractive twosome which any beach-going young lady will find much to her liking. The bag, lined with a sturdy rubber, is washable inside and out. It is amply large for suit, slippers and numerous little odds and ends. Rope handles give it that seafaring touch.

The halter in its gay designs will form a striking contrast to solid colored shorts, or long beach slacks. Although a comparative newcomer to the beach fashion picture, it is already high in favor with those who like their after-swim sunbathing in cool and comfortable fabrics.

Beach bag and halter are sold together as a summer set for only $1.

Protection for Hose.

Why not save your hose with a pair of heel protectors? On display now are some that fit so snugly into the heel of your shoes you won't even know they're there.

If you find that your hose have a terrible habit of wearing out at the heel, then do give the protectors a chance. They cost only 25 cents, and before the summer is out they'll save you many times that amount.

Many people find them ideal to wear with loose shoes which are prone to slip up and down in a most annoying fashion.

For Discriminating Women.

A nationally known toilet goods house is putting out bath salts, toilet water, and eau de cologne in all their perfume odors. This enables the discriminating woman to carry out the same scent from the time she steps into the tub in the morning till bedtime when she rubs cologne on her forehead for a last soothing touch.

Paper Towels Convenient.

A roll of paper towels will prove a big convenience to families who move to beach cottages for the summer.

Rolls containing 150 towels, in a variety of gay colors, cost only 15 cents.

They may be used in the kitchen for wiping dishes, or in the bathroom as hand towels. They are grand for picnics and outings. Housewives who give them a try will soon see a big saving in laundry expenses.

Cream for Sunburn.

A sunburn cream that's fine for taking with you wherever you go comes in a handy tube. The screw-on cap is fastened to the sides with small wires so that it can be taken off as often as you like with no chance of losing it.

The cream itself is a general favorite with men, because of its clean odor. They can carry a tube of it in the pocket of their golf bag, and use it to ward off blistering and burning beneath a scorching sun.

It's modestly priced at $1 a tube.

To Beautify the Bedroom.

You can give your bedroom a summery touch with the new sateen bedspreads selling for $1.95 in a downtown store.

These are extremely appropriate for the season. Pastel-colored flowers spread themselves across an ivory background in dozens of lovely designs.

They're available in single and double sizes.

Perfume Adventure.

The popularity of floral perfumes this season is unprecedented. Almost unanimously, smart women both here and on the continent have put their heavy, exotic scents away in preference to winsome flower fragrances.

Foremost in the field of perfumers was one who had a genius for interpreting flowers into perfumes. Three of his fragrances—lilac, honeysuckle and carnation—have received the acclaim of thousands of women, so true are they to nature.

You may buy them together in a smart triple set, encased in a gay little box, green, red, blue, black or white, attractively gold trimmed. Don't miss this real perfume adventure.

Still a Delicacy.

Once upon a time there was a famous French soap that sold for 75 cents a cake. Now the company is no longer making it, so all the stock that was left is being sold at drastically reduced prices. If you drop by the toilet goods department of a local store you'll be able to buy three cakes for 65 cents.

Shampoo Rinse.

Query—Whenever I shampoo my hair at home I find it virtually impossible to rinse all the soap out. What can I do about this?

MARGARET.

Answer—Use a table to two tablespoons of vinegar in your rinse water. If your hair is blonde you might use lemon instead. If possible use a spray for rinsing purposes.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4200, Extension 305, for further information, or write, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

What TODAY Means

Gemini.

IF JUNE 20 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m., from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m., and from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m.. The danger periods are from 6:30 to 8:30 a. m., from 4:30 to 6:30 p. m., and from 10:30 until midnight.

If you contact friends this day you may profit by it. Avoid reaching conclusions too hastily, as subsequent events may cause a change of mind. Conditions will possibly incline some people to evidence skepticism, even in common place statements, so be careful how you present facts. You might hear some preliminary news of a matter in which you are interested. Business activities probably will have a slow start, but as the day progresses they may pick up satisfactorily.

Social gatherings will be held under auspicious conditions and should prove successful. Married and engaged couples, and those hoping to make a conquest, should be guarded in the language they use, for if crude or vulgar speech is indulged in, indignation is likely to be manifested.

If a woman, and June 20 is your birthday, you may be inclined to easily tire, of an environment or fixed responsibilities. If you expect to advance your interests you must overcome this characteristic. You possess every qualification essential for getting excellent results in either social or commercial life, if you attend to one thing at a time. You should have some other interest to help absorb your energetic thinking, besides simply domestic routine. You have a brain which needs to be kept busy to be contented. Writing, nursing, social welfare employment, as well as selling, should provide the type of work in which you would be happy. If you keep yourself from getting into a rut after you marry, your married life should be a happy one.

The child born on June 20 generally, when it reaches its teens, requires careful guidance in personal affairs, as it might be inclined to do things in a haphazard fashion if left alone.

If a man, and June 20 is your natal day, you will succeed better if you do not have too many irons in the fire. You are apt to find conservative methods productive of better results than those of a speculative, nature. Law, pharmacy, medicine, journalism and salesmanship may be the best means for gaining recognition.

Successful people born on June 20:

Helen Gould Shepard, philanthropist.

Joseph M. Wilson, architect and civil engineer.

Louis W. Wyeth, jurist.

Daniel Saunders, manufacturer.

Daniel McCook, lawyer and soldier.

Eugenics News and Feature Service Is Planned by Student at G. W. U.

Barbara Budd Enlists 2 Friends in Unusual Undertaking.

By Emma Perley Lincoln.

IF THE READING public is going its way, ignorant of the importance of "racial solidarity," "racial quality," "discriminative selection," and all the other topics that to the sociologically minded are the repartee of the day, it won't be ignorant long. A news and feature service will come into being soon. Designed to serve as a clearing house for facts on the subject of eugenics. The first service of its kind, it is the idea of a young girl just out of her 'teens.

This will be another case to upset the graybeards who wag their heads over the sad state of the younger generation, for Barbara Budd, whose intense interest in this scientific topic, has prompted her to lead the way into a new activity for women, seems the epitome of the serious-minded young woman of 1935.

Miss Budd, a student at George Washington University, where she majors in sociology is working her way through college, turning her efforts to the things that interest her most. Chief of these is the science relating to the welfare of the human race.

Champions Early Study.

According to Miss Budd, the study of eugenics should begin early. She thinks that children in the primary grades may begin with rudimentary and indirect teaching through hygiene, physiology and nature sciences, going into the higher phases later, when definite courses are offered.

Asked if a thorough knowledge of eugenics might tend to stunt the romantic aspect in any way, Miss Budd insisted that on the contrary, romance would be more apt to appear where and when it should and that brought up with right thinking along the lines of marriage and love, the selective system would prevail whether consciously or unconsciously.

She feels that in the meantime the best thing that can be done is to make available as much information as possible on the practical growth of the eugenic idea. Two friends, older and more versed in the subject than herself, have volunteered to join Miss Budd in her news service.

Enterprise Clears $200.

Despite her youth, this is not her first flight into an independent business venture. About three years ago, confronted with the sudden necessity for making money to help her through her first year at college, she carried on a successful and original undertaking.

She will tell you that this was not her own idea but that of a young mother she was helping.

She wanted to go to college in the fall. She couldn't bring herself to allow her mother, who had sacrificed so much for her, to assume all the financial responsibility. There were no jobs to be had, certainly none for a girl just out of high school.

Despite this handicap, in two months from the day the bright idea went into operation, she had cleared $200.

So it was that the dwellers in a certain apartment house here were surprised to find in their letter boxes a neatly typed announcement to the effect that by telephoning a certain apartment in the building, and expressing their choice from the menu submitted, a dinner would appear as if by magic at their doors. In the menu were a main course and dessert, and the choice for each day in the week was given. The charge was 25 cents an order.

Barbara and her friend formed a partnership, dividing the work and profits. The partner using her kitchenette and Barbara typing the announcements, delivering the food and collecting the money. Their outlay for equipment was $1.50 for a machine to multigraph the menus and $3 or $4 for a heavy pot for cooking roasts.

The plan worked like a charm from the start. The residents of the apartment house were happy to be relieved of cooking and still have the pleasure of dining in their own homes.

Unforseen difficulties arose, which threatened to upset the operations. For instance, the freight elevator, never too fast-moving, stopped occasionally and Barbara would have to go up and down eight flights of stairs carrying trays of steaming covered pans and chilled desserts.

Served 60 Orders in Day.

The most money she ever made in one evening was when she served 60 orders of pot roast and iced watermelon. These two dishes were the top favorites incidentally. Broiled chicken was popular too, but even at the inflated charge of 35 cents an order bore a minor profit.

The piece de resistance and which carried a 200 per cent profit was macaroni and cheese.

This she made without a recipe—a feat typical of the family initiative. "The Budds can do anything" she boasted naively. "For instance, my Uncle Ralph, president of the Burlington Railroad, started from scratch . . and my daddy too, if he had lived. My mother says I inherit my fearlessness from him."

After the first month Barbara carried on alone, doing all the taking of orders, the marketing, delivering and cleaning up afterward, as her partner left the city.

Looking back, she says she can't imagine how she ever did it all. But in September she was off to Rockford College in Illinois.

Her reason for choosing Rockford is an interesting sidelight. She couldn't afford Wellesley or Vassar where most of her friends were going, and she didn't want to go to a school near home, because she had a horrow of becoming provincial.

The year before with money she had earned she had taken a swing through Canada and down the Pacific Coast. This trip had further strengthened her conviction that all Eastern girls should have a year or two at school in the West, and vice versa.

Typical of the new serious-minded younger generation is Barbara Budd, who having put herself through her first year of college by means of a novel food service for Washington apartment dwellers now plans to establish a eugenics news service to make the public heredity conscious.

Useful and Attractive Smocks Provided by This Pattern

Pattern No. 941.

FROM NURSERY school to housekeeping days, smocks are a necessary part of the wardrobe. And now they are more than just utilitarian. The little-girl collar, the gathered or smocked front fullness and the big pockets on this design all serve a purpose, but they are attractive as well.

Three buttons in the back are the fastening, giving complete and unbroken protection to the front of the frock beneath. Smocking pattern, and nine pieces are included in this pattern. There is also a large, clear instruction chart. This design is cut in sizes 6 to 20. Size 14 requires 3¼ yards of 35-inch fabric.

Linoleum Belts Are New Fashion

Pigskin, Other Leathers Also Popular.

Paris, June 19 (AP).—Kitchens, farms, mines and silkworms furnish materials for the new belts—so important a note in the 1935 fashions which will appear in smart drawing rooms this summer.

Linoleum mkes belts for gauzy lace dinner frocks. Pigskin and other leathers form the waistline demarcation on street dresses. Gay colored silk wraps around dark wools. Gold and silver metal cocks and mushrooms buckle them.

The linoleum belts, among the gayest of the new designs, are treated to a coat of paint and finished with a painted plaque of bright flowers or silver hearts pierced by a red dart. Pigskin and the leathers are handled in simpler fashion.

The widths of the new belts are as varied as their designs, some of them being 4 to 5 inches wide, otherns little more than a cord or string. Belts of leather, both dyed and natural, are sometimes designed to wrap twice around the waist or buckle three times in front. Gay taffeta—coral or hyacinth blue—swaths several times around the waistline of black frocks and ties in a small bow at the side, while wide isinglass belts buckle in the back.

Recent Studies Demonstrate That Milk Enhances Life Span

THE VALUE of milk in lengthening life is pointed out by Dr. Peter G. Ten Eyck, commissioner, Department of Agriculture and markets, New York State, in a recent statement. He says:

"Scientific proofs of the value of milk for lengthening desirable years of life have been furnished by Dr. Henry C. Sherman of Columbus University and supported by others, such as Dr. E. V. McCollum of Johns Hopkins. Long before the advent of the new science of nutrition, milk was recognized as the most valuable food for man kind. The influence of milk diets upon longevity has been demonstrated in various races back to earliest history. The strong, virile peoples, the conquerors, have always been owners of cows and other milk animals, and consumers of dairy products, fruits and vegetables.

"Dr. Sherman's experiments indicate that about 10 per cent, or approximately six years, might be added to the present expectation of human life by means of optimum diets in which milk plays the stellar role. Our average expectation of life is now about 59 years, which in itself represent a marked increase during the last century.

"Significant findings show that the optimum amounts of vitamins A, C, and G which cause these increased years of life are much greater than what is usually considered man's actual requirements. In other words, the body is able to make use of a much more liberal intake of milk containing these vitamins than has been considered absolutely necessary."

Miracle Cake Batter Gives Menus Variety

Three-in-One Recipe Will Solve Your Week-end Dessert Problem.

By Dorothea Duncan.

HERE IS a three-in-one recipe that is going to solve your dinner dessert problem for the rest of the week. How? Just wait and see. First of all get acquainted with this recipe for miracle cake. It is true to its name, and a life-saver in hot weather, especially when company is coming and you have to plan your menus in advance.

The cake batter is all mixed on the first day, and then each dessert is baked just before the meal at which it is to be served. It sounds impossible, but it isn't, for there is one little secret ingredient, namely, double action baking powder, that keeps your dough in perfect shape from one day to the next. Here is the recipe, and after you have studied it, read on and find out what can be done in the way of making several desserts.

Miracle Cake.

4 2-3 cups sifted cake flour
4½ teaspoons double action baking powder
1 cup butter or other shortening
4 eggs, well beaten
2 teaspoons vanilla
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups sugar
1½ cups milk

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs and mix well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Divide batter into pans for storing and baking in any of the three ways suggested below. Keep batter in the refrigerator.

Favorite Jam Squares.

Pour about 1-3 of the miracle batter into greased pan, 8x8x2 inches, cover closely with damp cloth, then waxed paper, tie securely, and store in refrigerator until cake is to be baked. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degree F.) 50 minutes, or until done. Cool. Top with ½ cup of any favorite jam folded into ½ cup cream, whipped. Cut in squares for serving.

Prune-Apricot Upside Down Cake.

4 tablespoons butter
13 cooked apricots
½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed seeded
6 cooked prunes, halved and miracle cake batter

Melt butter in an 8x8x2-inch pan over low flame. Add sugar; stir until melted. On this arrange apricots and prunes, cut side up, alternating an apricot with a prune half. Pour about 1-3 of the miracle batter over contents of the pan. Bake at once in a moderate oven (350 degree F.) 50 minutes, or until done. Loosen cake from sides and bottom of pan with spatula. Serve upside down on dish with fruit on top. Garnish with whipped cream. This cake may be served hot or cold.

Spiced Pecan Cakes.

2½ tablespoons molasses
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
miracle cake batter
1 tablespoon melted butter
2 tablespoons brown sugar
¼ cup pecan meats, finely chopped.

Add molasses and spices to about 1-3 of the miracle batter and beat well. Pour into 16 large or 24 medium sized greased cup cake pans, filling them two-thirds full. Cover closely with damp cloth, then waxed paper, tie securely, and store in refrigerator until cakes are to be baked. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 20 minutes, or until done.

Before removing from oven, combine melted butter and sugar, and pecans, and mix. Sprinkle mixture on top of cakes and bake 2 or 3 minutes longer. These cakes are excellent when served as a dessert with fresh fruit.

For other variations of the miracle cake recipe, call Dorothea Duncan, National 4200, or write to her, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope, in care of The Washington Post.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: With reference to your column Tuesday, containing the requests of "A. B. W." "J. A." and "M. J." for my address, I wish to say I have thought the matter over carefully and have decided I can not take on the responsibility of doing anything further to promote that "woman's valet service."

• • • •

If I were to give the information asked by those correspondents I could not stay out of the business. Also, I have in the meantime solved my own problem at least for the time being and I shall be out of town part of the summer.

I will, however, offer the following suggestions, which these persons may use at their own discretion if they wish to follow up the suggested service:

• • • •

If I were organizing a valet service I would go at it in a businesslike manner. After I had interested two or more dependable women I would make a list of those apartment houses whose tenants are outside workers, not the "women in the home" kind. Most such houses have resident managers. If I had no other introductions I would go to such a manager, perhaps show her the letters from your column and such references as I had and tell her what I was prepared to do. She might be willing to distribute cards. If one can secure a personal introduction, so much the better, since "we are advertised by our loving friends."

• • • •

I would not take the attitude that I was looking for work, but that I had a much-needed service to offer. I might offer a "sample" of my service, by doing a valet service for the manager, or even take her work on free—not as a bribe, but as a guarantee in that house that I am on the job and approved by the management. I would never, never break an engagement.

• • • •

If those young men could organize and carry on that baby-diaper laundry service I am sure high-class girls can organize and successfully conduct a woman's valet service. Such girls might register with such hotels as the Dodge, for instance, for emergency calls of women guests.

One more thing: I wouldn't be a mousey person sitting around darning socks gratefully. I'd be a crisp, responsible, alert person with a big idea to put over, and always dependable. Yours sincerely,

MARY JONES.

• • • •

DEAR MARY JONES: I feel sure those interested in starting the woman's valet service suggested by you on May 28 will respect your desire for anonymity, while appreciating the idea and the practical suggestions you have given for putting it into operation.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Columbus 'U' Groups Slate Reunion Fete

Alumni, Post Graduate Classes Hold Dance Next Thursday.

The Alumni Association and post-graduate classes of Columbus University will hold the annual reunion and dance next Thursday at the Congressional Country Club. The proceeds of the affair will be turned over to the building fund of the university.

Edward Monoghan will be in charge of the arrangements. He will be assisted by Miss Beatrice Smith and Miss Patricia Rice, alumnae of the school of law; Miss Virginia Calvagno and Thomas Coates, of the school of accountancy.

Others aiding in arrangements are Frank J. O'Connor, Robert E. Findlay and Edward F. Batchelder, president of the post-graduate class of 1935.

Colonial Dames to Celebrate.

The Southern Maryland Society of Colonial Dames will celebrate "Charter Day" with a picnic Sunday afternoon on St. Clements Island, St. Marys County, Md.

The charter, granting the Province of Maryland to Cecil Calvert 2d, Baron of Baltimore, was signed by Charles I, King of England, on June 20, 1632; therefore today is known to Marylanders as "Charter Day." St. Clements Island is the place where the first colonists landed in March, 1634.

A memorial cross was efected by the Maryland Tercentenary Commission last year on the island and the Southern Maryland Society of Colonial Dames planted the gardens, surrounding the cross.

Col. George H. Calvert, jr., of Washington and Maryland, will be speaker at the picnic. He will talk on "The Maryland Charter."

Auxiliary to Hold Bazaar.

Plans are progressing for the bazaar and card party to be held under the auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Society of Catholic Medical Missionaries from 2 to 7 o'clock Saturday at the Medical Mission House on Bates road, Brookland.

Cars will be at Seventh and Monroe streets northeast during the day to meet guests and drive them directly to the Medical Mission House where the sisters will receive them.

The sisters who are stationed at this mission house are preparing for their work as medical missionaries among the natives of India. The community was founded in Washington ten years ago and its work in the mission field has received high praise.

Wins Award for Pageant.

Miss Viola C. Manseau is the winner of the award offered several months ago by the International Federation of Business and Professional Women for the best dramatic interpretation of its program and purpose, Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, president of the federation, announced yesterday. Miss Manseau will receive a small money award and her winning entry, a pageant tentatively titled "Widening Horizons," depicting in seven episodes the history and growth of the International Federation, will be adopted officially by the federation and circulated to its 22 member countries.

Court Backs Receipts Tax In Maryland

Merchant's Injunction Suit Is Dismissed in Circuit Chamber.

Appeal Likely in Move to Prevent Tax Used in Relief Funding.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, June 19.—Circuit Court Judge J. Frank Supplee, jr., today upheld the constitutionality of the recently-enacted Maryland 1 per cent gross receipts tax, returns from which are used to provide for relief.

The validity of the law was attacked in a suit filed by four merchants.

No notice of appeal was filed after Judge Supplee dismissed the injunction proceedings, but the complainants had indicated earlier they intended taking the case to the Court of Appeals. The State also had indicated it would appeal if the verdict were not favorable to it.

Both parties desire a ruling from the Court of Appeals as soon as possible.

The tax is Maryland's only means of furnishing funds for relief. Without it, Federal contributions would be stopped and a special session of the Legislature would be required to furnish funds for administration of relief.

The tax is limited in effect to one year and a special session will be necessary early in 1936 to provide other sources for relief revenue.

Today's decision climaxed a court fight of almost a week.

The complainants contended the law was unconstitutional and that it was so drawn that its exact intent could not be determined.

Returns for May Ahead of April

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, June 19.—Returns from the 1 per cent gross receipts and automobile titling taxes for May continue to run ahead of the April payments, according to a report today from the office of the State comptroller.

A total of 20,452 retailers have paid in $309,989.74 for May taxes, as compared to the $284,143.31 paid by 20,991 retailers for April taxes.

The office has collected $352,573.73 in May gross receipts and automobile taxes, $42,583.99 of which came from the automobile tax. An additional $23,630.02 has been received during June from the automobile levy.

Daniel L. Clayland 3d, director of the gross receipt tax division, said that about 60 extensions had been granted retailers on the May tax payments. These will expire on June 25.

The April tax payments totaled $364,092.49, including $31,850.43 from the automobile levy. Clayland estimated that about $30,275.73 remained to be collected on the April levy.

Stockholders Liable In Baltimore Trust

Receiver Moves to Collect as Bank Rules.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, June 19.—Immediate steps will be taken to collect $6,250,000 from the 3,920 stockholders of the Baltimore Trust Co. following the decision of the Court of Appeals, that the statutory liability is collectible.

John D. Hospelhorn, receiver for the bank and deputy banking commissioner, said today: "Arrangements have been made, now that the court has decided favorably to collection of $10 a share, to take prompt steps to collect that amount. There are 625,000 shares of stock which come under this decision.

"The money will not be a total loss to many of the stockholders, for they are also creditors of the bank. They will have to pay out the $10 a share, but they will get some of it back in the form of a dividend."

CCC Set to Occupy West Virginia Camp

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Webster Springs, W. Va., June 19.—Relief workers are clearing ground and building temporary roads at the site of the new CCC camp, P-74, to be established on the Morgan Arthur farm on Big Grassy Creek by the State conservation commission.

Capt. Charles L. Calhoun, commander of Camp Cranberry, who is being transferred to the new camp, says orders have been issued to move 200 CCC workers and 25 Army officers and forestry officials into the new camp June 25. Tents will be used until wooden buildings can be erected.

Kingswood Awaits Word Of U. S. on Airport Plan

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Kingwood, W. Va., June 19.—Final approval from Washington is all that is needed before work is started on a modern airport for Kingwood.

C. E. Hanst, a Kingwood resident, who is State airport engineer, located the field and recommended it to the State. It will be on the Edward Borgman farm adjoining the Preston County Farm 1½ miles from Kingwood. The project means the expenditure of between $35,000 and $40,000 for construction.

Nice Sees Ickes, Hopes He'll Get Funds for Span

Governor Says Secretary Indicated 'More or Less' Sympathy.

By the Associated Press.

Gov. Harry W. Nice of Maryland said yesterday, after a conference with Secretary Ickes, that he was "by no means discouraged" about the prospects of obtaining a PWA allotment for construction of a bridge across Chesapeake Bay.

He added Ickes had indicated he was "more or less in sympathy" with the $10,000,000 project.

Nice said he had contended that, including labor and providing materials, the bridge would come within the $1,200 annual allotment available under the work-relief program for each man given work.

"It would take between 6,000 and 8,000 people off the Maryland relief rolls," he said, "including 3,000 to 4,000 in direct labor."

Nice said he had also stressed that Maryland would spend $500,000 in building approaches to the structure, which, he said, would provide a "direct line from the Eastern Shore of Maryland through Baltimore to the West."

Nice said he had left up to Ickes the decision on how much of the allotment would be a grant, and how much a loan.

New Trial Sought For Negro Slayers

Writ of Error to Be Asked for Jackson, Shell.

By the Associated Press.

Fredericksburg, Va., June 19.—"Inadequate representation by counsel" and "intense hostile feeling in Spottsylvania" towards John Shell and Joe Jackson, condemned to die for the murder of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Coleman, are two points on which counsel will apply to the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia for a writ of error.

E. A. Norrell, Negro attorney of Richmond, counsel for the convicted pair, informed the Free-lance-Star today that these contentions were contained in the applications for a stay of execution approved by Gov. Peery Monday and would form the basis of his petition to the Supreme Court.

Gov. Peery granted Shell and Jackson reprieves to July 26 to allow sufficient time for applying to the court for a writ of error.

Earle to Be Honored By Maryland Sportsmen

Baltimore, June 19 (AP).—Swepson Earle's nine years as State conservation commissioner will be celebrated with dining, dancing and speaking on June 24.

A testimonial dinner to the former commissioner, who was succeeded this month by Robert F. Duer, of Princess Anne, has been arranged by Maryland State Game and Fish Protective Association, Maryland Sportsmen's Luncheon Club and the Baltimore Casting Club. Talbot Denmead, law enforcement officer for the United States Bureau of Fisheries, will be the principal speaker. Gov. Harry W. Nice, former Gov. Albert C. Ritchie and Mayor Howard W. Jackson are among those invited.

Machine Gun Stolen From War Memorial

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Williamsport, Md., June 19.—Another machine gun which ornamented the war memorial here has been stolen. A year ago a similar machine gun was stolen and two new guns were recently obtained and set in concrete.

The major and commissioners are planning to offer a reward for arrest of the thief.

1,000 Attend Convention Of Firemen

Rain Greets Delegates to State Convention at Oakland.

Executive Committee Considers Raising Benefits.

By Clyde H. Du Bose.

Oakland, Md., June 19.—The vanguard of Maryland State Firemen's convention delegates was greeted by drenching rain last night and this morning in this bunting-draped town nestled in the foothills of the Alleghany Mountains.

By late afternoon approximately 1,000 delegates had registered at convention headquarters and were attending the first open session in the Oakland High School auditorium.

Two casualties were treated at the convention's first-aid tent as fire trucks, buses and autos continued to bring in uniformed delegates. Eugene Plumer and W. W. James, of the Mount Rainier department, injured when their auto skidded from the road near Winchester, were treated for minor injuries.

The convention officially opened last night when the executive committee, headed by Frank T. Schaeffer, of Westminster, convened to thrash out the proposed raising of the death benefit from $500 to $750 a year, and other problems to be placed before the firemen's association.

The executive committee, which was forced to renew its session today, also considered increasing disability benefits of firemen injured in line of duty from $15 for the first week to $25, and from $2 thereafter to $3 a day for a period to be designated by the board of trustees. They also studied proposed pay increases for permanently disabled firemen to $35 a month, and increase of widows' pensions from $20 a month to $35 a month.

The proposal of Noble F. Rushe, of Hyattsville, president of the association, to create a fund for the education of the orphans and the children of the permanently disabled firemen, also was to be acted upon.

With 125 delegates registered from Prince Georges County and 50 from Montgomery County, the first open session convened at 2 p. m. Edward A. Shaffer, president of the Oakland Fire Department, introduced Mayor Grover C. Stemple, who told the firemen the town "was theirs."

Thomas Basil, of the Annapolis Fire Department, chief of the legislative committee, declared a move was on foot to make Oakland the permanent convention town for the firemen. Others to speak on the afternoon program included Chief Howard Travers, of Baltimore Fire Department, and Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, of the Washington Fire Department. The Rev. James W. Minter, State chaplain, conducted devotionals.

The women's auxiliary, with almost 100 delegates, began their first session at 1 p. m. with the invocation by Mrs. Annie Burnette, State chaplain. Mrs. Gladys Van Cleve Sincell, president of the Oakland auxiliary, extended greetings. The address of welcome was made by Mayor Stemple.

Mrs. Mildred Chatham, president of the State auxiliary, gave the response. After the singing of the conference song, the women adjourned to visit the firemen's convention.

Those who claim to know predict a close fight between Frank T. Schaeffer and J. Millard Tawes, of Crisfield, when the association votes for its president tomorrow night. Every street in Oakland, however, bears glaring red letters, "Tawes for President."

Mrs. Margaret Hartman, of Frederick, and Mrs. Mary Baker, of Hyattsville, are expected to run close for presidency of the women's auxiliary. The women will elect officers at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

Tomorrow's program will also include business sessions and a memorial service in the morning and sightseeing trips in the afternoon.

Rush today recommended to the organization that firemen who have served a substantial number of years on a volunteer basis be given pensions. Other recommendations made in his address at the opening sessions of the annual convention included:

That dues for the companies be increased from $12 to $15 yearly.

That the fire college booster committee be made a standing committee.

That an audit be made of the records of the association.

That its surplus funds be invested solely in Federal Government bonds.

Speakers at today's sessions included Howard Travers, chief of the Baltimore Fire Department, and A. J. Bargagni, a sergeant, of the Washington department.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 19.—An invitation to the State Firemen's Association to hold its 1936 convention here was wired by business men to Oakland, where the annual convention opened today.

W. A. Culler 80 Years Old.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., June 19.—W. A. Culler, one of the oldest magistrates in this State, observed his eightieth birthday here yesterday. Mr. Culler spent the day at his office. He was elected magistrate in 1917.

Coast Guard Seeking Pair Lost on Bay

Plane Searches for Men Believed Drowned in Chesapeake.

Maryland Boy Rescues 2 Companions as Boat Is Disabled.

As Coast Guard boats and an airplane searched for two men missing in Chesapeake Bay since the freak storm Tuesday night, Washington and Maryland experienced low summer temperatures and cloudy weather yesterday.

Unreported since the sudden squall, part of the storm which swept Maryland from end to end, Joseph Stormer, 30, and Eward Webber, 45, employes of the Baltimore Gas & Electric Co., who left Jones Creek in their motor boat early Tuesday, were feared drowned.

An airplane, chartered by the gas company, flew for an hour without sighting any trace of the missing men or of their boat.

The District experienced its coolest day since June 9 yesterday, with the mercury attaining a maximum of only 70 at 1:30 p. m. Sullen clouds obscured the sun here most of the day, and the minimum temperature was 62 at 5 a. m.

Today will be fair with slowly rising temperatures, the Weather Bureau predicted last night. Rising temperatures also were predicted for Maryland.

The toll of Maryland's storm included 15-year-old Ralph Barrett, killed when lightning forked from the sky as he took refuge under a tree near his home at Colora, not far from Elkton, Tuesday night.

Six persons were saved from disabled boats on the bay during the squall, the Associated Press reported.

William Whitelock, jr., 19-year-old Baltimore boy, saved the lives of his two companions when their 30-foot cabin cruiser became disabled in a heavy surf off Gibson Island. Whitelock was taking the cruiser to his father's summer home at Lake Shore, on the Magothy River, when its motor failed during the storm.

He tied life preservers on his companions, Donald Rinfret, 9, and James Hindebrand, 10, then swam through the surf for aid. He later swam back to the boat and pushed the younger boys through the surf to land. The boat later was beached on Gibson Island.

In western Maryland temperatures were low. Cumberland's official reading, according to the Associated Press, was 63 yesterday morning.

Hagerstown, center of a freakish windstorm Tuesday, counted its damage yesterday at $5,000. No one was injured.

Lashing Baltimore, northeast winds kept thermometers down and suburbs reported readings of 60 yesterday.

Officials at the Weather Bureau here explained that the storm and subsequent cold weather were due to a high pressure area to the North, over Nova Scotia, which brought with it chilling, stiff north and northeast winds.

9 Hurt in Picnic Truck Reported Recovering

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Kingwood, W. Va., June 19.—Nine injured occupants of a picnic truck which went over a steep embankment and turned over on Caddell Mountain, 3 miles east of Kingwood, are reported recovering.

Harman Bevans, 16, of near Kingwood, suffered a dislocated hip as well as fractures of his right leg in two places. He is in a Fairmont hospital. Buddy Stahl, 21, near Kingwood, sustained a broken leg and head cuts, while George Allguaer, 28, driver of the truck, received several broken ribs. Others received lesser injuries, while several small children in the picnic party escaped altogether.

State Rebuttal To Open Today In Liquor Trial

Defense Rests in Franklin County (Va.) Case Noted for Its Length.

By the Associated Press.

Roanoke, Va., June 19.—The prosecution is to begin its rebuttal in the trial of alleged Franklin County liquor conspirators in the Western District Court tomorrow morning.

After refuting Government charges for 14 days, largely through denials and attacks on the character of Government witnesses, the defense rested this morning. Meanwhile Judge John Paul denied motions for mistrial for five defendants.

Next week will be the tenth in the trial, which has broken all records for length in this section of the State.

The prosecution expects to take more than the two days remaining this week with its rebuttal. Approximately 60 more witnesses will add their testimony to a record into which the recitals of 331 witnesses already have gone.

C. C. Lee, indicted young Franklin prosecutor, was the last witness today. Questioned about the association of three defendants, Lee said he had heard only "rumors" and had not discussed "liquor business" with them.

Sportsmen's Groups Plan for Outing

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 19.—Plans for a joint outing of local sportsmen's organizations were made at a meeting here yesterday. Representatives from the local chapter of the Izaak Walton League, Berkeley Game and Fish Protective Association and Berkeley Rod and Gun Club were present.

The date was set as Saturday, July 20 at the Frank J. Trammell estate on the Potomac River above Dam No. 5. A committee was named to make plans for the event. It is composed of W. F. Eavenson, C. W. Spiker and Mickey Grimes.

Baltimore Buys Coal Below NRA Code Price

Baltimore, June 19 (AP).—A bid of 6-cents a ton less than the code scale fixed while the NRA was in force, today won for the A. K. Althouse Co., of Philadelphia the contracts for most of the 47,100 tons of semi-bituminous coal purchased by the city of Baltimore.

The board of awards, however, stipulated that the coal must be mined in Maryland. The contracts, on which bids were received June 5, amount to a total cost of $45,580.

Many Clerics Beside Cannon Dealt in Stocks, Group Told

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Front Royal, June 19.—In an address last night before the Training School for Pastors and Lay Workers of the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Church South, Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, of Washinton, senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, said that after the World War this country embarked upon the greatest gambling spree in history and that if the courts were to prosecute all the ministers who went into the stock market they would be unable to handle the cases. But Bishop Cannon, alone, was prosecuted, for reasons which all understand, although hundreds of ministers had similar dealings, some with the same stock brokers, Bishop Hughes asserted.

The speaker declared that while banks failed by the thousands throughout the country, the churches have continued to keep their doors open through the years of distress. Business men, Bishop Hughes remarked, made a financial mess, and have no basis for advising ministers how to manage church finances.

Bishop Hughes was to address the school again tonight and tomorrow night. More than 150 are attending the 10-day session of the school. The conference area includes Northern Virginia, the Shenandoah Valley, portions of West Virginia and Maryland and the District of Columbia. The school opened Monday night.

Former Slave Dead At 93 in W. Virginia

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 19.—Mrs. Drusella Hill, 93, one of the few remaining Negroes who were born in slavery and freed by President Lincoln's proclamation, is dead at her home in this city.

Born in 1842 at Peel Tree, Barbour County, she was purchased by the late Benjamin Shuttleworth in 1858 and brought to Clarksburg with his family. After she was freed she continued to live with the Shuttleworth family a number of years and then was married to Emanuel Hill, who died 35 years ago. She was rated one of the oldest and wealthiest Negroes in West Virginia.

Driver Is Sued In Fatal Crash; $10,000 Asked

Virginia's Action Based on Death of Wife and Three Children.

By the Associated Press.

Lynchburg, Va., June 19.—F. L. Mattox, cashier of the Bank of Big Island, whose wife and three children were killed in a triple automobile collision near Spot Spring April 24, yesterday filed suit for $10,000 against Richard T. Hess, salesman of Richmond, in United States District Court here.

The action was transferred from the circuit court of Appomattox County upon the motion of Hess, a legal resident of Pennsylvania, who claims diversity of citizenship.

The petition, filed by Joel Flood, one-time assistant attorney general of Virginia, charges Hess was responsible for the deaths of Mrs. Mattox, Miss Margaret Mattox, 15; Miss Roberta Mattox, 18, and Addison Mattox, 20, the plaintiff's children, and also W. Dabney Anderson, 45, of Vera, a postman.

It is charged that Anderson attempted to pass Hess' automobile, but that the latter did not allow him to get by immediately. When Anderson did pass, he did not have time to get back on the right side of the road before meeting the Mattox car head-on, the petition states.

U. S. Funds Sought For Child Hospital

Carroll County Requested to Solicit Loan.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Westminster, Md., June 19.—Carroll County commissioners today revealed that the acting welfare board of the Children's Aid Society has petitioned the commissioners to request Federal funds for construction of a hospital and a centrally located playground here.

It was estimated that the hospital would cost approximately $75,000 and the playground and equipment $15,000. In addition to the projects requested by the welfare board, the commissioners also will ask for $200,000 for road construction.

According to the commissioners, the three projects constitute only a part of a number of proposed projects to be announced this week.

Members of the acting welfare board are the Rev. Lewis H. Brumbaugh, chairman; Dr. G. Lewis Wetzel, Union Mills; John Bushey, Woodbine; Paul Kuhns, county treasurer; George N. Fringer, State's attorney; Mrs. J. Edgar Myers, Westminster, and Ira Watkins, Mount Airy.

5 Clubs on Honor List Of Rotary 11 Months

Warrenton, Va., June 19 (AP).—In his final monthly letter, the Rev. Paul D. Bowden, governor of the fifty-sixth district, Rotary International, reported that five clubs of the district have been on the honor roll during each of the last 11 months. They were Leesburg, Martinsville, Waynesboro, Buena Vista and Radford.

Mr. Bowden will turn over the office of district governor to William Paxton, of Norfolk, July 1.

Hit-Run Death Suspect Seized In Maryland

Bystander Said to Have Given Number of Car to Police.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Westminster, Md., June 19.—Arrested on a warrant charging him with failing to stop after an accident, H. E. Smith, of Manchester, was turned over to Pennsylvania police last night, after the car he was driving is alleged to have killed Nevelin Bankard, 14, of near Hanover, Pa.

The youth was found fatally injured along the Hanover-Manchester road about 4 miles south of Hanover, late yesterday. An investigation made by Pennsylvania police is said to have revealed that a road worker had taken the license number of a Maryland car which struck the youth and a warrant was issued for Smith.

According to Walter Shipley, chief deputy sheriff of Carroll County, it was learned that Smith was in his apartment late last night, but attempts made by the officers to get him to answer their persistant knocking on the door failed. Entrance was gained through a rear window and Smith was taken into custody.

Pennsylvania authorities reported that Smith left Hanover yesterday afternoon after visiting his wife, who is a patient in the hospital there.

Apples Exempted In AAA Revision

Randolph, Byrd Win Fight Against Fruit Control.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 19.—Apples have been excluded from the AAA amendments voted in the House of Representatives at Washington yesterday, Representative Jennings Randolph, of the Second District, has notified fruit growers here.

Working with Senator Harry F. Byrd, Randolph said he succeeded in having apples and fruit for canning removed from the bill.

West Virginia growers have been fighting Government control over marketing of local apples.

Lynchburg Children Put Under Quarantine

Lynchburg, June 19 (AP).—Two boys, 2 years old, have been quarantined here in the last 24 hours, one suffering from epidemic spinal meningitis and the other from infantile paralysis.

The child suffering from meningitis is in Lynchburg Hospital where he was given Flexner's serum. The lad with palalysis is quarantined in his home. Both are members of Lynchburg families.

Charles Collum Heads Catholic School Crusade

Norfolk, Va., June 19 (AP).—Charles Collum, of Alexandria, today headed the Virginia Catholic students' crusade as diocesan leader. He was elected at the closing session of the crusade's meeting here yesterday.

Miss Verdella Anderson, of St. Mary's School, Norfolk, was named scribe, and Miss Helen Fugitt, of Sacred Heart School, Winchester, was chosen minstrel. The convention closed last night with a ball.

U. S. Service On Forestry Seen Menace

Potential Peril to Both Federal, State Parks, Conferees Hear.

Fechner Warns Towns to Figure Future Costs of Present Work.

By the Associated Press.

Rapidan Camp, Va., June 19.—The United States Forest Service was described here this afternoon as a "serious potential danger" to State and national park projects by Horace M. Albright, former director of the National Park Service.

"The U. S. Forest Service, because of inordinate ambition to control all or most of the conservation activities of the Federal Government and because of political support it has built up in all parts of the country, is a serious potential danger to success of both national and State park projects," Albright declared. He spoke at an afternoon meeting of the fifteenth annual conference on State parks here today.

The park authorities, gathered at former President Hoover's camp, also heard Robert Fechner, director of the emergency conservation work, warn communities they "must figure future costs of work now being done for them at no cost." Communities, he said, must maintain benefits derived from the present projects being developed by the Federal Government.

Delegates Atop Ridge.

Chill winds swept low-hanging clouds and occasional showers over the sheltered camp and over Skyland today, but the delegates assembled atop the Blue Ridge, many of them for the first time, caught occasional glimpses of the valleys, 3,500 feet below.

After the morning meeting the conference moved across some 10 miles of the picturesque Skyline drive and down a mountainside to the camp here. Gov. Peery, scheduled to welcome the group this afternoon, was detained in Richmond by his duties.

The group departed for the Rapidan after a morning of debate over the merits of the Skyline drive.

Mr. Albright, who projected the question last night by an extemporaneous statement, today clarified his position by saying that while he pushed the road through in order that the public might enjoy the scenery, he could personally sympathize with those who opposed the road.

William A. Welch, general manager of the Palisades Interstate Park of New York, doubted the wisdom of the mountain top highway, and Tom Wallace, editor of the Louisville (Ky.) Times and a national director of the Isaac Walton League of America, thought the danger law in imitations of the Skyline drive in less spacious areas than the Shenandoah National Park.

Howard Bloomer, Michigan park expert, and Wilbur Hall, Virginia conservation and development commission, defended the Skyline project on the ground that it was necessary to make the scenic attractions of the Blue Ridge accessible to the motoring public.

Hagerstown Power Plant Shows $146,874 Profit

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 19.—While Hagerstown's municipal electric light plant was returning a net profit of $146,874 last fiscal year, its water department showed a net deficit of $18,248. The deficit of the water department, however, was reduced $12,000 below that of the previous year, the annual report of City Auditor George E. Slaybaugh shows.

The total operating revenue of the light plant, which included income from commercial lighting and power, city tax appropriation for street lighting and gross profit on lamp sales was $358,892, against total operating expenditures of $194,800.

National Civic Theater Society Will Join Capital's Acting Groups on Monday

First Play of Odeon Season Is a Thriller

Cast Personnel Announced; Mr. Kemp Draws Near; Amusement Notes.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

The National Civic Theater Society will open its season in The Odeon, on the grounds of the National Park Seminary, at Forest Glen, Md., next Monday night, June 24, at 8:45 o'clock. The inaugural play will be "A Murder Has Been Arranged." It will be directed by John Mann.

"A Murder Has Been Arranged" is a thrilling ghost play of modern times. There has never been anything in the theater quite like it; thrills never have been produced by such apparently simple means. The National Civic Theater Society has chosen it as the initial offering of their first season in the Capital because it is deemed the type of play that will be most enjoyed by summer theatergoers.

The cast will include Robert G. Pitkin, Margaret Hatfield, John Mann, Harriet Borden, Catherine McCord, Beth Thompson and Forney Reese.

Mr. Pitkin is an actor of 25 years' professional experience on both the dramatic and musical comedy stages and Miss Hatfield, now a resident of Washington, has devoted her life to the theater. Mr. Mann, who has been a resident of this city for about a year, and Miss Borden both are graduates of the Gloucester Little Theater. All are well known in local theatrical circles.

Ideal Summer Facilities.

This latest addition to the National Capital's growing list of acting and producing groups has the advantage of a fine theater property in which to present their wares.

The Odeon, modeled after the famous old Globe Theater in London, is complete in every particular, both before and behind the footlights. The stage facilities are ample, and "out front" will be found the full complement of orchestra, balcony and box seats.

The 80-foot ceiling makes adequate ventilation a simple matter, and the handsomely landscaped National Park Seminary grounds afford a picturesque setting for entr'acte strolls in the open.

The theater may be reached by driving out Sixteenth street to the Maryland line, right two blocks to Second avenue, then left to Forest Glen and the Odeon. The Glen Echo buses will convey patrons directly to the entrance to the playhouse.

The Triangle Players of the Y. M. C. A. will present Jerome K. Jerome's "Passing of the Third Floor Back," the play made famous by Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, tonight at 8 in the drama hall of Foundry M. E. Church, Sixteenth and G Church streets. The play is under the direction of Charles C. Gillman and the cast composed of members of many of the District's acting groups, including the Arts Club, Community Center, Shakespeare Society, Pierce Hall Players and the Foundry League Players. Those appearing in important roles are Richard Boulger, Joan Tyler Mitchell, Louise Foust, Henry Haviland, Fredric Cole, Dixie Diket, James Lampi, Kathleen Carson, Charles C. Gillman, Shirley Rowe and Anna Martin. Tickets are priced at 40 cents.

How to Crash Movies!

The famous double-play formula of the old Chicago Cubs, "Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance," was a very elegant device for sending potential runs back to the bench, but scarcely more efficient than a recent antithetical development on one of the movie lots of the West Coast that put most of the Chaldecott family into pictures.

Producer Sam Goldwyn, it seems, hired little Fay Chaldecott, the blonde "Little Em'ly" of "David Copperfield," for a role in his film, "The Dark Angel."

Sidney Franklin, directing, found it necessary to make some costume tests of Fay and needed a little boy to appear with her. Fay's little brother, Denis, aged 5, went along to save time. When the tests were screened, they signed Denis, who is red-headed and the possessor of a semitoothless smile, to play the little boy part.

Enter Madame.

Their mother, Sylvia Chaldecott, took the two youngsters to the costume department for a fitting at just the time Sam Goldwyn was there conferring with his style creator.

When the producer spied the mother, an attractive redhead, he thought she had been sent by the casting director for another role—an innkeeper's wife—in the same picture.

"But I'm not an actress," said Mrs. Chaldecott.

"I'll pit my judgment against yours," replied Goldwyn. "You're in the picture!"

"Tinker to Evers to Chance" may have put them out, but "Fay to Denis to Mamma" certainly put 'em in!

We contemplate with some chagrin the omission from yesterday's review of the opening of the Roadside Theater's second season all mention of that priceless song, "Heaven Will Protect the Working Girl," rendered after the first-act curtain with two-part harmony, gestures and stage "business" by Janet Coon and Eugene Kressin, both old friends of this column's. Washington first heard this song sung from the stage of the Belasco Theater years ago by the late Marie Dressler. Miss Coon and Mr. Kressin give it the benefit of an entirely original treatment.

And another thing, while we are on the subject of the Roadsiders' "After Dark:" one salesmen at the refreshment boo'h is not enough these hot nights. The second-act cowbell had rung before some of the customers were served during that first intermission Monday night. The harried young man in charge certainly had his hands full; if he had had five times as many, they still would have been full!

Mr. Carminati's Luck Still Holds

That is to say, having acquitted himself with distinction opposite Grace Moore in "One Night of Love," that suave matinee idol, Tullio Carminati, now finds himself cast with another brilliant diva, Mary Ellis, as pictured above. Miss Ellis, incidentally, has enjoyed fame in grand opera, on the stage and upon the screen. Had not the season of the National Theater Players closed so abruptly, Signor Carminati probably would have visited the Capital this early summer as guest star. These two are pictured together in "Paris in Spring."

Meet Mr. Kemp.

If one who has never seen him may judge from a photograph, this Hal Kemp fellow who is bringing his orchestra to the stage of the Earle Theater, come Friday, looks less like an orchestra leader than most of the lads who follow that profession. He seems to possess none of the traditional stamps of his calling. He might be an up-and-coming young bank clerk, or something, judging from photographic appearances.

A lank gentleman from the South—a Tar Heel, in fact—is this young Mr. Kemp—long legs, a mouth that seems to curve naturally into a smile, hair that might be called blond, blue-gray eyes (one suspects) and a natural Southern drawl, of course, might about describe him.

Master Kemp began his musical career at the age of 3, according to his mother, a charming Southern lady of Charlotte, N. C.

A Modest Start.

Hal's first instrument was a jew's-harp, upon which he managed to flick out a few tunes, inspired by watching his sister practicing at the piano. At the age of 10 he was doing so well that he was engaged to play for a time with a military band. In 1919, he entered high school and soon organized a small orchestra which he called the "Merrymakers."

His first triumph was when this orchestra, opening with the "Song of India," won a prize in a contest sponsored by a vaudeville exchange.

While a university student, he easily made the orchestra and, in time, learned to play most of the wind instruments.

Out of that, he organized his own orchestra through the medium of which he has brought himself to national renown as one of the country's outstanding conductors.

And he still doesn't look it!

Where are the stars of yesteryear? You'd be surprised!

During the filming of a night-club scene for "No More Ladies," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new vehicle for Joan Crawford, in which Robert Montgomery is co-starred and which comes to the screen at Loew's Palace Theater for the week beginning Friday, it was discovered that three one-time stars were appearing among the extras engaged for the scene. They were Frank Mayo, a mighty leading man and occasional star back in the silent era; Gertrude Astor, a statuesque blonde, of the silent days, and Jean Acker, former wife of the late Valentino.

Upon questioning, each expressed extreme happiness at still being connected with the industry in which a fleeting fame had been won, no matter how minor the capacity.

Will you recognize these people if you see them on the screen?

He Czinner Gain!

What with stepping out of the presidency of United Artists, moving his Twentieth Century producing unit over to the Fox lot and invading the British film industry, Joseph M. Schenck is having himself a time.

Mr. Schenck's latest European venture is the organization of two producing companies, one called "The Elisabeth Bergner Production Co., Ltd.," the other "The Paul Czinner Producing Co."

The first-named will star Elisabeth Bergner in three pictures during the next two years, one of them to be George Bernard Shaw's "St. Joan." Dr. Paul Czinner will supervise the filming. The second will produce films under Dr. Czinner's supervision, but without the services of the fabulous Miss Bergner.

At any rate, it's all in the family. In private life, Dr. Czinner is Miss Bergner's husband.

It was he who directed her in the screen version of her stage success, "Escape Me Never," by Margaret Kennedy, recently seen at RKO-Keith's, where the new Technicolor "Becky Sharp" opens tonight at 8.

School Attends Member To Maintain His Record

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., June 19.—W. W. Shaffer's Sunday school attendance record of 16 years was threatened Sunday and he felt downhearted. His physician had refused to let him leave his home until all traces of blood poisoning disappeared.

But his teacher, Gilson Keagy, and members of his Sunday school class of the First Christian Church solved the problem by going to Shaffer's home, where the lesson period was conducted.

Hollywood

By Sidney Skolsky

Hollywood, June 19.

MIRIAM HOPKINS, while making "Becky Sharp," never was seen studying her lines. Nor was she seen with the copy of the script in her hands.

She always had a fashionable portable dressing room on the set. She would race to this dressing room, lock the door, draw the shades and study. She demands privacy when she studies.

When the cameras were ready the assistant director would summon her by telephone. On the set, she ran through her lines once with the cast. Then she'd turn to Director Mamoulian and tell him he could shoot away.

She always has her own ideas concerning the scenario and how she should play her role. If there is a scene she doesn't approve she will do battle in executive and directorial offices. She was also a fighter when she appeared on the Broadway stage.

• • • •

She started on Broadway as a chorus girl in the first edition of "The Music Box Revue." She walked into a rehearsal of that musical, went up to the man directing and said: "Mr. Hassard Short told me to see you about a job."

The man was a trifle amazed. He merely said: "I am Hassard Short."

She comes from Bainbridge, Ga., and her birthday is October 18, 1902. She was educated in private and public schools in Savannah. She received her high school diploma on crutches because she was injured while enacting her role in the senior class play.

She fell down a flight of stairs while in a Broadway play and broke her ankle.

• • • •

SHE is 5 feet 4 inches tall standing on her tall heels and weights 102 pounds completely dressed. She is a decided blonde, even to her eyebrows. Her eyes are a tender blue but they flash black in angry moments. She has a mole exactly 12 inches below her chin.

She seldom wears makeup when not in a picture. Her facial makeup consists of lipstick and a little powder.

She spoke with a broad Southern accent when she first started in flickers. She realized she had to overcome this to play various type roles. She took diction lessons to get rid of the accent. When she becomes excited she talks with the broad Southern accent. She generally has a yen for chow mein and is the type of gal that a new acquaintance sends a book instead of candy. She has a passionate dislike for bedroom gossip.

She actually prefers New York to Hollywood. Maintains a home there, and goes there for her gay times. Her favorite amusement center is still Tony's.

• • • •

She never travels anywhere without typewriter, portable phonograph and dog. She is an expert at the touch typing system. She would like to be an author. She keeps a notebook of plots and hopes to write a play, many short stories and a few scenarios.

At her home she has a private projection room and she generally shows her guests an old flicker—and not one in which she appears—that is her idea of a great picture. The guests don't always agree.

She hates to play the piano because she had to take piano lessons when a kid. She would like to be able to play the violin, but has yet to get around to taking instruction. She believes she prefers classical music to jazz.

She used to sleep in Greta Garbo's bed. She did it before sleeping in Garbo's bed became common. She was the first person to rent Garbo's former mansion in Santa Monica.

Woman Goes on Trial In Slaying of Husband

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 19.—Charged with slaying her husband during a quarrel at their Norwood home, Mrs. Alma White, 38, a colored woman, is on trial in the criminal court here.

The prosecution alleges that she shot her husband, John White, 40, shortly after midnight, May 2, and that he died several days later in a local hospital when pneumonia developed.

The defense contends that Mrs. White shot her husband in self-defense and that he struck her with a chair.

Nats Split Twin Bill With Cleveland; Powell Lost to Team

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich

Cleveland, June 19.

IT has ceased to be serious and is now getting funny, this pitching problem of the Washington Ball Club. Manager Bucky Harris was saying today that he doesn't have any pitching problem because he doesn't have any pitchers. What Mr. Harris calls the collection of fellows who have been working on the pitching mound for the Nats during the past two weeks is nothing complimentary.

POVICH.

Rising to a point of information after the double-header today, this department asked Harris who would pitch for the Nationals tomorrow in the single game against the Indians. Bucky gave a "you're-asking-me?" look. "Well, I dunno exactly," he said. "I dunno whether it will be Whitehill, Linke, Burke and Coppola, or whether it will be Burke, Linke, Whitehill and Coppola. That's our average, four pitchers per game."

Harris doesn't know where it's all going to end. He asked Owner Griffith to find him a pitcher and Griffith reports that Chattanooga is ready to send him Dee Miles, an outfielder. There isn't a pitcher, young or old, on any of the Washington farms who compares even with Harris' present crew, which is no compliment to either.

Harris' pitching staff showed vast improvement today when they held the Indians to only 14 hits and only 8 runs in the first game. But in that second game, they went native again and Cleveland got 17 hits and 10 runs. No Washington pitcher has gone the route since, I think, Hector was conceived.

LIKE many another serious accident, Jake Powell's removal from the field today was framed in comedy. The 7,500 in the stands even laughed before the full import of the young outfielder's injury was made known to them by the sight of four struggling Washington players carrying the pain-crazed Powell from the field.

As Powell sank to the ground near home plate from the first effects of the strangulation of the sciatic nerve in his right leg, he appeared in no great pain. Coach Johnny Kerr playfully grabbed the rookie's bat and held it poised over Powell's head as if to crown him with it. The crowd howled its glee at the scene. Five minutes later, the pain-wracked Powell was borne off the field nearly out of his mind from his suffering.

I am reminded of that day down in Tampa, Fla., when Walter Johnson was pitching to the Nats in batting practice before the 1926 season. A line drive from Joe Judge's bat struck Johnson on the shin bone, as many another ball had struck him during his long pitching career. Johnson attempted to shake off the pain and then sank to the ground.

Whereat another clowning Washington coach, Al Schacht, who was Johnson's best friend on the ball club, made great sport of it. He rushed to the pitcher's box and counted ten, referee like, over the fallen Johnson. "You're out," shouted Schacht. Johnson was out all right. His leg was broken. The blow ended the pitching career of the game's greatest pitcher.

AMERICAN LEAGUE umpires are quaking in their boots as a result of the addition of Fred Marberry to the umpiring staff . . . which means that one umpire now on the rolls will be released . . . Most likely to go is either Donnelly or Quinn, this year's additions to the umpiratical staff . . . And it would please the Washington players if both went . . . Clark Griffith obtained Marberry his umpiring job . . . All American League clubs have waived on Freddie Sington and he will go to Chattanooga as soon as young Dee Miles is sent to the Nats . . . Bucky Harris gave Miles a tryous when he was managing the Detroit Tigers in 1933 . . . Miles was a pitcher then . . . Cleveland fans emitte da chorus of "ohs" intermingled with a few "ahs" in the seventh inning of the first game today when Catcher Eddie Phillips shed his mask and cap to chase a foul pop . . . Local fans saw for the first time that Phillips' pate was a silver gray . . . Leon Pettit was a lucky guy today in getting credit for the pitching victory in that first game . . . Pettit pitched one inning, the eighth . . . He walked two hitters, pitched a home run an da single, yielded three runs, and won distinction as the winning pitcher because the Nats scored seven runs before Ed Linke came to pitch the ninth.

Joe Louis Is Utterly Vicious, Pitiless in Ring, Says Gallico

By Paul Gallico.

A Special Correspondent.

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., June 19.—It has been many years since a really unpleasant party has disported himself in our prize rings. The last one was William Harrison Dempsey, who was just as mean and ornery in the ring as a wounded animal. The latest is Joe Louis, of Detroit, who is training her for his contemplated season of assault and battery on the person of Primo Carnera at the Yankee Stadium in New York next Tuesday evening. Young Massa Joe deposits the milk of human kindness on the little platform outside the ring ropes before he squares off. He will be a great pugilistic success and unquestionably a champion. He knows no pity and no mercy. The sight of a groggy, helpless victim awakens no tenderness in his breast. If not stopped by his trainers he will go in and beat his head off, even in a training joust.

There will never be any complaint that Joe Louis is too nice a kid to be a fighter. He isn't. He is a splendid, vicious, male animal, completely destructive. He was made for fighting and for nothing else. A small example: Bob Frazer, a spar-boy, has a couple of cracked ribs heavily taped. I imagine it was more or less understood that Louis would lay off his body. In the first round Louis was having a little trouble reaching Frazer, who kept on the retreat. He cornered him finally and smashed him with a right full on the taping. Frazer winced and nearly collapsed.

Batters Spar Mates.

That's what a fighter ought to be, cruel, mean, relentless and utterly vicious. I'm tired of these nice boys in the ring.

In his workout today Louis buffeted a tall, melancholy African named Leonard Dixon into a standing stupor with right-hand blows. He hurt Frazer badly, and he knocked Big Cecil Harris out with a smashing left hook to the nose. Harris went down into the ropes, was revived and finished the round but couldn't finish the second, because of his smashed nose. Not once was there a glimmer of sympathy or feeling on Louis' face. He waited until he received the signal from his trainer and then went after the injured man again as viciously as ever. When Harris quit, Louis never even patted him on the shoulder or said he was sorry, never even gave him another look.

Mean, that's what you've got to be to be a champion—cold, hard and with a constantly rising gorge. Louie's handlers, Roxborough and Black, remind me more of animal trainers than fight managers. They gentle their animal around until feeding and fighting time and then turn him loose. Louis' mother and sisters drove in here today. I didn't see him greet his mother, a large, stout, puzzled-looking lady, but I did see his sisters rush up to him when he came into a room and try to throw their arms around his neck and I watched him push them off coldly and finally. His sisters all look like him and have marvelous names. There are Vunies and Eulali and Emmarell. They are all light in color. He paid little attention to them and none to his mother, who was in the room with him a part of the time. Once when he was sitting at a table, talking to the gentlemen of the press, I detected his mother looking at her cubby-faced, sulkily-looking boy with a look of absolute wonderment and puzzled curiosity on her face.

Everybody Snappy.

This is a marvelous camp. The managers and trainers go around in snappy riding clothes with fine-fitting, shiny, brown leather boots. Roxborough is round-faced, partly bald, light-colored, with a small black mustache. He is sophisticated, highly intelligent and a fine talker. He used to be a great basket ball player around Detroit. Black, the Chicago partner, looks more like a Cuban than anything else. His hair is straight and slick like a Spaniard's. It was picturesque, that gathering before the workout, the reporters around the table on which burned a single candle, Louis, fat-faced, caffe-au-lait colored, sloe-eyed, sitting at one end waiting to be spoken to, and occasionally showing magnificent straight white teeth, troopers and Harlem detectives, standing around alert, the girls shrieking and banging pool balls around in the next room, and the dark, silent colored woman in a corner looking in utter bewilderment at her son.

Indians Rap 2 Pitchers In Second

Last-Minute Rally in the Opener Brings 11-8 Win.

Foe Comes Back With Furious Assault in Nightcap.

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

CLEVELAND, June 19.—At the end of five hours of baseball today, the Nats could count their profits on the fingers of Venus de Milo. There were none. The gains of the early afternoon, when they staged a pair of last-ditch uprisings to win an 11-8 game from Cleveland, they dissipated in the twilight of the second game of the double-header, which went to the Indians by the highly decisive score of 10-5.

The Indians rebounded from the Nat's late-inning snatch of the first game with a furious assault upon a pair of Washington pitchers, Jack Russell and Belve Bean in the second game. They unloosed a 17-hit barrage upon the Nat's hurlers, who were pitching and ducking almost in the same motion.

Stopped by Stewart.

That second game was a galling dose for the Nats, who were subdued by the left-handed pitching of Walter Stewart, who had been expelled from the Washington club six weeks ago because he didn't pitch very well. They got one run off Stewart after the fourth inning.

But that first game, ah, that was a ball game. The Nats weren't even in it until the eighth, when the Indians were boasting a 5-0 lead. And then things began to happen. Four Washington runs in the eighth reduced the score to 5-4. Three Cleveland runs in the eighth made it 8-4. And then seven large and luscious runs by the Nats in a stirring last-inning counter-attack left 7,500 Cleveland fans reflecting sadly upon the uncertainities of baseball.

That first game, for seven innings, was about as one-sided as Hitler's dealing with non-Aryans. The Nats were virtual bystanders until the eighth, by which time the Indians were in possession of a 5-0 lead that loomed as safe as the Democrat ticket in Georgia.

Nationals Reach Lee.

Irving Hadley was dealing out runs to the Indians here and there, mostly as the result of solid knocks by the Cleveland bats, but young Thornton Lee who had been given the pitching assignment by Walter Johnson, was allowing only one Nat to advance beyond second base during those seven innings.

The game began to blow up in his face, though, in the eighth. Buddy Myer and Heinie Manush rapped a pair of singles to right and when Powell walked, the bases were full with one out. Earl Averill delivered Lee from an immediate unhappy fate when he made one last desperate lunge toward Sammy Holbrook's wicked line drive into right center field and was, no doubt, surprised to find it in the webbing of his outstretched glove.

Kuhel Doubles.

One run scored after the catch, but two more came clattering home when Joe Kuhel bounced a double off the right field fence. The Nats had shaved the Indians' lead to 5-4 when Pinch-hitter Schulte's single into center scored Kuhel. That was finis for Lee, and Lloyd Brown disposed of Bluege for the final out.

Sent in as the Nats' relief pitcher in the eighth, Pettit was a relief only to the Indians. He gave them back three runs pronto when he walked Brown and Knickerbocker and then pitched a home run to Earl Averill, who smacked the ball over the right field wall to boost the Tribe's lead to 7-4.

That was the distressing situation as the Nats faced it going into the ninth, needing four runs to tie the score, and there was no joy on the Nats' bench when Stone grounded out to start that final inning. Then things began to happen.

The first thing that happened was a walk to Myer and the next thing that happened was a colossal boner by Bozie Berger, who took Manush's easy grounder and threw it so nonchalantly to Knickerbocker at second base for an attempted force play that he forgot to ascertain if Knickerbocker was on the bag, which he was not. The ball dropped harmlessly behind the base and both Myer and Manush were safe.

Two More Doubles.

Cecil Travis met the situation with a double to center, to score Myer, and Jack Powell also met it

Woodward Is Won By Valevictorian

Mrs. Mason's Colt Races 5 Furlongs in 1:01.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, June 19.—Valedictorian, Mrs. Silas B. Mason's black colt, ran 5 furlongs over a heavy track in 1:01 here today to win the $5,000 added Woodward Stakes for 2-year-olds, outstanding juvenile race of the season, by four lengths.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Speed was second and Ste. Louise third in the 11-horse race.

Charley Kurtsinger got Valedictorian away ahead and kept him there all the way. The Bomar Stable's Grand Slam, installed as the favorite, got a bad break at the gate, but ran a game race to finish in fourth place.

Lunn Wins Again In Canadian Golf

Defeats Two Opponents in Amateur Fourth Round.

By the Associated Press.

Ancaster, Ont., June 19.—Two Americans—Fred Wright, of Weston, Mass., and Dick Lunn, of Washington, D. C.—today joined 14 Canadians in the fourth round of the Canadian amateur golf championship.

In the first of today's two 18-hole rounds Lunn defeated Ted Charlton, of Vancouver, 1 up. He then conquered G. Harley, of Toronto, 4 and 3, making the turn 4 up with a medal score of 38.

C. Ross Somerville, four times holder of the title and former United States champion, won to remain the favorite. The fourth round tomorrow will find Lunn meeting Bobby Keithek, of Winnipeg.

Jake Powell Hurt Badly In Game

Rookie Sensation Lost to Team on Injury of Leg Nerve.

By a Staff Correspondent.

CLEVELAND, June 19.—Jake Powell, Washington's sensational rookie outfielder, was carried from the field in agony today, suffering from an injury to the sciatic nerve of his right leg, and will be lost to the team for an indefinite period.

Panicky teammates bore Powell off the field as he struggled in obvious pain after a pathetic scene near home plate, where he was taking his turn at bat.

Apparently having wrenched his leg when he took a vicious swing and hit a foul ball over the Washington dugout in the first inning of the second game, the young fielder evinced no immediate pain, but on attempting to resume his place at bat, he keeled to the ground and Trainer Mike Martin rushed to his aid.

Team Rushes to Help.

There was no great alarm in the Washington dugout when Powell permitted the trainer to examine his leg, and Coach Johnny Kerr, in mock seriousness, made as if to bring a bat down on Powell's head, but when, in apparent agony, the young outfielder squirmed and rolled upon the ground, the entire Washington team rushed to the scene.

Removed to the Washington dugout by his teammates, Powell was still convulsed with pain and four players bore him across the field toward the locker room as the anxious crowd of 7,500 looked on in silence.

It was with difficulty that four massive teammates carried Powell to the locker room, where he could be treated by the Cleveland Club physician. With his fingers held wide and rigid in his pain, his one unharmed leg kicking, and his head tossing in agony, the rookie fought his helpers every step of the way.

Refuses the "Needle."

In the locker room, the doctors quickly diagnosed his ailment as as injury to the sensitive sciatic

Surprise Seen In Wimbledon Drawings

Baron von Cramm Seeded No. 2; Helen Moody Is Preferred.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 19.—Two major surprises were registered today as the draw was made for the Wimbledon tennis championships starting next Monday.

The field, made up of representatives from all sections of the globe, included an even dozen players from the United States—five members of the Davis Cup team and four other men, and three women stars.

Fred J. Perry, of England, was accorded the top-seeded position in the men's singles, but the tournament committee caused a mild sensation by seeding Baron Gottfried von Cramm, able German star, No. 2. Von Cramm's designation was seen as recognition for his remarkable record last year and performances in Germany's rout of Australia in the European Zone Davis Cup play last week.

Allison Is Fifth.

Jack Crawford, of Australia, was seeded No. 3, followed in order by H. W. (Bunny) Austin; Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex.; Sidney B. Wood, jr., of New York; Roderich Menzel, of Cechoslovakia, and Christian Boussus, of France. The draw placed Perry and Menzel in the first quarter; Crawford and Wood in the second; Boussus and Austin in the third, and Allison and Von Gramm in the fourth.

The second surprise, this one in

Jones Dominates London Net Play

American Student Defeats Lysaght to Advance.

By the Associated Press.

London, June 19.—David N. Jones, former Columbia University star, lent valuable aid to the American Davis Cup squad and as a result the Stars and Stripes gained half the quarter-final-round brackets in the London tennis championships at the Queens Club today.

Jones, a student at Oxford for several years, eliminated Jack Lysaght, yesterday's surprise conqueror of John Van Ryn, 6—2, 6—2, and moved into the last eight along with Wilmer Allison, Donald Budge and Gene Mako, all members of the cup team.

Yankees Down Tigers Twice, 13-3, 7-6

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, June 19.—The Yankees took a double-header from Detroit and shoved the Tigers down into fourth place today in a long battle that had all the elements of a dime novel. After clubbing out a 13-to-3 triumph in the opener, the league leaders had to go 12 innings to win, 7-to-6, in a finish that kept the crowd of 27,000 on edge until the last man was retired.

Tommy Bridges, who had won his last nine starts on the mound, finally saw his string shattered after a long duel with Vito Tamulis and Pat Malone in the second game. Twice the Yanks forged ahead only to have the Tigers knot the count.

As they went into the tenth inning Ben Chapman gave the Yanks the lead for the third time with a home run but Pete Fox again tied it up, hitting his second circuit drive of the day. Malone then took up the struggle for the Yanks and the game went on two more innings before Bridges weakened.

Yoder Takes Maryland Medal

Indian Spring's Star and Nine Other D.C. Players Are Qualifiers.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

BALTIMORE, June 19.—Levi Yoder, of Indian Spring Country Club, shot rounds of 75 and 78 for a 153 total today, to win the medal in the Maryland State golf championship at Five Farms course.

Yoder, semifinalist in the Middle Atlantic championship, was one of nine Washington golfers who qualified safely for match play, which starts tomorrow.

The defending champion, Roger Peacock, of Indian Spring, who is seeking his third straight crown, made the grade, despite his 164. Out of practice, Peacock trimmed a startlingly high 86 with a 78 in the afternoon, well within the limit.

Other District golfers who qualified were Menje Thorpe, jr., and Ralph Quinter, jr., of Chevy Chase; Hickman Green, of Manor; Dr. Larry Otell, Sam Rice and Volney Burnett, of Indian Spring, and Tommy Webb, jr., of Columbia.

Yoder Sinks His Putt.

Yoder needed a 3-foot putt for his medal-winning score, and sank it. One shot back of him were Ernie Caldwell, of Hillendale, and Spencer Overton, of Rolling Road.

Morris Sets Dixie Mark With 141

Alabama Lad Adds 73 to 68 for Southern Amateur Record.

Billy Howell Fails to Qualify in Battle at Richmond.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

RICHMOND, Va., June 19.—Climaxing his march to an all-time qualifying record with a birdie on the final hole, 20-year-old Johnny Morris, of Birmingham, today won medal honors in the Southern Amateur golf championship with a two-round total of 141, one shot better than the previous mark and eight shots ahead of his nearest rival.

Far out in front after a brilliant 68 yesterday, the high school senior popped par another jolt today with a 35 for his first nine of the James River course, Country Club of Virginia, but ran into trouble as soon as he began the home stretch.

Driving from the eighteenth tee, the lanky ace needed a par 5 to tie and a birdie to break the 142-figure set three years ago at Birmingham by Gene Vinson, of Meridian, Miss.

Finishes Wit hBirdie.

After a good drive he banged a spoon just short of the grain, laid his chip 3 feet from the cup and sank the putt for a 73. Although he allowed an opportunity to crack the old record wide open to slip thruogh his fingers along those last few holes when he lost strokes at sixteenth and seventeenth, the cocky, but likable youth, showed he had the courage to gamble for the birdie on the final hole. There was a confident smile on his face as he struck those last four blows.

While Morris was keeping close to par with his 37, his chief competitors of the first round, Brown Rainwater, of Atlanta, and Ewing Watkins, of Chattanooga, who had 72's, blew up. Rainwater slipped badly to an 81 for a 153 total, and Watkins had 151 with a 79 today.

Edwin McClure, the Shreveport youngster who won the medal a year ago and arrived so late he had to play his round yesterday without having seen the course, put together steady rounds of 37-74—149 that boosted him into second place.

Billy Howell Fails.

Rain and wind swept over the course this afternoon, catching many of the players, although Watkins was the only prominent contender affected. Norris, Rainwater and McClure has finished before the downpour.

Chief among the casualties was Billy Howell, former Walker Cup member, who was just on the outside with 79-81—160. Dick Payne, of Norfolk, finalist last week in the Middle Atlantic, also was out with 78-83—161.

Earl Stokes, of Louisville, runner-up two years ago; Morton McCarthy, Norfolk, Middle Atlantic champion, and J. C. Lebourgeois, of New Orleans, Southern finalist six years ago, were among those barely qualifying with 150. McCarthy soared to 84 today after 75 yesterday, while Stokes, finding plenty of trouble, had 79-80.

Sam Perry in Fold.

Sam Perry, Birmingham, twice winner, and Horace Williams, St. Petersburg, Florida champion, were together with 77-78—155.

The Chattanooga Country Club and the Hermitage Country Club of Richmond tied for the team championship with 643. Country Club of irginia had 644; Druid Hills, Atlanta, 647; Charlotte Country Club, 667, and Memphis Country Club, 674.

The Chattanooga team included H. S. Chamberlain, 171; Hack Harkins, 164; Pollack Boyd, 157, and Ewing Watkins, 151.

Fred Hass, jr., 19-year-old defending champion from New Orleans, who was exempt from the qualifying round, plays the veteran

Savoldi-Donovan Feature First Outdoor Mat Show Tonight

Ex-Irish Ace Will Meet Irishman

Irish Flip and Italian Drop-kick Will Clash; Meske on Card.

HEARING the call of the great outdoors, the rassle boys will stage their first open-air show of the season tonight at Clark Griffith's Ball Park.

What with Jumping Joe Savoldi and Irish Jack Donovan tugging in the featured spot, a choice bit of blood and thunder is very much in prospect. It seems that this Savoldi man, Knute Rockne's favorite charge in Notre Dame gridwork, employs a devastating bit of mayhem which he playfully calls the drop kick.

The rassling powers that be in certain States have raised a negative finger against this drop kick, allowing as how the blarsted thing is too rough. However, there will be no ban on its use tonight.

One of the few college athletes who have really gone places in the rassle racket, Savoldi will be remembered for the way he disrupted the regular procedure a couple of years ago by pinning Master Jeems Londos. Since that just isn't done in the more cultured rassle circles, the handsome Eyetalyan was disqualified.

Clashing with that thar drop kick will be Jack Donovan's highly touted Irish Flip, which many believe to be as good if not better than Danno O'Mahoney's unthwartable Irish Whip. Who can tell? Mayhap the old problem of just what happens when the irresistible force meets the immovable body will be solved.

In the 45-minute semifinal the bold, bad Injun, Little Beaver, has a tomahawking date with Cliff Olsen, for whom you shouted lustily a couple of years ago. The half-hour prelim jobs have been assigned to Sure Mike Mazurki and Floyd (Call me Fearless) Marshall not to mention Ed (Peaches) Meske and Journeyman Walter Podolak.

Powell refused the "needle" and refused, too, to enter the ambulance that was to take him back to the Nats' hotel. A stretcher was finally ordered for him and he was removed to the club's headquarters.

Trainer Mike Martin and Cleveland doctors were unable to prophesy how long Powell would be lost to the team. They pointed out that Joe Vosmik and Johnny Burnett, Cleveland stars who were afflicted with the same injury to the sciatic nerve, were out of the game for six weeks.

On the theory that a tonsil infection may have induced the injury, Powell will be subjected to a tonsillectomy within a week, according to Martin.

Powell has been a driving force in the Nats' play since the start of the season. A former Takoma Park sandlotter, he ousted Fred Schulte from the regular centerfield post and has proven himself the best defensive outfielder on the club. His hitting has been above the .300 mark virtually all season.

Lamond, D. C., Leads Lacrosse Invasion

Angus Lamond, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Lamond, of 7221 Blair road, Takoma Park, D. C., left today for New Westminster, Canada, as captain of the All-Maryland Lacrosse Team. He represents St. John's College in Annapolis, Md., where he is a senior. The team will play for the Lally Trophy in New Westminster, whence they will travel to various parts of Canada over a period of several weeks to give exhibition games in Winnepeg, Toronto, Calgary and Montreal. This is Lamond's third year as captain.

Golden Bears Set Hopes on Olympics

Victorious California Crew Turn Eyes Toward Berlin in '36.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 19.—California's conquering oarsmen, spurred on by their latest triumph in the classic Poughkeepsie Regatta, already have their eyes on the 1936 Olympics.

The Golden Bears from Berkeley have carried the American colors to triumph in the last two Olympiads at Amsterdam and Los Angeles. They are ambitious now to make it three straight at Berlin. On their record for coming through, under pressure, during the past four seasons, they will be hard to beat in the battle for the international assignment.

A lot of things can happen by this time next year, cautioned Carroll (Ky) Ebright, head coach of the Bears, who brought the crew to town today for an overnight round of recreation before heading westward tomorrow for the Long Beach Invitation Regatta.

"We naturally hope to develop another Olympic crew but it's always a gamble in boat racing. The crew that clicks is the one that wins. I guess we have been pretty lucky. Maybe fortune will smile on us again next year. Our boys will be doing the best they can. We plan to be back for Poughkeepsie, as well as the Olympic trials."

Ebright, the former University of Washington coxswain who has compiled a brilliant coaching record at California, will have five of his championship varsity eight as a nucleus for the 1936 crew. He loses Harley Fremming, bow oar; Jack Yates, No. 2, and Ray Andresen, No. 5. Fremming is only a sophomore but he intends to enter dental school and give up rowing. The coxswain, Reggie Watts, will be lost by graduation.

The holdovers are Evald Swanson, Carroll Brigham, Tevis Thompson, Laurence Dodge and Gene Berkenkamp, the 20-year-old sophomore stroke. Berkenkamp, a forestry student, is the latest in a line of great California pace-setters started by the famous Pete Donlon, stroke of the 1928 champions.

Wimbledon Draw Offers Surprises

the nature of an enigma, was produced in the draw for the women's singles, Catherine Stammers, England's third-ranking performer and the only player so far to put a halt to Mrs. Helen Wills Moody's comeback campaign, was seeded sixth—two notches below Mrs. Moody.

Dorothy Round, of England, winner of the Wimbledon title last year, was seeded first, followed in order by Hildea Krahwinkel Sperling, of Germany, recent winner of the French hard court title; Helen Hull Jacobs, thrice winner of the American championship; Mrs. Moody; six times winner of the Wimbledon title; Mme. Rene Mathieu, of France; Miss Stammers; Peggy Scriven, of England and Joan Hartigan, of Australia.

Allison and Johnny Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, twice victorious in the doubles here, were seeded No. 1 in that division followed by Crawford and Adrian Quist, of Australia; the veteran French combination of Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon, and the youthful American team of Donald Budge and Gene Mako.

In the women's doubles Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, Conn. and Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, of France topped the draw, with Mme. Mathieu and Frau Sperling No. 2; Miss Stammers and Freda James No. 3, and Elsie Goldsack Pittman and Adeline Yorke, No. 4. For mixed doubles Von Cramm and Frau Sperling were top-seeded followed by Martin Legeay, of France and Mme. Henrotin; Perry and Miss Round, and Allison and Miss Jacobs.

Crystal Pool Sponsors Free Swim Lessons

Starting next Monday and continuing until August 9, a free course of swimming instruction will be given at Glen Echo's Crystal Pool under the personal supervision of Boyd Hickman. Saturdays, Sundays and holidays excluded, the classes have been scheduled daily for children, 10 to 10:30 a. m., for women, 10:30 to 11 a. m., and for men, 11 to 11:30 a. m.

CITY OF TWO WORLDS— CONSTANTINOPLE IS THE ONLY CITY IN THE WORLD THAT STANDS ON 2 CONTINENTS... -Europe, Asia-
6-20-35

Constantinople, now called Istanbul, is the only city in the world that is located on two continents. This Turkish city is located on two continents. This Turkish city is located mostly on the European side of the Bosporus, but it also extends over into the Asiatic territory of Turkey.

Amethyst, a violet or purple variety of quartz, used now as an ornamental stone, was of far greater value in ancient days than it is now. The name comes from two Greek words meaning "not to intoxicate" and it was firmly believed among the ancients that if you drank the wine from a cup made of amethyst you would not become intoxicated.

The stone was about 10 times as valuable in olden times as now, and it was widely used by the Egyptians for making intaglios. Today it is used for episcopal rings. Although amethyst is very widely distributed, there are comparatively few localities where good clear specimens can be found.

Strange as it seems, the conformation of the retina of the eye makes straight lines look curved, and curved lines look straight under some conditions. If you hold the checkered circle close to the face, look intently at the center with one eye, then the whole area will appear to be a patchwork of uniform squares. This illusion is brought about by the fact that the eye itself is curved, and the outer black and white spaces in the circle impress the curved surface of the eye as being square.

Let's Go Fishing . . .

By M. W. Meier.

THERE was nothing doing on Chesapeake Bay yesterday and the ocean was just as bad. Heavy fog and a stiff nor'easter. We had a message from Kenwood Beach advising anglers to stay home for another day.

Friends who went to Ocean City the first of the week returned Wednesday noon without having wet a line. They reported the sea too rough to go out on and surf fishing failed to produce a single thing.

From numerous reliable sources we are being told of huge schools of ale-wives working upward from Southwest Middles. This augers well for the angler.

Capt. Taft Tibbett, of Ridge, reports that two Washingtonians were on Southwest Middles with him on Saturday and that they landed ten fine big blues, nine of which were heavy with roe.

Saturday night he took out a party from Indiana. They landed 110 hardheads and 1 fair-sized trout off No Point Light. On Sunday one of his parties landed 66 hardheads and trouts off the Old Wreck. This fishing was all done in a stiff northeast wind.

Any day now, blue fishing should start with a bang all over the bay. The food is there and there are schools scattered all the way up to the very head of the Chesapeake. It is news to us that these fish are coming in heavy with spawn. This would certainly indicate that they spawn sometimes in nearby waters rather than out in the Atlantic. Most of the blues now being caught at Ocean City are bursting with eggs.

Lands Blue on Fly Rod.

Dr. Paul Hatch, ardent angler and good friend of this column, returned from Philadelphia yesterday, with an unusual fish story.

Three Pennsylvania doctors, Messrs. Barnhurst, Wiley and Gerlach, were fly-fishing for shad on the Susquehanna River, at Rock Run, Md., just below the Conowingo Dam. They were anchored out in swift water letting their casts float downstream. All were using fly-rods, tapered lines and 6-foot leaders. The flies were the Tom Loving pattern.

With this equipment they caught a total of 28 shad, weighing from 2½ to 10 pounds, on two different afternoons. One of the medicos, Gerlach, we believe, got an unusually vicious strike and his captive acted totally unlike the shad. After a battle royal of many minutes, during which his light rod seemed often on the point of breaking, he landed a 9-pound bluefish!

This is the first time, to our knowledge, of a blue ever rising to an artificial fly. Nor were we aware that blues ever traveled so far upstream. The amazing part of it all, however, is the fact that this fish was caught the week before Decoration Day!

Pollution in Potomac.

S. B. D. Rollins, of 613 F street northeast, telephones in to report of huge numbers of dead bass, perch and catfish in the river near the jail and Bailey's boathouse.

There is nothing we can do about this, Brother Rollins. Anglers and outraged citizens have been trying for years to eliminate pollution in the Potomac. There are laws about it, but they are not enforced. Thousands of fish die every year because they can not live in filth. Those which do mature seem to have become inured to the horrible conditions.

The local chapter of the Izaak Walton League has waged a long battle against this condition. We urge you to become a member and help them in their fight.

Don't Waste Fish!

Talbott Denmead, of the Bureau of Fisheries, wrote us last week to urge anglers who catch more fish than they know what to do with to give these catches to various hospitals and charitable organizations. The list is too long for us to print here. Just look under "Homes and Institutions" in the telephone directory and you'll find some worthy place close to where you reside.

Grange to Coach Bears' Back Field

'Red' to Tutor Pros; Played 237 Full Contests.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 19.—His playing days at an end, Harold (Red) Grange, the "galloping ghost" of the gridiron, today accepted a position as back field coach of the Chicago Bears of the National Professional Football League, a team he played with for nine seasons.

When Grange turned in his uniform after the final game of the Bears' West tour last winter, he had completed his 237th game of football, all regulation games. A statistician figured that in those games he gained 32,820 yards, carried the ball 4,013 times, scored 531 touchdowns and a total of 3,366 points and compiled an average gain of 8.2 yards per try.

Queen Sees Priok Take Royal Hunt

By the Associated Press.

Ascot, England, June 19.—H. Barnard-Hankey's Priok today won the Royal Hunt Cup of 7 furlongs 155 yards. Sir Henry Lyons' Scattercash was second and Sir Alfred McAlpine's Llarnarmon third.

The winner was a 66-to-1 shot in the betting. Scattercash was held at 28 to 1 to win and Llarnarmon at 33 to 1 to win.

Among the spectators was the queen. Accompanied by the Prince of Wales, she rode in state along the course. The Duchess of Kent was not present. It was learned that while she is in perfect health, she is "resting."

Outdoor Bouts In Alexandria Postponed

Show Scheduled for June 22 to Be Held Late in July.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., June 19.—Alexandria's first big outdoor amateur boxing show, scheduled for June 21, has been postponed until late in July, it was announced today by Capt. Cameron Roberts.

The Alexandria Eagles game with the Culpeper A. C., slated to be played at Baggett's Stadium yesterday afternoon, was called off because of rain.

The annual service letter game with Fort Washington and Fort Belvoir nines clashing for the title will be held on the former's field on Sunday.

Joe Hamilton, popular local ball player, today was appointed as coach of the Alexandria All-Stars. He is seeking games with teams in the Valley loop.

The Alexandria Eagles have been offered a game with the Harrisonburg A. C. for next Tuesday night at Harrisonburg, Va.

Hal Chilcotte has signed to catch for the Charlottesville nine in the Valley loop and left here today for the university city.

Over 30 players are entered in the Alexandria ping-pong tourney. J. Earle Ross and Billy Smith are promoting this event.

Course Record Broken By Martinsburg Golfer

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 19.—A new record for 18 holes was set on the Opequon Golf Club course yesterday by Paul A. Bennett, a member, who made two tours of the course in 66, four under par for the course as he shot it. Bennett was accompanied by the club pro, Tommy Albright, and Earl Weller, when the mark was set.

He also holds the record for nine holes, 31, five under par, set some time ago.

Par for 18 holes is ordinarily 72, but the way the trio played the No. 8 hole was reduced from 470 yards to 425 and par lowered from 5 to 4. Bennett had five birdies, went over par on only one hole (No. 6) and played the remainder in par. The course is 6,070 yards long.

Narragansett's Feature to Dark Hope

Identify Is Loser by Nose as Rider Swings Wide, Seeking Good Going.

By the Associated Press.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., June 19.—Swinging wide turning for home to escape the heavy going, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's 4-year-old Identify today lost just enough ground to be nosed out by J. W. Y. Martin's Dark Hope in the $5,000 added King Philip Handicap, the mile and a sixteenth feature of Narragansett Park's inaugural program.

Vanderbilt's 4-year-old son of Man O' War, winner in his last two starts at Rockingham Park, led the nine-horse field from the gate until Leo Pillon, his rider, tried to steer him away from a sloppy spot in the track. Those few extra steps were costly, for Dark Hope swept through the opening and barely lasted to the finish line.

The Belair stud's Vicar trailed the Vanderbilt colt by 2½ lengths to finish in the show position. Most of the opening-day crowd of 15,000 supported identify, backing him down to even money at the start.

48 Golfers Will Play In 2-Man Team Tourney

Forty-eight golfers will participate in the two-man team championship opening this week-end at Argyle Country Club. Three classes of eight teams each were drawn, with each team to play seven matches by the middle of September.

Handicaps will be used and the Nassau system of scoring will prevail. Pairings for Saturday and Sunday follow:

'Wise Guys' Backing Primo to Whip Louis

By Bill McCormick.

THOSE who think Joe Louis will transform Ponderous Primo Carnera from a leering, gargoylish monster into a mass of incarnadined raw meat within a few minutes of their 15-round bout next Tuesday may be in for a bigger surprise than those who conceded Jim Braddock no chance against Max Baer. It is significant that the same smart sharpshooters who insisted Braddock would punch Max from under his crown just as avowedly support Carnera in the forthcoming encounter.

"Louis is a short puncher," they point out, "and Primo is poison to short punchers. He holds them at bay with a long left which piles up points for him, then leans all over them, tying them up when they do get in close so effectively they can not harm him."

Primo not only falls into a desperate clinch whenever an opponent gets within firing range for short punches; he has another very charming little habit which wouldn't be noticed by one out of every 10,000 ringside spectators. As Primo locks the opposition's hands under his own elbows, he works on their muscles with his own gloved hands.

Primo Has Strong Grip.

Carnera has a very strong grip, and he inserts his four fingers and thumb in the biceps and literally tears them to pieces. Ray Impellitteire, only a mediocre fighter, was doing all right against the Ambling Alp for a few rounds. As big and strong as Carnera, he didn't particularly mind it when Primo draped his 265 pounds on him. But, along about the second round, Carnera had his biceps torn to shreds and his punching power was completely gone.

Carnera is a sucker for a long right, as Max Baer demonstrated. While in training for the Tommy Loughran bout, several sparmates were hauled out of Primo's camp because they persisted in throwing long rights which made the then champion look very foolish indeed. Louis has no long right, however. In fact, he throws no long punches at all—and therein lies Carnera's main chance.

Max Schmeling, a really good fighter, never would meet Carnera because he, too, is a short puncher and realized the difficulties of attempting to beat a fighter of Primo's style. On the other hand, there probably are an even dozen palookas who, if not handcuffed, could batter poor Primo about something terrible.

Louis never has gone more than 10 rounds—and has been called upon to do that only four times in his brief professional career. To be perfectly truthful, Joe didn't look so good after about the fifth round of his match with Natie Brown, who was one who went the distance. Had Natie not been so badly done up by the severe walloping he took in the early stages of the bout, he might have upset Louis.

Carnera to Be Cautious.

Carnera will be in there fighting very cautiously for the first half of the fight. He will stick with that left and dance away with remarkable speed afoot that seems so out of place in a big man. At close quarters, he will clinch desperately, draping his 265-pounds around Joe's shoulders, roughing him up unmercifully—and working on Louis' muscles. If he can survive seven or eight rounds without being too badly damaged, he may open up in the closing sessions, as Louis tires, to take a decision.

Louis is a really great fighter in the making, while Carnera is just a manufactured punch pusher. Louis is one of the ring's greatest feinters, and Primo has been gun shy and easy to feint out of position since the Baer bout. Louis is working on an attack whereby he will duck under Primo's left and start the ball rolling with a left hook to the body. Whether the attack will work in actual operation remains to be seen at the Yankee Stadium next Tuesday.

Poor Yale, Harvard Crews Stage Ancient Race Tomorrow

By the Associated Press.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19. Still atwitter over the magnificent rowing doings at Poughkeepsie, the crew world turned today from the turbulent Hudson to the placid Thames, where Friday, with President Roosevelt looking on, the eights of Harvard and Yale will renew the oldest rivalry in American sports history.

They'll be racing strictly for the championship of the broad river that flows by this old whaling town, as well as of the campuses of the Blue and the Crimson, but that doesn't prevent the annual 4-mile haul, final event of the Eastern season, from taking its old familiar top-notch position in the sports world.

Harvard, never worried about what happens during the sprint season, has piled up the unique record this year of being beaten by every varsity eight in the East except Columbia, last at Poughkeepsie, and Massachusetts Tech, which didn't go there. Yale, with the same attitude, beat the same two crews Harvard-licked, but lost only to Pennsylvania. Penn was the only other crew Yale rowed, as a matter of fact.

But for all of that, there will still be as colorful and excited a crowd as gathers anywhere in the East lining the shores and riding the observation trains for the 2-mile freshman and junior varsity races in the morning and the varsity climax in the evening. The President's son, Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., will row in Harvard's jayvee boat.

Today's preparations, in the form of tapering-off exercises, brought no change in the experts' views that Yale should be the favorite in the varsity, and should duplicate its record-breaking victory of last June. Yale has won a total of 38 times and Harvard 34 since the regatta began in 1852.

Favorite Bows to Mrs. Walper on 19th Hole at Indian Spring

2 Stars Lose In Women's Tourney

Mrs. Meckley and Helen Dettweiler Both Are Eliminated.

By Dave Herman.

THE heavy favorite, Mrs. Betty Meckley, pride of the host club, was eliminated by Mrs. Leo Walper, of Kenwood, tournament medalist, in a stirring 19-hole battle that featured yesterday's second-round matches in the District women's golf championship at Indian Spring Country Club.

As surprising as Mrs. Meckley's defeat was Helen Dettweiler's setback at the hands of Mrs. Roland Mackenzie, a Congressional companion, 4 and 2.

Meanwhile, the defending champion, Winifred Faunce, of Manor, came through with a grand performance in turning back Virginia Pope, of Kenwood, 4 and 2.

Elizabeth Houghton, Chevy Chase's lone survivor, didn't have to move a muscle in winning her match. Mrs. J. F. Dowdall, of Congressional, had to make an important trip out of town and defaulted to Miss Houghton at the eleventh hour.

Thus was the stage set for this morning's semifinals, in which Miss Faunce will face Mrs. Mackenzie at 9:30, and Miss Houghton will oppose Mrs. Walper five minutes later. The finals will be played tomorrow.

Mrs. Meckley Rallies.

It was a case of the one who could outlast the other in the match between Mrs. Meckley and Mrs. Walper, certainly one of the most thrilling in the history of the championship. And it was Mrs. Walper who showed strong finishing powers.

One down at the turn—never up during the 18 holes—Mrs. Meckley made a beautiful comeback. She had squared the match with a fine par 4 at the twelfth, but a trapped tee shot cost her the short fourteenth. Two down she went at the 501-yard sixteenth, longest hole on the course, when Mrs. Walper, on the green in 4, lying the same as Mrs. Meckley, rolled in a curling 20-footer for a par 5 to Mrs. Meckley's 6.

Standing on the seventeenth tee, facing possible defeat, Mrs. Meckley showed great courage by booming her shot to within 4 feet of the pin—a beautiful shot on this 194-yard hole, where many a golf star has come to grief. Mrs. Walper reached the green, 15 feet away, and barely missed her birdie. Mrs. Meckley sank her putt for the deuce.

Both Hit Good Drives.

Both were down the fairway nicely with their drives on the eighteenth. Mrs. Meckley's second hit the trap to the left of the fairway and skipped out, but Mrs. Walper was not so fortunate. Her second stayed in the trap. She played out safely, and lost the hole to Mrs. Meckley's 5.

The strain now became terrific, as they fired off for the nineteenth. Their drives were fair. They dubbed their seconds, Mrs. Walper being 40 yards ahead of Mrs. Meckley. The Indian Spring golfer knocked her third into a trap to the left of the green, blasted out carefully, and her putt for a half from 25 feet was an inch wide of the cup. Mrs. Walper was on in 3, and safely down in 2 for her 5 and victory.

Both scored 83's for the round.

First Flight.

Miss Winifred Faunce (Manor) defeated Miss Virginia Pope (Kenwood), 4 and 2; Mrs. Roland Mackenzie (Congressional) defeated Miss Helen Dettweiler (Congressional), 4 and 2; Miss Elizabeth Houghton (Chevy Chase) won by default from Mrs. J. F. Dowdall (Congressional); Mrs. Leo Walper (Kenwood) defeated Mrs. Betty Meckley (Indian Spring), 1 up, 19 holes.

Consolations—Mrs. L. G. Fray won by default; Mrs. Jack Scott (Congressional) defeated Mrs. Phillip Cole (Army-Navy), 5 and 4; Miss Ellen Kincaid (Beaver Dam) defeated Mrs. Hume Peabody (Army-Navy), 3 and 2; Mrs. Harvey Cooper (Manor) defeated Mrs. L. T. Powers (Indian Spring), 4 and 3.

Second Flight.

Mrs. George Diffenbaugh (Indian Spring) defeated Miss C. B. Hill (Indian Spring), 7 and 6; Mrs. J. W. Beller (Columbia) defeated Miss Louise Claytor (Chevy Chase), 1 up, 21 holes.

Consolations—Mrs. E. M. Amick (Columbia) defeated Mrs. Howard Simons (Manor), 5 and 4; Mrs. H. R. Quinter (Columbia) defeated Mrs. Ora Emge (Beaver Dam), 3 and 2.

Third Flight.

Mrs. J. T. Powell (Manor) defeated Mrs. Jack Daley (Manor), 1 up; Mrs. E. L. Reed (Chevy Chase) defeated Mrs. Wilda Martin (Kenwood), 1 up.

Consolations—Miss Florence Scott (Indian Spring) won by default; Mrs. R. F. Thompson (Army-Navy) won by default.

Fourth Flight.

Mrs. L. K. Rice (Manor) defeated Mrs. Lucy Smith (Columbia), 4 and 2; Mrs. G. B. McGinty (Columbia) defeated Mrs. E. E. Levy (Army-Navy), 4 and 3.

Smiles From District Golf Semifinalists

Left to right—Mrs. Leo Walper, of Kenwood, medalist; Miss Winifred Faunce, of Manor, champion, and Mrs. Roland Mackenzie, of Congressional, have a reason to be happy. They won their matches yesterday in the District golf championship at Indian Spring, and will play in the semifinals today. This picture would be complete if Miss Elizabeth Houghton, of Chevy Chase, also a semifinalist, were in it. She won her match by default.

Collegians Try Course for Tourney

BRISTLING with confidence, Ed White, sturdy golf captain of the University of Texas, came to town with his Longhorn challengers yesterday and fired a 74 at Congressional Country Club in a tune-up round for the National Intercollegiate Championship scheduled to open next Monday.

Southwest collegiate titleholder, beaten by Charlie Yates in the finals last year at Cleveland, White stroked over the rain-soaked course for a brace of 37's, 2 over par, playing his last nine in a drizzle.

Other Texas teammates who registered at Congressional for the big event were W. Welch, R. Battle, Bob Ramsey and Nat Munger. They joined Capt. White in a practice round, but failed to tally as brilliantly as their leader.

At least 23 entrants were on the course, and all got a taste of the Congressional course under abnormal conditions.

Verne (Spec) Stewart, Stanford star, New Mexico and Southwestern amateur champion, playing with his captain, Tommy Dwyer, and Professional Roland Mackenzie, scored a 75, with a 37 on the back nine. The husky Stewart, who pops 'em a tremendous distance off the tee, looks dangerous. Dwyer, playing his first round in two weeks, hobbling about the course with a sprained ankle, which he expects will be O. K. by Monday, went out in 38, and quit after 12 holes.

Stanford teammates, Don Edwards, Jack Hoerner, M. Erskine and Jeeb Halaby, also worked out, mostly from the practice tee. Joe Lynch, Georgetown captain, suffering with laryingitis, and Kenny Corcoran, brushed up on their putting. Four George Washington golfers, Ben King, J. Norcross, J. Madden and R. L. Spire, were out for a round.

By tomorrow virtually all of the 150 entrants will be on the scene. Defending Champion Yates, who played an exhibition match in Atlanta with Bob Jones and Joyce Wethered Tuesday, left last night for Washington.

Providing he doesn't go to the finals of the Southern Amateur, Louisiana State University's Freddie Haas, will be in town Saturday morning. Johnny Fischer, 1932 titleholder, Chuck Koscis and the howling Michigan Wolverines left their lair at Ann Arbor last night. Fischer is due for a broadcast over WMAL tomorrow night.

Ed White, captain of the University of Texas team and leading contender for the individual golf crown now held by Charlie Yates, will be interviewed tonight at 6:30 by Bill Coyle over Radio Station WMAL.

The advance sale of tickets for the National Intercollegiate championship at the Congressional Country Club next week will begin today at A. G. Spalding's store and at the various country clubs.

Browns, Red Sox Divide Two Games

Hard Contest Seen For Pony Show

365 Entries Recorded for Warrenton Event.

By the Associated Press.

Warrenton, Va., June 19.—A stout contest between the Rives Brothers of Cobham, and Mrs. Samuel Wagner 3d, of Philadelphia, for permanent possession of the Sunset Challenge Cup is expected to mark the Warrenton Junior Hunt pony show Saturday.

The list, which went to press with 365 entries in various classes for 97 ponies, shows a record number filed for the road hack class. Ponies have been entered by owners from Richmond, Fredericksburg, Washington, Middleburg, Leesburg, Rockville, Md., and elsewhere.

The first class is called for 9 a. m.

Records Held Safe From Collegians

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Calif., June 19.—The country's finest track and field athletes will match strides and strength in the National Collegiate A. A. championships here Friday and Saturday, but Brutus Hamilton, of the University of California, expressed doubt today any world's records would be broken.

Hamilton, scholarly coach who recently figured out a table of ultimate performances for track and field, does not see eye to eye with many other members of his profession in the matter of setting new marks.

"There are some mighty good records in the books now," Hamilton explained. "We've reached the point where a new record should be considered a real feat, not an everyday occurrence.

"Perhaps I shouldn't say so, but I will be surprised if any records are broken in the meet. Much will depend on conditions. If the weather is ideal there is a good chance some records will be equaled. Possibly some will be beaten.

"Jesse Owens, of Ohio State, should be able to break the broad jump record any time he jumps. And he won't have to run alone in the sprints as he has done most of the season. In this meet there will be some boys right at his elbows. There is a bare possibility Owens has reached his seasonal peak. He has been doing the work of four athletes for several weeks."

Every race, with the possible exception of the mile and 2-mile runs, shapes up exceptionally close. Ray Sears, of Butler, has impressed observers as the standout in the mile and 2-mile. Sears is in top condition whereas his keenest rival, Don Lash, of Indiana, is nursing a bad arch and may even be out of competition.

Braves and Cubs Split Twin Games

First of Close Contests Is Pitching Duel.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, June 19. — The Boston Braves and the Chicago Cubs divided two hard-fought games here today, the Braves winning the first by a 2-1 margin, and the visitors taking the second, 3-0.

Bob Smith hooked up with Lonnie Warnekie in an old-fashioned pitching duel in the first encounter, Smith allowing seven hits, while the Braves were held to six.

Big Bill Lee collected his seventh victory of the year in the nightcap, shutting out the McKechnie clan with five scattered hits.

Waynesboro Beats Harrisonburg, 6-5

Two-Run Rally in Ninth Brings Victory.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Va., June 19.—Waynesboro staged a two-run rally in the last of the ninth today to defeat Harisonburg by 6-5, and go to second place in the Valley League. The locals took a four-run lead in the first inning and sent Benny Good to the showers. Schmidt held Waynesboro to two hits until a triple by Huffman, and single by Connell sent in the tying run which brought Hart to the mound in the ninth. A single by Will and two sacrifices enabled Connell to score and Hart was charged with a loss, although he faced only three batters.

Brindell accounted for two Harrisonburg runs in the inning with a single after hits by Kibler and Leavel and walk by Baker. Harrisonburg drove Moyers out of the box in the sixth with four hits for three runs.

with a double to center that scored Manush and Travis, leaving the Nats only a run behind and ousting Lloyd Brown from the game.

Johnson's next pitching choice was Ralph Winegarner, who had no success at all, at all. When he walked Pinch Hitter Bolton and Kuhel to fill the bases Johnson got him out of there and sent in Clint Brown to face Pinch Hitter Jack Redmond. Powell was home from third almost before Third Baseman Odell Hale could field Redmond's slow roller, and the score was tied at 8 to 8.

Ossie Bluege untied it with a single to left that scored two more runs, and Myer's second hit of the inning gave the Nats their seventh run of the session. Ed Linke got the Indians out in the ninth without damage.

Russell Is Hit Hard.

In that second game the Indians didn't tarry long with Jack Russell. They wiped out the Nats' 1-0 lead in the third, which Knickerbocker started with a double to left, and which Trosky climaxed with a rollicking home run over the center-field fence with Campbell on base.

Washington got two runs back again: Walter Stewart in the fourth when Travis doubled and Stone and Kuhel singled to tie the score, but the Indians weren't finished with Russell. It was 6-3 after Hale doubled and Berger and Brenzel and Knickerbocker singled. It was 7-3 in the fifth when Campbell whacked a home run over the right-field wall.

Belve Bean found himself in the game in the seventh with the score now 7-4. He succeeded in pitching Hal Trosky his second home run of the game and then pitched another homer to Bruce Campbell. The score zoomed to 9-4. He got the side out in the eighth with the aid of Johnny Stone's brilliant catch, but not until three straight singles boosted the Indians' score to the round figure of 10.

Mount Jackson Bows, 14-0, to Woodstock

Three Pitchers Driven Off Mound as Shamrocks Make 19 Hits.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

WOODSTOCK, Va., June 19.—Woodstock, still smarting from an 8-to-3 defeat handed them in last Sunday's tilt, battered Mount Jackson team today, 14 to 0, in the worst exhibition of baseball in the league.

Shaffer and Litten, who were on the hill for the league leaders in the first inning, were clubbed for six runs, and Shannon, who relieved Litten in the second, was unable to check the heavy-batting spree of the Shamrocks and was also driven from the hill after four runs had crossed the plate.

Brannon, Mount Jackson's last offering in the pitching of the day, allowed two runs in the seventh inning. Woodstock batted around in the first and second innings, with Harry Sheetz, catcher of the local team, leading the attack. Dellinger's heavy hitting was the high light of the game.

Jake Sheetz, Woodstock's pitcher, held Mount Jackson to three hits through the nine innings, and is credited with the best pitching exhibition of the league thus far.

Woodstock went into second place as the result of the game, with Mount Jackson still leading the league by a one-game margin. The Shamrocks collected a total of 19 hits and played errorless ball.

Barrow Favored At West Potomac

Medalist to Meet Kanable in Match Today.

J. H. (Bob) Barrow goes to the post as the odds-on favorite to win the West Potomac golf championship, which goes through its first round of match play today. Barrow, who won the medal with a 65, engages Vernon Kanable in his opening match.

With little or no interest shown in the women's class, the only two entrants, Alice Marston and Betty Garber, were permitted to play in the men's division. The law of the draw pits Miss Garber, a school teacher, against Representative Will Rogers (not the philosopher-humorist), of Oklahoma, at 9:20. Miss Marston opposes W. S. Beadles.

Pairings and starting times follow:

First flight—9:00, J. H. Barrow vs. Vernon Kanable; 9:05, Ollie Catts vs. Paul White; 9:10, Alice Marston vs. W. S. Beadles; 9:15, Dan Riehl vs. Don Hall; 9:20, Congressman Will Rogers vs. Betty Garber; 9:25, B. Frost vs. J. S. McClendon; 9:30, Jack Marceron vs. Frank Verneri; 9:35, H. Burroughs vs. Paul Hansen.

Second flight—9:40, Bob Rettew vs. A. Woodward; 9:45, S. Kelly vs. Bill Kelly; 9:50, R. Brown, bye; 9:55, Jack Wolf vs. J. B. Braund; 10:00, J. Kaiser, bye; 10:05, E. Pons

Highly Touted Sunway Wins Charles Town Feature in Mud

Daily Double Pays $77 To Lucky

Dreary Day Finds 3,500 Incurables Out for Races.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., June 19.—This was not a day for a hunch on Sunway, the sun being conspicuous by its absence for the first full afternoon of this long meeting. However, the gelded son of Sun God II and Dance Way was more than a hunch, he was what the touts call "a living cinch," and he ran like one.

Over a track that was all of what the expression "sea of mud" stands for, Sunway awaited Jockey C. Coffman's call for speed, got it and then tin-canned home 5 lengths in front of Goantell which, in turn, had a ten-length advantage over Scotty's Pride in the field of five answering the bugle for the mile and a sixteenth feature. The race, for some reason or another, was named "The Rockingham."

There was no secrecy about Sunway. He was tipped from one end of the track to the other and his odds dwindled throughout the betting. When everything was said and done the gelding paid a $5 mutuel, although he barely missed being a co-favorite with Goantell.

Goantell lost her chance at the start when she went into the air. Jockey Booker did not let her rest thereafter. He batted her out into the lead while Coffman rated Sunway behind. Along the backstretch Sunway went after Goantell, and the race, except for the pay-off, was over. Sunway is the property of L. C. Leith, a Virginian.

Despite the dark, dreary day and the muddy track, some 3,500 were in the stands. They bet $2,140 on the daily double and the lucky ones—those who tied up Echelon with Play Cap—cashed to the tune of $77.20.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SIR TEN, $26.20, $14.60, $9.80; CHAIN, $30.60, $14.40; BELLE GRIER, $5.40.

SIR TEN, restrained back of the early pace, made his effort in the last quarter-mile, was brought to the outside in the stretch and, closing with a rush, wore down BELLE GRIER and had enough left to withstand CHAIN. The latter, slow to settle into his best stride, moved up gradually leaving the back stretch and, saving all possible ground, finished stoutly. BELLE GRIER, restrained close up, took command in the stretch only to weaken in the closing strides. MOANE KEALA, prominently placed, weakened in the last sixteenth. GOLD STEP was unable to reach the leaders.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:20. Off at 4:21. Winner, Saddle Sour Stable's ch. g. (5), by Chatterdown—Pola Negri. Trained by J. R. Gregory. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:49, 1:15 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHATTERFOL, $7.20, $4.30, $3.30; INFORMAL, $6.50; $4.40; MORDEN, $5.60.

CHATTERFOL moved up steadily in the opening quarter-mile while out in the middle of the track, continued to race wide and, wearing down INFORMAL when straightened out in the stretch, drew out steadily. INFORMAL, hustled to the front, drew clear, was steadied along under slight restraint, though no match for the winner when challenged. MORDEN, away well, dropped back in the opening stages and, moving up gradually thereafter, CYNWYD, restrained early, moved up fast on the inside at the stretch turn, but was unable to make up any ground in the last furlong.

FIFTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $1,300. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:49. Off at 4:50½. Winner, R. Robertson's ch. c. (2), by Canter—Binnacle. Trained by C. J. Meister. Value to winner, $975; second, $195; third, $90; fourth, $40. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:47, 1:01 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRIGHT AND EARLY, $7.00, $2.70, $2.60; SWASHBUCKLER, $2.20; SEA TED, $3.30.

BRIGHT AND EARLY fought it out head and head with SWASHBUCKLER for the first half-mile and drew out fast in the last sixteenth, though hard ridden to the end. SWASHBUCKLER had speed from the start, went to the drive in the last furlong, but was not quite badly in the closing strides though never headed. SEA TED, on the outside from the start, closed with good courage in the stretch run. THE HARE was never able to reach the leaders. RICH STRIKE tired.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. The King Philip Handicap. Purse, $5,000 added. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:20. Off at 5:21½. Winner, J. W. Y. Martin's br. g. (6), by Traumer—Dinahmens. Trained by L. Feustel. Value to winner, $4,830; second, $1,000; third, $500; fourth, $250. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:14 4-5, 1:42, 1:49 1-5.

LEGUME	113	7	5	3½	8	8	8	8	Munden	7.45
STOCKS	102	5		Lost rider					Sloan	14.20

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DARK HOPE, $14.90, $4.50, $3.40; IDENTIFY, $4.00, $2.90; VICAR, $4.10.

DARK HOPE, rated along in back of the pace for the first half-mile, moved up steadily on the outside, responded gamely to urging, took command a few yards out, but barely lasted. IDENTIFY went to the front in the run to the first turn, was in front of the better going down the backstretch, drew clear, and, after being passed by the winner, came again in the concluding strides, just failing to get up. VICAR followed the leader closest in the early run and held on well to the end. THOMASVILLE, restrained early, closed with good energy. PRINCE FOX moved up on the outside leaving the back stretch, though unable to gain a prominent position. CHATMOSS moved up on the inside with a great saving of ground at the stretch turn, but faltered in the last furlong.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:51. Off at 5:51½. Winner, Mr. P. Metcalf's b. g. (5), by Abbotts Nymph—Queen Menck. Trained by M. Smart. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:24 4-5, 0:50 4-5, 1:16 3-5, 1:44, 1:59.

Horses	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockeys	Straight

GRACIAS	112	5	3	3²	4¹	4¹	4²	5	Fallon	7.35

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRINCE ABBOTT, $4.30, $2.90, $2.60; ANNARITA, $3.10, $2.60; MATHIAS, $3.40.

PRINCE ABBOTT, under stout restraint while racing close up for the first half-mile, moved up the stretch between the leaders nearing the far turn and drew out fast, winning with speed in reserve. ANNARITA displayed good speed in pacemaking, but was no match for the winner and had to be hard ridden to save the place after Howell lost his whip in the stretch. MATHIAS, well placed, moved up gamely in the stretch, but weakened slightly at the end. OLAMAY was never prominent, racing back.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 6:20. Off at 6:20½. Winner, H. Donzan's br. f. (3), by Brown Bud—Smacker. Trained by J. J. Barker. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:24, 0:48 1-5, 1:14 3-5, 1:44 2-5, 1:49.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KISSIN BUG, $20.00, $11.60, $7.40; EDDIE WRACK, $12.90; $6.70; JEANNE S., $3.50.

KISSIN BUG, under steadying restraint while following the pace, responded gamely to brisk handling in the stretch and was up right at the end. EDDIE WRACK, well placed throughout, wore down WITTEKIND for the command and, under intermittent punishment in the last five-sixteenths, had just failed to last. JEANNE S., restrained early, held on willingly when placed under pressure. WITTEKIND faltered. BIPARTISAN raced well for the first half-mile, tiring thereafter.

Utility Stocks Rise Briskly; Others Droop

Reports of Favorable Bill Developments a Factor.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 19.—Utility shares broke sharply away from the balance of the stock market list today to score good gains, while late selling elsewhere left many active issues fractions to 3 points or so lower at the finish.

Last-hour trading was brisk and the pressure toward the close, while resisted by the power shares, still left even that division below its best for the day. The general tone steadied a little just before the final gong.

Washington developments supplied the ammunition for the utility push when the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee proposed to liberalize markedly the "death sentence" provision against holding companies contained in the utility bill passed by the Senate and give broad discretionary powers over holding units to the SEC.

Even the statement by President Roosevelt at his press conference that he favored the Senate provision failed to dampen enthusiasm, although the Chief Executive expressed the opinion that even that version should not be harmful to well-integrated holding units. It was principally holding companies of the latter sort whose shares participated to the greatest extent in the upward move.

Grains Tumble In Heavy Sales

Weather and Winnipeg Weakness Turn Market Down.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 19.—Persistent selling pressure brought about decided downturns of grain values today, influenced by uncertainty over Canadian wheat marketing affairs and by reported improvement of crops.

A specially disturbing factor was the circumstance that the Winnipeg wheat market proved as weak today as it was strong yesterday, with dispatches at hand indicating that operations of the Canadian government-sponsored wheat pools would remain a mystery. Special notice was also taken of failure of the Liverpool wheat market to reflect yesterday's wheat price upturns this side of the Atlantic.

Wheat in Chicago closed weak at almost the day's bottom level, 1⅛@1⅞ under yesterday's finish, July, 80@80⅛; corn, ⅜@1½ down; July, 81⅜@81½, oats, 1 cent to 1¼ off and provisions showing 7 to 30 cents decline.

Copper Men Vote A Voluntary Code

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 19.—The United States Copper Association of all producers and customs smelters in the United States has appointed a committee to determine to what extent it could continue to cooperate as under the former code. A resolution said that "insofar as it was advised that it was legal and proper to do so, the association would co-operate in maintaining existing standards and practices."

Steel Capacity Drops in Week To 38 Per Cent

Decline, Which Reflects Seasonal Shrinkage, Is 1½ Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 19.—Continuing to reflect a seasonal shrinkage in orders, steel industry operations have dropped 1½ percentage points to 38 per cent of capacity, Iron Age reported in its weekly summary today.

Declining operations, the summary pointed out, have given producers an added incentive to maintain present prices, since the low output entails higher costs.

"However, pressure against the price structure has not been nearly so severe as was feared when the steel code was nullified, and the propensity of buyer to postpone purchase is of diminishing importance as a market factor," it said.

"In the Cleveland district, demand for finished steel, particularly for bars and sheets, has improved. Part of this gain is attributable to heavier orders from stove manufacturers and other miscellaneous consumers and the remainder is due to a pick-up in releases from the automobile industry.

"At Chicago also the business outlook is better, especially as it relates to heavy rolled products.

"Pig iron buying is in larger volume, though still at close range. Structural steel awards of 25,200 tons are the third largest of the year to date.

"Prospects for large purchases of steel under the $4,880,000,000 work-relief program have been darkened by Washington's announcement that most of the money to be spent will go to direct labor."

Market Moves Of the Day Seen In Brief Review

What the Stock Market Did.

	Wed.	Tues.
Advances	189	343
Declines	417	209
Unchanged	160	194
Total issues	766	746

Stocks—Utility shares advanced sharply on reports that the holding company bill, as amended, might prove more liberal. Other groups failed to follow the lead of the power shares. The volume was 1,626,160.

Bonds—Public utility holding issues also were the feature of the bond market, moving upward into new high ground for the year. Transactions rose to $15,863,000.

Curb—Late selling upset earlier firmness provided by the power shares and the closing was ragged. Trading was active with 296,000 shares.

Grains—Persistent selling due to crop reports and weakness of the Winnipeg wheat market took toll of grain prices. July wheat closed at 80, off 1⅛. Corn and oats were lower.

Cotton — A moderate advance on unfavorable crop advices was followed by a reaction which left prices 1 to 2 points higher. July closed at 11.52, up 2.

Sugar—Raw sugar was unchanged at 3.35 and refined remained at 5.25.

Coffee—Spot prices were unchanged with Rio, No. 7, at 6⅛ and Santos, No. 4, at 8.

Bar gold—The price declined 2¼d in London to 140s. 11½d. The New York equivalent was $34.79.

Bar silver—The New York quotation was a half-cent lower at 72. In London the price was a halfpenney lower at 32 3-16d, with a New York equivalent of 71.57 cents.

Newspaper Advertising Registers Gain in May

New York, June 19 (AP).—The Printers Ink Index of newspaper advertising stood at 80.4 for May compared with 78.7 for April. This was after the usual adjustment for seasonal variation.

Comparison with 1934, said the publication, shows that the gain in May was the smallest for any month this year as against the corresponding period of 1934.

Decline in Agricultural Prices as Effects of Last Year's Drought Wear Off Revives Agitation for New Agriculture Relief Measures Among Farmers.

By a Special Correspondent.

New York, June 19.—Recent sharp declines in grain prices and softness in quotations of several other agricultural staples, may soon revive active agitation for additional agricultural relief measures observers here expect.

The report that the Government is giving serious consideration to subsidizing the export of some 25,000,000 bushels of wheat from the Pacific Northwest, so as to reduce the prospective surplus of this grain, is held likely to prove a fair sample of what is to follow. The effects of last year's drought are now wearing off as the new crops begin to be harvested. The decision against the Government in the NRA test case has added to the pressure on farm prices by raising doubts as to the validity of the agricultural adjustment program. Hence, as grain prices fall well below the level at the corresponding date last year, it is held only a matter of time before efforts will be made to enact either additional measures of direct aid to agriculture, such as export subsidies or higher benefit payments, or monetary inflation measures such as the Frazier-Lemke bill for refinancing farm mortgages through the issuance of $3,000,000,000 in greenbacks.

Moving Further Away. From Parity.

April of this year witnessed the high point of apparent success of the agricultural adjustment program. At that time the ratio of agricultural prices to prices of goods the farmer buys stood at 87 per cent of the pre-war parity, as compared with 68 per cent in May, 1934. We are now moving farther away from this theoretical parity, the ratio now being probably about 80 per cent of pre-war parity.

The basic difficulty about the wheat situation in this country is that it is part of a worldwide situation. The world wheat agreement of the past two years has now been virtually abandoned, while the appreciable improvement in the statistical position of wheat registered last year is being lost this year because of rather exceptionally favorable weather conditions in the Northern Hemisphere during the past two months. While it is too early to count this year's wheat crop as made and harvested, nevertheless throughout the important growing areas in Europe, the United States and Canada crop estimates are being raised right along.

Prospects that Canada may modify her wheat holding program and dispose of some of her bulging surplus in the hands of government pools, and that Russia may reenter the export trade, also promise increased pressure on the world price level this summer and fall. Political considerations may cause Canada to hold on for some time to the large stock of wheat she built up because, by pegging her own price, she permitted Argentina and Australia to market their large crops in full during the current season. However, the mere existence of these unsold stocks of grain will have a depressing effect on the world price level.

It is now being proved that a goodly part of the apparent and much-vaunted success of the agricultural adjustment program during the last year must be ascribed to weather conditions, and that this year a reversal of this influence is likely. The Administration seems eager to turn its attention to industrial recovery, hoping thus to expand domestic markets and help the farmer in this way. However, having been told that the agricultural adjustment program did so much for him, the agitation for additional artificial measures as prices recede is expected to grow apace.

Subsidy Policy Would Invite Reprisals.

A resort to a subsidy policy to stimulate exports, such as is now favored by a large contingent in Congress, will antagonize other countries and probably lead to reprisals. It is noteworthy that the subsidy device is merely an extension of the nationalistic policies which have been at the root of most of the world's agricultural difficulties in recent years.

Increases in benefit payments will prove difficult. Any attempts to raise the much criticized processing taxes will meet with very strong opposition. Hence, the Government would probably have to raise funds from other sources to pay the larger benefits.

Another and even more perilous proposal is that generous Government loans be offered growers with the next crop as security, such as the plan for an advance of 25 cents a bushel on oats. This may involve the Government once again in a vast speculation, as has been seen in connection with the present cotton loans and the old Farm Board advances, with consequent risk of substantial loss eventually.

House Repairs Here This Year Cost $1,085,000

Better Housing Drive and Time Payments Aid Improvements.

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

House repairs undertaken in the Washington area during 1935 under direct stimulation of the better housing drive have passed the million dollar mark, Henry H. Dearing, director of the local branch of the Federal Housing Administration reported yesterday.

In an effort to make the public "repair conscious," the local division early in the year engaged a number of canvassers to conduct a house to house campaign. With 103 men engaged in this work at the present time, the office reports that 49,639 interviews have been obtained to date.

As a result of these calls in which the canvassers pointed out obvious defects and repair needs, 4,340 pledges were transmitted to local business concerns. Total outlay as a direct aftermath of this campaign is estimated at $1,085,000. The greater part of the repairs have been made under the time payment plan profected by the free insurance under Title I of the housing act.

Mortgage Loans.

Similar progress was reported in the refinancing of mortgages and new home mortgage loans under Title II of the act. Since March, when the offices of the Housing Administration have attended to all the preliminaries in connection with obtaining the mortgage loans, 5,157 persons have been interviewed.

Six hundred and fifty-seven applications for commitments now on file aggregate $44,395,000, either for new home mortgages or for old buildings. Until yesterday the local office had appraised and approved 357 committments with a total valuation of $2,317,000.

All approved loans will be extended the free insurance feature of the housing act. Thirty-six per cent of the total went for new construction while the remainder was used to transform or consolidate other types of mortgages.

Hopkins High in Life Sales.

J. G. Hopkins, Washington representative of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co., was notified by his home office in Fort Wayne yesterday that his paid business for May placed him among the first 20 sales leaders in his company.

He won this honor in competition with more than 1,200 other salesmen of the company.

Lincoln National Life's regular paid business for May, 1935, according to Hopkins, was 10 per cent ahead of the same period last year and the largest since 1929.

Woodward & Lothrop Declare Dividends

Directors of Woodward & Lothrop have declared the usual 25-cent extra dividend on the company's common stock and also the regular quarterly dividend of 30 cents a share on the same stock. Both are payable on June 27.

The directors also have declared the regular quarterly of $1.75 per share on the preferred stock, payable on the same date as the disbursements on the common.

Both issues are listed on the Washington Stock Exchange.

Penn. R. R. Extends Electric Service To Potomac Yard

The Pennsylvania Railroad yesterday announced the extension of electric operation to Potomac Yard, opposite the City of Washington, and electrification of the freight service between here and Baltimore.

Electric freight operations, which began in May, were at first confined to the territory north of Baltimore. Electrification into Potomac Yard now permits complete electric operation of the Pennsylvania's freight service throughout the entire New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington area.

The new service is of particular importance in handling the heavy fruit and vegetable traffic from the South, in which certainty of arrival at specified hours or, in trade language, "making the market," is vital to the interests of shippers.

Virginia Crabbers Get Rid of Charges

The Federal Trade Commission has dismissed complaints against 18 companies engaged in the crab industry in Virginia. The complaints had been issued on relation of the National Recovery Administration and charged violation of the Blue Crab Industry Code of Fair Competition. Dismissal was ordered by the commission because of the Supreme Court's decision in the Schechter case, and upon request of the National Recovery Administration.

Soviet Passes U. S. as Second Gold Producer

With 60% Rise Russia Now Ranks Next to South Africa.

New York, June 19.—Figures on production of gold in Soviet Russia, treated as a State secret in that country and usually reported only in percentage figures showing increases over previous years and never in fine ounces, are now available through a survey conducted by the Engineering and Mining Journal. Basing its estimates on reports from American Consular officers in Russia and other data, that publication, in its June issue, reveals that in 1934 Russian gold output was 4,262,672 ounces, valued at about $150,000,000. This represents a jump of 60 per cent over the previous year and places Russia in second position, next to South Africa, as a world gold producer and displaces the United States from that position.

Expressing the hope, editorially, that "Soviet officials will see fit to remove doubt and speculation regarding their gold production and to replace it with forthright publication of accurate statistics," Engineering and Mining Journal explains that its record "had to be built up by a painstaking process of correlating official statements and figures often widely separated as to time and source, and integrating them into credible statistics comparable with those of other countries."

Confirming official figures of 1932 and using those as a base for calculating production of later years by correlating various official statements and revisions, the authors of the survey state that they believe that by this method they have obtained as nearly accurate figures on Russian gold production as there are anywhere in the world barring the offices of Glavzoloto. (Chief administration of the gold industry of the U. S. S. R.) In confirmation of their findings they quote the recent statement of A. P. Serebrovski, chief of the gold industry, that in a few years Soviet gold production will exceed the output of the Transvaal and hold first place among world producers.

The sharp increase in Soviet gold production in 1934 is asserted by Engineering and Mining Journal to four causes. These are: 1. Extension of summer operations well into the fall. 2. Rapid expansion of production in the Urals, due in part to new discoveries. 3. Progressive mechanization of mining, and 4. A greater number of laborers.

The first four world gold producers in 1934 and their production in fine ounces, as estimated by the mining publication, were: South Africa, 10,304,923; U. S. S. R., 4,262,672; U. S. A. and Philippines, 3,075,192, and Canada, 2,964,395.

Steel Prices Hold Firm.

New York, June 19 (AP).—Prices of pig iron, semifinished steel and finished steel products are holding firmly, states the American Metal Market. Regarding the present influence of the Supreme Court NRA decision, the publication says trade opinion is that "the crucial period during which irregularities might have developed is ended."

Power Issues Day's Feature In Bond Market

Advance Into New High Territory for the Year.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 19.—Public utility holding company issues occupied top-ranking position on the bond market today, reflecting satisfaction in investment circles with the latest turn in the struggle over holding company legislation being carried on in Washington.

Other divisions of the corporate list were sharply divided into opposing camps, with railroad bonds upset by weakness in some of the Southern carrier obligations and industrials displaying independent strength. High-grade issues were neglected while U. S. Governments showed little change despite a pick-up in trading activity.

The Associated Press average of 10 utility bonds advanced .2 of a point into new 1935 territory at 94.2 in consequence of the broad demand created for this group as a result of favorable impressions created by the report of the House sub-committee, which recommended drastic modification of the elimination clause in pending utility legislation, as well as the granting of broad discretionary powers to the Securities and Exchange Commission in dealing with corporate financial set-ups. Prominent gainers included American & Foreign Power 5s, Columbia Gas 5s, American Water Works 6s, North American 5½s and Niagara Shares 5½s.

Transfers aggregated $15,863,000 par value, compared with $12,446,000 the day before. The Government turnover was about $2,080,000, against $1,070,000.

Cotton Steady; Changes Slight

Advance in Crop News Is Followed by a Reaction.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 19.—Cotton was irregular today. A moderate midday advance on unfavorable crop advices from the Southwest was followed by reactions. Prices fluctuated within a range of 10 to 13 points and closed steady at net advances of 1 to 2 points.

After showing net gains of 4 to 9 points, prices reacted under liquidation promoted by weakness in wheat and the reports of better weather in the South.

Active months sold about 6 points net lower on the afternoon dip, but met increased trade buying on the decline and showed rallies of 6 to 7 points from the lowest at the close.

I WON'T STAND IT! I'VE PUT UP WITH A GOOD BIT IN MY DAY, BUT I WON'T PUT UP WITH A SNAKE KEPT IN A CAGE IN TH' BACK YARD —
WHY I UNDERSTAND THEY MAKE GREAT PETS! NOW I HEARD OF A WOMAN — OF COURSE, SHE WAS IN A CIRCUS, BUT —
WELL, IF YOU'RE GOING TO UPHOLD HIM — I'M LEAVING! I CAN GO TO MILLIE'S — AND I'D RATHER PUT UP WITH HER DISPOSITION THAN — CAN'T YOU TAKE A JOKE, MOTHER?

WE COULDN'T FIND ANY TODAY AGAIN! ISN'T THAT JUST OUR LUCK — WITH A SNAKE CHARMER IN OUR GANG! GEE!

Graduation Days.

(Very far after Whittier.)

Blessings on thee, little lad,
Soon to be a full-fledged grad!
With thy cap and with thy gown
And thy plans to go to town;
With thy dad and mother fair
Wond'ring where you'll go from there;
With the college dean so near
Saying things you do not hear;
Boy, I've sympathy for you—
I know what you're going through!

• • • •

Speakers, solemn as can be,
Telling you so heavily
What an education ought to mean
As you leave the campus scene;
Telling you in words galore
What an education's for;
Making all his points quite clear
From the speech he made last year;
Telling you the course to keep—
Putting you, my boy, asleep!

Wake up, now, my little man!
He's concluded, and you can
Grab your sheepskin soon and snap
Out of that hot gown and cap,
Take a bath and pack your clothes . . .
On your toes, boy, on your toes! . . .
To that beach by auto whiz
Where that job as lifeguard is!

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Plans — By Harry J. Tuthill

Robbed! My own sister ransacking my house!
What fries me is this note...
Don't squawk! We're only giving you the same dose of medicine you'd love to feed us if we gave you the chance. Good-bye forever. Gus and Ollie.
Gone! My two best gowns...a hat....shoes... stockings...that genuine alligator valise.
Any fair-minded person expects a trimming from relatives now and then, but this is the first time they stooped to second-story work.
My own sister. Think of it.
If there was some way we could catch Gus before he pours himself into that gray suit and springs it all out of shape.
How well Ollie knows that the more we think of things the more backward we'd be about notifying the police.
I could practically forgive everything but the gray suit and this note...Good-bye forever. Well I'll find that burglar. I'll make him so afraid of suits that he'll join a nudist colony.

Big Suit Faces Western Union In Chain Wires

Jersey Man Asks 3 Million as Informer Under Gambling Law.

By the Associated Press.

Trenton, N. J., June 19.—The chain telegram fad, seized upon by its participants as a swifter road to riches than the humble letter form, brought a $3,600,000 Supreme Court suit to the doorstep of the Western Union Telegraph Co. today.

William F. Zwirner, of Merchantsville, suing as a "common informer" under rarely invoked State gambling law, seeks $2,000 for each of the 1,800 such telegrams he alleges were sent from Camden in nine days this month. On each of these telegrams, transmitting $2, the company received 51 cents toll and money transmission charges, he said.

The Court of Errors and Appeals, the State's highest tribunal, recently upheld the provisions of the statute under which Zwirner sued. Its decision was handed down in the case of Charles D. Hyman, Atlantic City lawyer, who won a $4,000 judgment against the Long Branch Kennel Club on the grounds that the 1934 pari-mutuel dog racing law under which the club was operating was "plainly unconstitutional and invalid."

Hyman, upon winning, announced he would press similar suits to collect $360,000 from other dog tracks.

The law provides that the "common informer" receive half the sum of the judgment, and the county the other half.

Zwirner's complaint alleged that the Western Union on June 7 from 10 a. m. to midnight "did publicly erect, set up, open and operate and make lotteries" at 8 Broadway, Camden, in violation of the law, and that it caused "to be printed, typed and sold, transmitted and relayed X X X" chain telegrams reading as follows:

"Send $2 Western Union telegram top name. Omit first name, add yours. Sell two copies to good prospects only. Show receipt for money order sent. Bring customers to office to certify transaction."

The chain telegrams promised a return of $128 for the $2.51 invested, Zwirner charged.

Elks' Good Will Fleet Vanguard Arrives Today

The first two of eight cars forming the Elks 1935 good-will fleet will arrive today. The entire fleet is heading for Columbus, Ohio, where it expects to arrive by July 15 to open the seventy-first grand lodge convention of the Order of Elks.

The grand lodge representatives traveling in the cars arriving today are Francis P. Boland, of New Jersey, and George (Happy) Stanley, of Florida. They will be guests at a luncheon at the club this noon.

Sylvan Theater Program Takes Place Tonight

Washington's summer festival program will open in the Sylvan Theater at the Washington Monument tonight with the presentation of "The Mikado."

The cast will be drawn from the Estelle Wentworth Opera group. Music will be furnished by the U. S. Army Band. The performance will begin at 8 p. m.

Originally set for last night, the entertainment was postponed because of the cold, rainy weather.

Play Center Dances Start Tomorrow Night

The summer social dances of Eckington Recreation Center, First and T streets northeast, will begin tomorrow night in the McKinley High School gymnasium under the supervision of Mrs. D. E. Middleton, community secretary in charge. Music will be furnished by the five-piece orchestra known as the "Columbians."

Regular dances will begin at the center next week on Tuesday and Friday nights, featuring "spot dances" and other surprises.
